ROOSEVELT REDEDICATES NATION TO IDEALS AS HE IS INAUGURATED FOR SECOND TERM

PERKINS CONFERS WITH G. M. CHIEFS, HINTS PEACE MOVE

Sloan, Knudsen and Murphy Meet With Secretary Day After Her Parley With Union Leaders; 135,000 Are Now Idle.

STRIKE DIRECTORS EN ROUTE CAPITAL

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Walkout, Which Has Hampered Automobile Production, Is Settled.

DETROIT, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Additional strike-caused shutdowns spread unemployment to more than 135,000 General Motors wage-earners tonight as the federal government pressed for peace.

Secretary Perkins and Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, sat for the second successive day in Labor Department offices at Washington with leaders in the automotive dispute. After the conference, she announced, "We have hopes of resuming negotiations between the corporation and the auto union."

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., vice president of General Motors; William S. Knudsen, executive vice president; John Thomas Smith, general counsel, and Donaldson Brown, finance committee chairman, were today's conferees.

Yesterday it was John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization backing the automotive strikes, who talked for nine hours with Murphy and Miss Perkins.

On Lewis' call, Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, and John Brophy, C. I. O. director, headed for Washington from Detroit tonight.

Effects of widespread United Automobile Workers of America strikes closed the Buick Motor Company plant at Flint, Mich., and the Fisher Body Company plant at Baltimore, both General Motors divisions, today. The Buick shutdown threw an additional 10,000 out of work and brought to approximately 38,000 the number of idle in Flint, leaving the A. C. Spark Plug plant the only G. M. unit operating in that city.

One of the principal obstacles to settlement negotiations remained the continued presence of strikers in two Flint Fisher body plants.

General Motors has declined to negotiate with the union while these

Mrs. James A. Moffett Files Suit for Divorce

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—(UP)—W. F. Baugher, attorney for Mrs. James A. Moffett, of New York and Palm Beach, today filed a pettiion for divorce in Dade county circuit court here against her husband, the Standard Oil Company executive and former federal housing administration head.

Baugher, who withdrew the papers as soon as the action was filed, said Mrs. Moffett alleged mental cruelty. Under the practice in Florida courts, a petition does not have to be made public.

Convict Seized in Manhunt Confesses Killing Trooper

"Frenchy" Benoit Admits Handcuffing Erstwhile Captor to Mailbox and Shooting Him; Kidnaping and Murder Charged.

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Sheriff Joseph J. Bairley, of Monroe county, said tonight that Alcide "Frenchy" Benoit, 24, paroled convict, confessed that he slugged, shot and killed Michigan State Trooper Richards F. Hammond this morning.

Benoit was captured at the edge of Monroe an hour earlier by four state troopers and rushed to the Monroe county jail, where he was questioned by state and county officials in utmost secrecy.

Admits Firing Shot.

Prosecutor Francis C. Ready and State Police Captain Lawrence A. Lyon declared Benoit admitted in an oral statement that he fired the fatal shot, but insisted that it was fired during a fight he had with the state cop, and not while the officer was in a dazed condition.

After handcuffing Hammond to a mailbox post, the officials quoted Benoit as saying, and firing the fatal shot, he fled, hiding in a field while a posse flashed lights within a few feet of him. After the posse had gone, he said, he spent the remainder of the night and all of today in a barn near Monroe.

Admits Robberies.

He admitted, the officials said, that he had committed robberies in Detroit, Flint, Grand Rapids, Lansing and Pontiac, Mich.; Toledo, Cleveland and Chicago.

The capture of Benoit came after one of the most extensive manhunts in the history of Michigan. Participated in by state police from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana and by city and county police throughout Southeastern Michigan, it was feared earlier in the evening by Captain Lawrence Lyon, commanding the state troopers, that Benoit had eluded the net set for him.

However, at 7 p. m. (Atlanta time),

132 CITY WORKERS CUT FROM ROLLS

Total Removed Expected To Reach 165 Saturday as Dismissals Continue.

Approximately 165 city employes will be cut from the city pay rolls by Saturday, it was estimated yesterday as department heads reported they had reduced their personnel by 132 workers already.

While City Comptroller B. Graham West and his staff rushed to complete the January mid-month pay roll by Monday, heads of 18 departments had completed the required personnel cuts and other department heads said they will cut personnel today or tomorrow.

In the police department 15 detectives yesterday were put back in uniform at $10 less salary per month; 21 persons were dropped from the regular rolls, 13 of them supernumerary patrolmen and seven civilian employes.

Reductions announced yesterday by department heads showed the following eliminations: Construction department, 25; health department, 10; tax assessors, two; tax collector, one; city clerk, one; purchasing department, one; planning commission, one; sanitary, 39; fire department, 10; airport, one; Battle Hill sanitarium, six; Steiner clinic, one; garage, two; city comptroller, one; city hall building, three; Carnegie library, four, and collector of municipal revenue, three.

Other Reductions Slated.

New schedules of reduction in the water department, the parks department and at Grady hospital will be prepared later. It was estimated these departments will cut off at least 40.

Riley Elder, collector of municipal revenue, said he has eliminated one salaried job, the holder to be put on commission basis. Two others who work on commission were let out and possibly a third will go, he said.

Comptroller West said his office had no complete data on the number of workers who will lose their positions, since many of the department heads had not sent him their new schedules.

He estimated that the 6 per cent reduction in personnel in terms of money on the various pay rolls will save the city $158,000 per year.

Status of Pay Cuts.

In addition to the personnel cut, remaining employes undergo either a 5 or 10 per cent reduction in sal-

GALE-LASHED SEAS TAKE LIVES OF 51

25 Persons Drown When German Ship Sinks; Ice Grips European Nations

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Winter, tightening an icy grip over Europe today, left many villages snowbound and was believed the cause of at least 51 deaths in gale-lashed seas.

Twenty-five persons drowned when a German ship sank in a Baltic blizzard. Twenty others were lost from the Finnish steamer Savonmaa off Norway's southern coast. Two French fishing boats, each with three men aboard, were believed to have foundered near the French port of Saint-Malo on the English channel.

Many northern European villages were snowbound, but statemen arriving at Geneva for a League of Nations council found spring-like weather. Huge waves pounded the coast of Britain and France along the English channel and the Atlantic.

All Hands Lost.

Attempting to aid two German vessels in trouble near the island of Fehmarn, off the coast of the German State of Holstein, the captain and all 24 of the crew of the German naval experimental vessel Welle went down with the ship.

Fishermen found traces of the wreckage of the Finnish steamer Savonmaa, and authorities confirmed the 20 aboard had been lost in a gale off the southern coast of Norway.

The ship asked for immediate assistance last night. After that, efforts to communicate with her by radio brought no reply.

Ship Is Drifting.

A Scottish radio station received a message from the 2,288-ton Russian steamer Ilmen that she was drifting near the Shetland Islands, north of Scotland, her rudder gone. A salvage steamer put out to help her.

The trawler St. Cathan had come up near her last night, and the Ilmen first reported the St. Cathan could "do all that it needed."

The Norwegian mailboat Venus saved 19 men from the Norwegian freighter Trym in the North sea and started for Newcastle.

The Venus' crew poured oil to quiet the troubled seas and effect the rescue, ending the 48-hour ordeal of the men aboard the slowly sinking ship. The Trym was abandoned.

Many vessels ran for shelter in Scandinavian waters.

Snowstorms swept Scandinavia, most of Germany, eastern France and northern England.

Passengers from a British mail steamer who disembarked at Esbjerg, on the west coast, to go by train to Copenhagen, on the east coast had to return to Esbjerg, after spending the night on the train among snowdrifts.

Cobb Says: Savages Are Particular

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 20.

Of recent years those hardy adventurers who set forth to invade the last great unexplored area, interior South America, seem to follow a regular routine, to-wit, as follows:

First—They start off.

Second—They get lost.

Third—They are rescued.

But wouldn't it save wear and tear and nervous strain if the rescue expedition went on ahead so it could get settled down in camp all nice and comfortable and be waiting for the explorers when they staggered in, exhausted from toting all those tons of material for future lecture tours? The modern discoverer is gallant, but apparently has no more sense of direction than an egg-beater and seemingly could get lost on top of a marble-top table. Or possibly the tropic sun has an addling effect on the human brain.

Anyhow, since nearly always he is in an intact state when rescued, this would seem to indicate that the head-hunters of the Amazonian jungles are now getting fussy about the types of heads they collect.

M'KIBBEN TO HEAD DETECTIVE SQUAD; 15 PUT IN UNIFORM

Lieutenant McCrary Is Demoted as Hornsby Orders Big Shake-Up; Poole's Son Transferred.

Detective Lieutenant James A. McKibben was placed in charge of the detective bureau yesterday by Acting Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby in a special order which also transferred 15 detectives to duty as uniform patrolmen.

Detective Lieutenant C. E. McCrary, who has been in charge of the night detail of detectives, was transferred to uniform duty, on the day watch. The order instructed the other detectives to report for uniform duty tomorrow.

Replacing McCrary will be Lieutenant R. P. Burnett, who was transferred from the uniform division.

Both McKibben and Burnett are known in the department as highly capable officers. Burnett was detailed to the detective bureau for a good part of his police career, and at one time was head of the traffic squad.

Retain Present Duties.

McKibben will remain on day duty, retaining his present duties in addition to responsibility for the entire work of the bureau.

Detectives ordered to uniform duty and their assignments are: A. Douglas Poole, son of the late Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole, to the evening watch; Y. T. Allen, day watch; D. T. Barge, day watch; P. B. Dailey, brother of the DeKalb county chief of police, evening watch; Richard Engelbert, at present on the homicide squad, day watch; Robert C. McGill, evening

WHITEHEAD WIDOW GRANTED $700,000

As Sole Heir She Gets $500,000 in Addition to $200,000 Separation Fee.

Finis to a long legal battle contesting the will of the late Joseph B. Whitehead, Atlanta capitalist, was written in Fulton superior court yesterday when the auditor's report awarding his widow, Mrs. Laura Graves Whitehead, $700,000 was made the order of the court by Judge E. D. Thomas. Attorneys for both sides consented to the settlement.

Whitehead left an estate valued at approximately $8,000,000 and in his will bequeathed the majority of his property to charities with only $200,000 going to his wife. The will claimed a settlement had been made with his wife on May 28, 1932, in which she agreed to accept $200,000 as her share of his estate.

Mrs. Whitehead challenged the will alleging the value of the estate had been misrepresented to her and she entered suit claiming approximately $6,000,000 as his widow and sole heir. Her lawyers contested the will's validity, declaring not more than one-third of an estate could be left to charity at the exclusion of a wife.

In the report of the auditor, James A. Branch, returned yesterday, it was ruled the separation agreement made by the husband and wife in 1932 was valid and the Citizens & Southern National Bank, executors of the will, were ordered to pay this claim in full. As sole heir, the auditor ordered, the executors are to pay her an additional $500,000 in cash, $400,000 to be paid immediately and $100,000 within eight months.

Judge Thomas ruled that the defendant pay all court costs and the auditors fee, but not the sums expended in prosecution of the case.

Mrs. Whitehead was represented by Arnold-Gambrell & Arnold and Richard A. Knight, while the bank was represented by Spalding, Sibley, Troutman & Brock.

The case has been in court for a year.

Troops Parade--Crowds Watch--Roosevelt Takes Oath

Wide World Wired Photos.

Undaunted by the rain, President Roosevelt stands in the open to take the oath of office of the nation's chief executive a second time. Shown as the solemn oath was administered in the view of thousands, are (left to right, foreground) Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Charles Elmore Copley, chief clerk of the supreme court, holding the Bible; the President, James Roosevelt and Vice President John N. LEVEES CRUMBLE AS FLOODS SPREAD

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Crumbling levees loosed torrents of water over fertile farm land today while the coast guard rushed boats and men to the midwestern flood bowl.

Flood waters swashed in eight states—Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina.

A levee protecting Hazleton, Ind., community of 500 inhabitants, crumbled tonight under the strain of raging White river waters, flooding the entire west section of the city and part of the business district. First reports said there was no loss of life.

Workers who had made futile efforts to stop leaks in the levee said the "roar could be heard a mile away." They had hurried to safety shortly before the levee went out.

Residents told how a wall of water

Roosevelt Takes Oath Anew Before Rain-Swept Crowd

Scene of Majestic Dignity Unfolds as Chief Justice Hughes Swears in Nation's Chief Executive for Second Term as President.

By RALPH McGILL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes' voice halted.

Over the vast, raincoated, rain-swept crowd there came a deeper silence.

And then Franklin Delano Roosevelt began to speak. The oath had been given him to affirm. And the black-robed chief justice was waiting. He did not answer merely I do. He said "I, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States, so help me God."

For a moment there was no sound at all except the pelting of rain. It was as if they were keeping silent so that the words might go to the far corners of the world for all to hear and know that this nation, under God, still retains that democratic form of government which a little group of colonies won from England more than a century ago.

Roar of Applause.

And then the roar of applause broke. America was welcoming Franklin D. Roosevelt to his second term of office as President of the United States.

It was a scene of majestic dignity. There was something in it, as the man began to repeat the oath of his office, that caused the spine to tingle and the eyes to grow wet with tears that come from a deep emotion.

There sat on the platform before the capitol building the black-robed members of the supreme court, the eight old men who have the greatest power in the nation. They were all there save two, Justices Brandeis and Stone, the latter ill. They and the other dignitaries were rain-soaked

Rheba Crawford Throws a Punch, Breaks Up Slander Suit Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Verbal fireworks and fisticuffs, with Rheba Crawford, former "Angel of Broadway," throwing both words and punches, broke up a deposition hearing today in her $1,080,000 slander suit against Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson.

"She socked me right on the jaw," said Harry F. Comber, former chief of police of San Clements. "I spoke to her real nice, as she was getting into the elevator, and she socked me. It was a beaut."

That all happened after Rheba stormed furiously out of the hearing room, declining to answer more questions.

Joseph Fainer, Miss Crawford's lawyer, explained.

"Rheba didn't recognize him when he spoke to her in the hall. He told her who he was, and she said, 'So you're the fellow that's been talking about me?' and let him have it."

The evangelist had been answering the questions of Willedd Andrews, attorney for Mrs. McPherson, since early morning. They continually echewed the formalities of the law and engaged in personal passages of arms. Once she said:

"I've been so busy trying to keep you from framing me, Mr. Andrews, that I haven't had time to check on that."

Andrews, his face reddening, shouted:

"I have never attempted to frame you or anyone. That statement is false."

"You are a liar," Miss Crawford snapped.

The final blow-off came when Andrews started to ask her something about having said, "Didn't you say, 'The underworld and the gamblers would be ready to pay——' "

Miss Crawford's face went livid. She and the attorney began arguing

Rail Labor Leaders Agree on Pay Demand

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A joint committee of five railroad brotherhoods announced tonight it had decided to ask for a 20 per cent wage increase applicable to all of the unions. The decision ended a week-long deadlock over how a request for an increase would be presented.

David B. Robertson, president of the firemen and engineers, said the proposed increase would mean $116,500,000 annually for some 300,000 members of the five unions.

A spokesman said no date was set for presenting the wage increase demand.

Spokesmen said the pay hike demand would involve only the "big five" brotherhoods. There are 16 other unions among railroad workers, they said.

Under provisions of the railway labor act, each railroad would have 30 days after presentation of the demand to file an answer.

RAIN-SOAKED CITY WITNESSES RITES AND GREAT PARADE

"Test of American Progress", Says President, "Is To Provide Enough for Millions Who Now Have Far Too Little".

END TO INJUSTICE THEME OF SPEECH

Chief Executive Opens Term in January Instead of March First Time in History of U. S.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Pledging himself to lead the people of the nation "forward along the road over which they have chosen to advance," President Roosevelt today was administered the oath of office as a rain-soaked capital, its population swollen by hundreds of thousands, braved a driving downpour to witness the impressive pageantry of his second inauguration.

Looking out upon a sea of upturned umbrellas in the storm-drenched Capitol Plaza and standing before a battery of microphones which carried his voice around the world, Mr. Roosevelt began his second term by "reconsecrating" himself and the country "to long cherished ideals in a suddenly changed civilization."

Undaunted by the inclement weather, the worst attending an inauguration in years, some 15,000 persons massed on the plaza to view the historic ceremonies. Untold thousands of others, their cathusiasm undampened by the gloomy skies, lined the sidewalks of Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues to see the parade that followed.

First Failure of Luck.

It was the first time the famous Roosevelt luck for ideal weather had failed him. Heretofore, in all of his major public appearances the skies, however threatening in advance, have cleared before the hour of his speech. Throughout the ceremonies today, both at the capitol and along the parade ground, a continuous rain fell. Starting at midnight there was a steady downpour all morning and just a few minutes before Mr. Roosevelt arrived at the official inaugural stand it increased in intensity and volume, driving thousands from the reserved sections. A chilling wind added to the discomfiture of all present. It sprang up at dawn and gray clouds floated over the White House as the President awoke and prepared for the day's activities.

And then, as if to emphasize the turn in the President's weather fortunes, the rain suddenly ceased to fall about the time the parade was over. But never once during the day did Old Sol cast a shadow of the objects below.

EIGHTEEN ARE INJURED, MANY SUFFER BRUISES IN TRAIN DERAILMENT

ODESSA, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Eighteen persons were injured, and a number of others suffered cuts and bruises as five day coaches and Pullmans of the St. Petersburg section of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad's tourist train, the Southland, were derailed a half mile from here early today. The train was southbound.

Odessa is about 25 miles northwest of Tampa and about 15 miles east of Tarpon Springs.

Those taken to hospitals at St. Petersburg and Tarpon Springs were:

Mrs. J. D. Lucia, 6137 Kenwood avenue, Chicago, suffering back injuries and possible fracture of the spine.

Mrs. Elanor Dager, Canton, Ohio, face lacerations.

Miss Irene Kropf, Canton, Ohio, leg injury.

Mrs. Harry Parsons, 4457 North Hermitage avenue, Chicago, dislocated arm.

John Mehas, Campbell, Ohio, lacerations.

Peter Fatalotis, Tarpon Springs, Fla., internal injuries.

Mrs. Anna Lait, 2620 Lakeview drive, Chicago, Ill., possible fracture of ribs.

Charles H. Schumann, 322 Wesley avenue, Oak Park, Ill., bruises.

J. P. Brown, an Alabama tire company employe whose home address was unknown, cuts and bruises.

Troy Aderholt, Corinth, Miss., sprained knee.

W. V. Neal, 205 Cossett place, Memphis, Tenn., back injuries.

Mrs. P. L. Ayres, 1310 Mondola avenue, Detroit, Mich., leg injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Franz, 816 Courtland avenue, Park Ridge, Ill., bruises.

Three negro dining car employes, cuts and bruises.

Probably the most seriously hurt was Brooks, the negro waiter, who was hurled into an end partition of the dining car as he was carrying a trayful of breakfast dishes.

F. M. Truesdale, of Chicago, Pullman conductor, said about 40 passengers were in the sleeping cars, and about 60 in day coaches, including 30 members of a General Electric Company's sales club, en route to Clearwater for a convention.

Most passengers were up and were at, or had finished breakfast when they felt a jolt, a swaying and saw the floor of the car tilt upwards. The trackage was torn up for 300 yards.

The locomotive and express car passed the broken rail and a combination express car and day coach was the first to leave the track.

Cleaner Is 'Cleaned' By 'Gin' Purveyor

A gentleman who took a package to a downtown laundry yesterday reversed the customary procedure and gave a cleaning, instead of getting one.

The gentleman with the package, on which were visible the words, "Dry Gin," told the manager's secretary, recently employed, to give him $35. She did. He then placed the package in the office safe, and departed.

When the manager returned, he asked about the package in the safe. "I thought you ordered it, and paid for it," explained the secretary. "I didn't order anything," answered the manager. "But let's see what's in it."

The examination revealed 11 neatly wrapped bricks.

MADRID FORCES SEEK TO FORTIFY POSITIONS

Spanish Fascists Kill 20 Civilians in Heart of Capital in Aerial Bombing.

MADRID, Jan. 20.—(AP)—While shrapnel of Insurgent artillery showered central parts of Madrid tonight, government militiamen fortified their positions in the struggle for possession of the geographical center of Spain less than nine miles to the south.

At least 20 persons were killed earlier in an aerial bombig of the capital.

Under cover of their own booming field pieces and rattling machine guns, government forces dug in for the struggle over who is to hold "Angel hill" or "Red hill," as Madrid's defenders have renamed the promontory south of Madrid.

The government forces held the southeastern slopes of Cerro Rojo while Fascist warriors entrenched on the other slopes in a strenuous effort to prevent further government advance.

Government officers said the hilltop had changed hands several times in the fighting since, but that the government's position on the southeastern slopes was stronger than ever.

BLUM ASSURES EDEN OF CO-OPERATION

PARIS, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Premier Leon Blum, meeting Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, tonight, reiterated France's determination to keep the Spanish war from expanding into a general European conflict.

Eden talked with Blum as he stopped off en route to Geneva to attend the League of Nations council meeting.

Blum stressed that France was in complete agreement with Great Britain on virtually all points made by Eden in his speech to commons yesterday. Chief of these was that Britain would resist the effort of any European power to dominate Spain.

TWO RUSSIAN SHIPS STOPPED BY INSURGENTS

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Two Russian steamers were stopped by Spanish Insurgent warcraft in the straits of Gibraltar today and taken to Ceuta, Morocco, Lloyds was advised from Gibraltar.

The steamers were the Dickson and the Uralmasch.

A. M. E. MINISTERS INSTALL OFFICERS

Dr. R. E. Roman Succeeds Rev. Parker as Union President.

The A. M. E. Ministers' Union of the Greater Atlanta area, held its annual installation services at New Hope A. M. E. church, Buckhead, Tuesday night with the Rev. H. M. Parker, retiring president, presiding. The installation sermon was given by Bishop William Alfred Fountain, the presiding bishop of the sixth Episcopal district.

Music was furnished by the New Hope choir and the Morris Brown quartet. The following officers were installed: Dr. R. E. Roman, president; the Rev. W. W. Stephens, vice president; the Rev. F. W. Bagley, secretary; the Rev. B. C. Carswell, assistant secretary; the Rev. S. H. Rome, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. Horace Williams, chaplain; the Rev. V. O. Gilford, assistant chaplain; Dr. C. A. Wingfield, press reporter; the Rev. H. C. Carswell, church reporter; Dr. E. J. Odom, chorister; Dr. T. J. Linton, assistant chorister; the Rev. A. L. Brewster, librarian; the Rev. G. W. T. Thornton, assistant librarian; Dr. W. R. Wilkes, critic; Dr. D. R. Fobbs, assistant critic; Dr. B. R. Holmes, parliamentarian; Dr. W. C. Kelley, assistant parliamentarian; the Rev. M. C. Morris, marshal; the Rev. J. G. Vining, assistant marshal.

ALL HOPE ABANDONED FOR POPE'S RECOVERY

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Physicians have given up all hope for the recovery of Pope Pius, Vatican sources said tonight, and added it no longer could be "disguised" that he was sinking.

The doctors, however, believed the 79-year-old pontiff was in no immediate danger of death, these sources declared, unless his heart should give out suddenly. The heart has shown signs of new weakness.

INAUGURATION RITES VIEWED BY THOUSANDS

short the cheers which might have been prolonged and plunged immediately into his inaugural address once the language of the oath was intoned by Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Charles Evans Hughes and repeated by him in a firm, vibrant voice.

Emerging From Depression.

Picturing a nation which is emerging from depression, but in which there are "tens of millions of its citizens—a substantial part of its full population—who at this very moment are denied the greater part of what the very lowest standards of civilization call the necessities of life," the President said:

"It is not in despair that I paint you that picture. I paint it for you in hope—because the nation, seeing and understanding the injustice in it, proposes to paint it out."

"The test of American progress," declared Mr. Roosevelt," is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little."

Throughout the Roosevelt inaugural address was the underlying theme that government—national, state and municipal—must be so administered as to make it possible to have a nation uncorrupted by cancers of injustice."

Speech Was Brief.

The President's speech, delayed some 23 minutes on account of the weather, was comparatively brief and dealt only in a general way with problems which confront the country. No specific pledges of legislation were made; he outlined no special program. Recalling the dark clouds of depression which developed the economic structure of the country at the time he first took the oath of office four years ago and the feeling of national anxiety then existing, he said: "We dedicate ourselves to the fulfillment—to spend the time when there would be for all the people that security and peace essential to the pursuit of happiness."

"We of the republic," he continued, "pledge ourselves to drive from the temple of our ancient faith those who have profaned it; to end by action, tireless and unafraid, the stagnation and despair of that day."

The only reference to the supreme court—and that indirect—came when the President reminded his vast audience, seen and unseen, that 150 years ago the constitutional convention "created a strong government with powers of united action sufficient then and now to solve problems utterly beyond individual or local solution."

"Today we invoke those same powers of government to achieve the same objectives," he declared.

The two absent justices of the high tribunal were Associate Justices Brandeis and Stone. Both Liberals, Brandeis is too far along in years to risk inclement weather, while Stone, appointed under the Hoover administration and a former Republican attorney general of the United States ironically enough, has been ill for some time.

First in January.

Due to the Norris lame duck amendment to the constitution it was the first time in history that a chief executive of the nation was administered the oath in January instead of March 4, the date originally set by the founding fathers. By virtue of that amendment Mr. Roosevelt's first term was shortened by approximately two months.

Senator George W. Norris, Republican liberal of Nebraska, who sponsored the amendment, was one of the fortunate few occupying seats on the sheltered presidential inaugural stand. Efforts to blame him for the miserable weather conditions attending the inauguration brought from the venerable senator, an ardent New Dealer who left his own party in the recent election to support Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy, the following retort:

"You cannot blame this weather on me until after we find out what kind of weather will welcome in March 4."

Immediately preceding the Roosevelt induction the oath was administered to Vice President John Nance Garner in the same setting by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, majority leader of the upper chamber, officiating instead of Chief Justice Hughes. It marked the first time in history that a vice president had been sworn in outside of the senate chamber. Heretofore he has taken the oath at a preliminary session of the senate, joining with the body afterward in taking up seats on the plaza.

In Rigid Regalia.

Accompanied by six of the other eight aged justices of the highest tribunal, all decked out in the rigid regalia of their somber black robes, Chief Justice Hughes reached his place on the platform from which the President spoke a half-hour before the ceremoneis commenced. Although covered by a roof, most of them were drenched by the heavy rain beating in from three exposed sides.

Seeing the plight of the venerable justices, Mrs. Roosevelt, who was milling about on the platform in the rain with her accustomed energy, gave a place of greater shelter to Chief Justice Hughes.

Undismayed by the weather the first lady moved about freely in the stands. Among other things she forsook her sheltered position before the President's arrival to invade the press section in quest of a friend whom she spotted being deluged by the rain. On the way to and fro from the President's stand she stopped frequently to chat with intimate acquaintances—entirely unhampered and apparently unconscious of the downpour.

King of Courage.

Once again, as four years ago in the dark days of the depression, the President's inaugural speech had about it the ring of the immortal Pilgrim's Progress. He again called for the driving out of the temple of the money changers, but his language had behind it the force of experience, a greater courage born of success of his program.

"If I know aught of the spirit and purpose of our nation," he said, at one point, "we will not listen to comfort, opportunism and timidity. We will carry on."

During his first administration he said, when the depression was at its height, he refused to listen to those who declared problems of common welfare could be solved by "the winds of chance and the hurricanes of disaster." His goal was finding "practical controls over blind economic forces and blindly selfish men."

Absent from the second Roosevelt inaugural address, however, was the sharp criticism of the supreme court which he voiced in his recent opening speech to congress. There was slight reference to world affairs.

Nation Recovering.

The nation, he said, is recovering from the ills of the depression, a development that he termed "obvious," adding that the people have learned "economic morality pays."

"This new understanding," he went on, "undermines the old administration of world success as such. We are beginning to abandon our tolerance of the abuse of power by those who betray for profit the elementary decencies of life.

"In this process evil things formerly accepted will not be so easily condoned. Hard headedness will not so easily excuse hard heartedness. We are moving toward an era of good feeling. But we realize that there can be no era of good feeling save among men of good will."

All through the address the rain continued. Mr. Roosevelt might have consented to have the ceremonies moved inside the capitol but limited quarters there would have deprived thousands of seeing him standing beneath the huge wooden canopy erected on the steps of the building.

"Can Take It."

Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee, put up to him the proposition of moving inside. The President knew the people who had sat and stood in the rain for hours around the capitol would be disappointed.

He vetoed the idea of running to cover and declared:

"I can take it if they can."

The religious service preceding the inaugural was impressive and brief. The President sat silently, about him an air of peaceful confidence and determination. It was in St. John's that he prayed four years ago before he took his first oath of office.

The silver-toned voices of the choir broke the quiet of the sanctuary as they sang the first hymn, "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past." The Rev Frank Wilson, from the little Episcopalian church at Hyde Park, where the elder Mrs. Roosevelt worships, read the lesson.

Dr. Endicott Peabody, who first knew the President as a youth about the campus of Groton, prayed for divine guidance for "thy servant, Franklin." The closing hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," rang out as the choir filed out of the church.

For perhaps a minute the President remained in silent prayer. Then, with his mother, he left the church and drove back to the White House, the President and his 83-year-old mother alone in the first car.

Wide World Wired Photos.

Atlanta's Policemen Told To Obey Laws

Policemen were warned yesterday by Captain Jack Malcom that they, too, must obey traffic laws—except when answering an emergency call.

"A policeman answering an emergency call surely has the right to park his car anywhere, but after the emergency is over, the officers must comply with the laws. A report of a burglary is being committed or a fight is under way is an emergency call of the department, but when the officer goes back to pursue investigations two days later then it is his duty to obey the law or be called into recorder's court to face charges of illegal parking."

Sixty-nine Winnipeg traffic tickets were tied to Atlanta automobiles yesterday, records revealed. Many of the motorists whose cars were tagged came by headquarters and posted $3 collateral which will be forfeited when the cases are called.

Royal Family Pays Tribute to George V

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Queen Mary gathered all her children—except the Duke of Windsor—about her at Sandringham House today on the anniversary of the death of their father, the late King George V, five minutes before midnight a year ago.

Only Windsor, who became King Edward VIII when his beloved father died at the age of 70 of bronchial catarrh and heart weakness after a four-day illness, was absent from the family circle.

For the present King, it marked the close of the most momentous year of his life, one which saw him first the Duke of York, then heir presumptive during the brief reign of his brother, and finally King George VI.

2,500 Georgians Join Rest of Nation In Paying High Tribute to President

Governor, Senators and Assemblymen Predict Bright Future for State With All Leaders Now Solidly in Support of New Deal.

By L. A. FARRELL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Their spirits unmarred by the all-day downpour, more than 2,500 Georgians headed by Governor and Mrs. E. D. Rivers today joined the rest of the nation in a tumultuous second-inauguration of President Roosevelt and at the conclusion of the ceremonies dedicated their state to the broadened program of humanitarism outlined by the President in his inaugural address.

Three cars behind National Chairman James A. Farley, Governor and Mrs. Rivers and leaders of Georgia's new state administration rode in the inaugural parade, the Governor fighting off a severe cold to participate in the events of the day.

Early tonight Governor Rivers, who was scheduled to leave on his special train for Atlanta shortly after midnight, announced that he was remaining in Washington until tomorrow to permit his attendance at the meeting of the Democratic national committee, of which he is a member.

"We of Georgia want to rededicate ourselves to the principles espoused by President Roosevelt in the face of what might have been a dismal outlook," Governor Rivers said. "We agree most hearily with him that there are too many people without food and shelter in our country and we are glad that Georgia does not have more than its share. On my own inauguration a week ago I promised the people of Georgia that I was with President Roosevelt 100 per cent. Today I want to say that I am for him and his program 1,000 per cent. Whatever Georgia can do to keep onward his march of progress our people may rest assured we will do."

Delegation Rivals Others.

The driving rain which greeted the Georgia visitors when they awakened this morning kept numbers of them from marching in the parade but the delegation passing the White House reviewing stands in the late afternoon was as large if not larger than that of other states.

Georgia was signally honored by being placed in the first parade division headed by General Farley as marshal.

Riding with Governor and Mrs. Rivers were Adjutant General Jack Stoddard, Colonel W. Fred Scott, of Thomasville, his chief of staff, and Mrs. Scott, and Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Andrew A. Smith. Commander Smith is the Governor's naval aide.

Immediately behind came Senate President John B. Spivey and Mrs. Spivey, and Speaker Roy V. Harris, of the house of representatives. Mrs. Harris was ill and unable to make the trip.

Address Praised.

Senators George and Russell were with Governor Rivers in their praise of the President's address.

"We have today witnessed one of the most impressive ceremonies any of us ever saw," Senator George said. "We have seen President Roosevelt take his oath of office with a bright outlook for industry and for agriculture in which we of Georgia are so deeply interested. I have no doubt but that President Roosevelt, who always has been the most popular president we ever had, is today more popular than he has ever been before. He reaches a new zenith in his popularity every day."

Senator Russell said he was "particularly happy because Georgia has a state administration which will go along in step with the program of the President.

"Georgia has made rapid strides despite the opposition of the state administration to the great program of our President," the junior senator declared. "We have gone forward in the face of strong opposition at home. Now with that opposition turned to assistance and support I am looking for a new Georgia to rise up. When the new state administration puts into effect the entire Roosevelt program, Georgia will take its place among the ranking states of the nation."

See Co-operation in State.

The legislative leaders here for the inauguration were confident that enabling acts would be adopted in Georgia to carry out the President's program for social security and for the uplifting of the masses.

"I have spent the afternoon talking with members of the senate about the President's speech," Senate President Spivey said. "They are in complete accord that we must get into line as quickly as possible. Georgia has everything to gain and nothing to lose."

Speaker Harris said the house of representatives could be counted on to do its part.

"Two years ago we set the stage for just what Georgia is going to have now," the jaunty speaker declared. "We will do it again this year when we resume our legislative session Monday morning. And this time we will have a sympathetic senate and a Governor whose heart is pumped by the blood of the common people. I can see nothing but great things in store for Georgia."

Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, of Louisville, the state's Democratic national committeewoman, was loud in her praise of the Roosevelt address.

"The President is everything we expected of him and we will prove to him that Georgia is everything he expects of the state," Mrs. Price said.

The national committeewoman and her husband, Judge Rufus Price, also are remaining over for the meeting of the national committee tomorrow.

Governor and Mrs. Rivers attended the White House reception this afternoon along with other chief executives and their wives.

While at the White House the chief executive met Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, and discussed the strike situation in his state.

"We have some of our own people out on strike and I was glad to learn from Governor Murphy that the situation is not hopeless," Governor Rivers said.

Tonight the Georgians are the guests of the All-Southern States Society at a dance at the Shoreham hotel. When it is concluded they will return to their special trains to start the homeward journey, which will be completed when they reach the Terminal station in Atlanta early tomorrow night.

Most of the Georgia visitors have made their homes on board their trains while here. Hotel rooms have been at a premium and despite the lack of accommodations all have fared well.

Garner Was Technically President For 3 Minutes, Observers Declare

Hull Was Chief Executive From 12 O'Clock Noon to 12:26 P. M., Sticklers Say; Vice President Attends Services at Roosevelt's Church.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Red-faced and shivering John Nance Garner, of Uvalde, Texas, may have been President of the United States for three rainy minutes today.

Some sticklers for technical details argued that when he was sworn in for his second term as vice president he actually became the chief executive.

According to their thesis, the President's term expired at 12 o'clock noon and Cordell Hull, secretary of state, became the chief executive.

Garner was sworn in at 12:26 p. m. and automatically became president in fact, if not in name, until Mr. Roosevelt intoned his oath at 12:29 p. m.

Anyway, it was a busy day for the Texan. It began this morning when he preceded the President to services at St. John's Episcopal church.

With Mrs. Garner and his granddaughter, Miss Genevieve Garner, he sat in a front pew in the historic "Church of the Presidents" just across the red-carpeted aisle from the President.

"Cactus Jack" next appeared at the capitol, braving guests of rain to sit with Mrs. Garner and his son, Tully, in a front row.

When the moment came for him to take what he told friends would be his last oath of office, he stepped forward bare-headed with Senator Robinson, the Democratic senate leader.

"Do you solemnly swear . . ."

"I do!" the vice president declared in a firm voice—and then hastily backed out of the rain and resumed his seat.

Highlights in Speech Made by President

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Some excerpts from President Roosevelt's second inaugural address:

We have begun to bring private autocratic powers into their proper subordination to the public's government.

We have always known that heedless self-interest was bad morals; we know now that it is bad economics.

The greatest change we have witnessed has been the change in the moral climate of America.

Prosperity already tests the persistence of our progressive purpose.

I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished.

The essential democracy of our nation and the safety of our people depend not upon the absence of power but upon lodging it with those whom the people can change or continue at stated intervals through an honest and free system of elections.

If I know aught of the spirit and purpose of our nation, we will not listen to Comfort, Opportunism and Timidity. We will carry on.

Government is competent when all who compose it work as trustees for the whole people.

If I know aught of the will of our people, they will demand that these conditions of effective government shall be created and maintained. They will demand a nation uncorrupted by cancers of injustice and, therefore, strong among the nations in its example of the will to peace.

The constitution of 1787 did not make our democracy impotent.

Today we reconsecrate our country to long cherished ideals in a suddenly ch ged civilization.

In taking again the oath of office as President of the United States, I assume the solemn obligation of leading the American people forward along the road over which they have chosen to advance.

SMITH IS QUIZZED IN EXTORTION PLOT

Estranged Wife Sits By as Ex-Governor's Son Tells of Affair.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith Jr., alleged victim of a blackmailing plot for which Max D. Krone and A. Henry Ross are on trial, testified on cross-examination today he had once remarked he had "nothing against" Ross and had expressed a conditional willingness to drop the case against that defendant.

Krone and Ross are accused specifically of the extortion of $1,500 from Smith, but the prosecution has sought to show the amount actually was much greater.

Earlier, as his estranged wife sat in the courtroom, Smith had told of an illicit hotel rendezvous with blonde Catherine Pavlick, whom the state has pictured as an unwitting instrument to the shakedown.

The hotel affair, Smith said, followed a round of drinking.

He said he never asked for receipts when he paid money to Krone, saying that on those occasions he got back notes which were destroyed.

SEEK TO RECOVER OIL LANDS.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—(UP) The United States government tonight filed a suit to recover a section of the rich United States naval reserve oil lands in Kern county, valued at $23,000,000. The suit was filed in federal court. The section is known as United States naval reserve No. 1.

aries, retroactive to include the entire month of January.

Pay was not distributed yesterday because of the tremendous work of compiling the new city pay rolls and the time required to print scrip. Banks will cash scrip under arrangement made with the city for routine loans.

The comptroller said the midmonth pay roll, usually approximating $115,000 for nonschool employes, will be only about $100,000 this month because of the 5 and 10 per cent pay cut to those making $100 and less than $101 and more, respectively. Employes laid off will be paid extra time on a special pay roll.

Cates' Move Approved.

Action of H. J. Cates, head of the sanitary department, who started the reduction in personnel by eliminating 39, received the approval of the sanitary committee yesterday. Councilmen J. Frank Beck, chairman; C. L. Chosewood and E. A. Minor attended the meeting.

Superintendent J. B. Franklin, of Grady hospital, said he will not be able to eliminate personnel until the board of trustees meets. There was not a quorum of the board in the city yesterday, he said.

Council's stringent action in cutting the pay rolls and reducing salaries was taken Monday to balance the 1937 budget at $9,054,000. Loans from banks hinged upon the prompt balancing of the finance sheet.

Dewey L. Johnson, city electrician, announced yesterday that he will employ R. S. Edwards as the new electrical inspector. Edwards was an inspector in the city clerk's office and was eliminated in the economy move. City Clerk Joe Richardson said an office worker will be placed in the license inspector's job.

WORKERS FOR BLIND WILL RECEIVE GIFT OF 2 NEW BUILDINGS

Donor Remains Anonymous as Structures Are Prepared for Occupancy.

Two buildings on Pulliam street will be deeded to the Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind in which work may be carried on for both white and negro blind persons in Atlanta and the state, Edgar Craighead, vice president of the association, announced yesterday at a called business meeting.

The builded, to be deeded by an unannounced Craighead client, will be put in order for occupancy within the next few days, he said, and will afford Atlanta place where blind persons of both races may feel free to come at any time.

A delegation of negroes from the association's new branch were present at the meeting and pledged co-operation in carrying on the work among their race, it was said by J. P. McGrath, president of the Georgia association.

McGrath will head a committee to present a bill before the legislature asking social security funds for training of the blind in Atlanta and Georgia.

THREE SCORE GROUP WILL CONVENE TODAY

Third of a series of planned social events will be held by the Three Score or More Civic Club from 3 to 4 o'clock today in the Peachtree Arcade cafeteria, it was announced tonight by M. D. Gleason, president.

The meeting will be in the form of a birthday luncheon honoring W. T. Nesbit, 86, of Atlanta and Norcross, who is the second oldest member of the club.

More than 300 invitations were sent to Atlantans to attend, Gleason said, and approximately 200 have signified their intentions of being present.

KILLED IN BLAST IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—William Hyer, 47, was killed late today in an explosion and fire that wrecked three apartments on the second floor of a 50-family, seven-story apartment house. An examination disclosed four kitchen range gas jets open and the door sealed by newspapers packed in crevices.

Text of Inaugural Address Delivered by Chief Executive

My Fellow Countrymen:

When four years ago we met to inaugurate a president, the republic, single-minded in anxiety, stood in spirit here. We dedicated ourselves to the fulfillment of a vision—to speed the time when there would be for all the people that security and peace essential to the pursuit of happiness. We of the republic pledged ourselves to drive from the temple of our ancient faith those who had profaned it; to end by action, tireless and unafraid, the stagnation and despair of that day.

We did those first things first.

Our covenant with ourselves did not stop there. Instinctively we recognized a deeper need—the need to find through government the instrument of our united purpose to solve for the individual the ever-rising problems of a complex civilization. Repeated attempts at their solution without the aid of government had left us baffled and bewildered. For, without that aid, we had been unable to create those moral controls over the services of science which are necessary to make science a useful servant instead of a ruthless master of mankind. To do this we knew that we must find practical controls over blind economic forces and blindly selfish men.

NEW CHAPTER IN GOVERNMENT

We of the republic sensed the truth that Democratic government has innate capacity to protect its people against disasters once considered inevitable—to solve problems once considered unsolvable. We would not admit that we could not find a way to master economic epidemics just as, after centuries of fatalistic suffering, we had found a way to master epidemics of disease. We refused to leave the problems of our common welfare to be solved by the winds of chance and the hurricanes of disaster.

In this we Americans were discovering no wholly new truth; we were writing a new chapter in our book of self-government.

This year marks the 150th anniversary of the constitutional convention which made us a nation. At that convention our forefathers found the way out of the chaos which followed the Revolutionary War; they created a strong government with powers of united action sufficient then and now to solve problems utterly beyond individual or local solution. A century and a half ago they established the federal government in order to promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to the American people.

Today we invoke those same powers of government to achieve the same objectives.

Four years of new experience have not belied our historic instinct. They hold out the clear hope that government within communities, government within the separate states, and government of the United States can do the things the times require, without yielding its democracy. Our tasks in the last four years did not force democracy to take a holiday.

INTRICACIES RECOGNIZED

Nearly all of us recognize that as intricacies of human relationships increase, so power to govern them also must increase—power to stop evil; power to do good. The essential democracy of our nation and the safety of our people depend not upon the absence of power but upon lodging it with those whom the people can change or continue at stated intervals through an honest and free system of elections. The constitution of 1787 did not make our democracy impotent.

In fact, in these last four years, we have made the exercise of all power more democratic; for we have begun to bring private autocratic powers into their proper subordination to the public's government. The legend that they were invincible—above and beyond the processes of a democracy—has been shattered. They have been challenged and beaten.

Our progress out of the depression is obvious.

But that is not all that you and I mean by the new order of things. Our pledge was not merely to do a patch-work job with second-hand materials. By using the new materials of social justice we have undertaken to erect on the old foundations a more enduring structure for the better use of future generations.

In that purpose we have been helped by achievements of mind and spirit. Old truths have been relearned; untruths have been unlearned. We have always known that heedless self-interest was bad morals; we know now that it is bad economics. Out of the collapse of a prosperity whose builders boasted their practicality has come the conviction that in the long run economic morality pays. We are beginning to wipe out the line that divides the practical from the ideal; and in so doing we are fashioning an instrument of unimagined power for the establishment of a morally better world.

MOVING TOWARD ERA OF GOOD FEELING

This new understanding undermines the old admiration of worldly success as such. We are beginning to abandon our tolerance of the abuse of power by those who betray for profit the elementary decencies of life.

In this process evil things formerly accepted will not be so easily condoned. Hardheadedness will not so easily excuse hardheartedness. We are moving toward an era of good feeling. But we realize that there can be no era of good feeling save among men of good will.

For these reasons I am justified in believing that the greatest change we have witnessed has been the change in the moral climate of America.

Among men of good will, science and democracy together offer an ever richer life and ever larger satisfaction to the individual. With this change in our moral climate and our rediscovered ability to improve our economic order, we have set our feet upon the road of enduring progress.

Shall we pause now and turn our back upon the road that lies ahead? Shall we call this the Promised Land? Or, shall we continue on our way? For "each age is a dream that is dying, or one that is coming to birth."

Many voices are heard as we face a great decision. Comfort says "Tarry a while." Opportunism says "This is a good spot." Timidity asks "How difficult is the road ahead?"

NATION'S VITALITY HAS BEEN PRESERVED

True, we have come far from the days of stagnation and despair. Vitality has been preserved. Courage and confidence have been restored. Mental and moral horizons have been extended.

But our present gains were won under the pressure of more than ordinary circumstance. Advance became imperative under the goad of fear and suffering. The times were on the side of progress.

To hold to progress today, however, is more difficult. Dulled conscience, irresponsibility and ruthless self-interest already reappear. Such symptoms of prosperity may become portents of disaster! Prosperity already tests the persistence of our progressive purpose.

Let us ask again: Have we reached the goal of our vision of that fourth day of March, 1933? Have we found our happy valley?

I see a great nation, upon a great continent, blessed with a great wealth of natural resources. Its hundred and thiry million people are at peace among themselves; they are making their country a good neighbor among the nations. I see a United States which can demonstrate that, under democratic methods of government, national wealth can be translated into a spreading volume of human comforts hitherto unknown—and the lowest standard of living can be raised far above the level of mere subsistence.

CHALLENGE TO DEMOCRACY

But here is the challenge to our democracy: In this nation I see tens of millions of its citizens—a substantial part of its whole population—who, at this very moment, are denied the greater part of what the very lowest standards of today call the necessities of life.

I see millions of families trying to live on incomes so meager that the pall of family disaster hangs over them day by day.

I see millions whose daily lives in city and on farm continue under conditions labeled indecent by a so-called polite society half a century ago.

I see millions denied education, recreation and the opportunity to better their lot and the lot of their children.

I see millions lacking the means to buy the products of farm and factory and by their poverty denying work and productiveness to many other millions.

I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill clad, ill nourished.

It is not in despair that I paint you that picture. I paint it for you in hope—because the nation, seeing and understanding the injustice in it, proposes to paint it out. We are determined to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern; and we will never regard any faithful law-abiding group within our borders as superfluous. The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little.

If I know aught of the spirit and purpose of our nation, we will not listen to comfort, opportunism and timidity. We will carry on.

MEN AND WOMEN OF GOOD WILL

Overwhelmingly, we of the republic are men and women of good will—men and women who have more than warm hearts of dedication—men and women who have cool heads and willing hands of practical purpose as well. They will insist that every agency of popular government use effective instruments to carry out their will.

Government is competent when all who compose it work as trustees for the whole people. It can make constant progress when it keeps abreast of all the facts. It can obtain justified support and legitimate criticism when the people receive true information of all that government does.

If I know aught of the will of our people, they will demand that these conditions of effective government shall be created and maintained. They will demand a nation uncorrupted by cancers of injustice and, therefore, strong among the nations in its example of the will to peace.

Today we reconsecrate our country to long cherished ideals in a suddenly changed civilization. In every land there are always at work forces that drive men apart and forces that draw men together. In our personal ambitions we are individualists. But in our seeking for economic and political progress as a nation, we all go up—or else we all go down—as one people.

To maintain a democracy of effort requires a vast amount of patience in dealing with differing methods, a vast amount of humility. But out of the confusion of many voices rises an understanding of dominant public need. Then political leadership can voice common ideals, and aid in their realization.

In taking again the oath of office as President of the United States, I assume the solemn obligation of leading the American people forward along the road over which they have chosen to advance.

While this duty rests upon me I shall do my utmost to speak their purpose and to do their will, seeking Divine guidance to help us each and every one to give light to them that sit in darkness and to guide our feet into the way of peace.

GIVEN LIFE IN SLAYING.

SOLONS JOIN IN PRAISE OF ROOSEVELT SPEECH

Republicans Say Address Failed To Reveal Future Plans.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Some Republican congressmen joined their Democratic colleagues today in praising President Roosevelt's inaugural address.

Others, however, said it failed to end uncertainty concerning his future plans.

The comment of Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, was fairly typical of the expressions from members of the President's party. O'Mahoney said the speech was one of the greatest since Andrew Jackson's.

Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, predicted the Roosevelt message would have "strong approval from the people." Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, called it "a fine sermon."

Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, who comes from the President's home district, asserted it was an eloquent speech but left him knowing no more about the administration's program for the next four years than he did previously.

"He left the country in the dark as to his future plans and policies," Fish added.

Representative Lemke, Republican, of North Dakota, presidential candidate of the Union party in the election last fall, commented it was a very good speech.

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, said it was "a magnificent statement of unassailable ideals to which could appropriately be added a renewed dedication to liberty under the constitution."

Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, called the speech "a great enunciation of the Roosevelt gospel of real democracy." Senator Duffy, Democrat, of Wisconsin, said he was much inspired by it and Senator Lewis, Democrat, of Illinois, asserted "the admirable part of his address was that he did not presume to dictate to congress."

Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, described the President's remarks as "a splendid outline of an administration of progress."

Speech Remarkable.

Representative Eaton, Republican, of New Jersey, said the speech "was remarkable because of its omissions" and Representative Wolcott, Republican, of Michigan, expressed disappointment that Mr. Roosevelt had not been more specific.

"As always, the President has pointed the way," observed Senator Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio.

Others commented:

Representative Burdick, Republican, North Dakota: "As a Progressive Republican I say 'amen' to the speech. It was one of the best if not the best inaugural delivered since the Civil War."

Senator Frazier, Republican, North Dakota: "Very good. Typical of President Roosevelt. I admire his courage in coming out and making his address in wet and unfavorable conditions so as not to disappoint the crowd."

All I Expected.

Senator Logan, Democrat, Kentucky: "All I expected. A progressive address."

Representative O'Connor, Democrat, New York: "It was a typically excellent Roosevelt speech."

Representative Romjue, Democrat, Missouri: "It more than justified the confidence the people placed in Mr. Roosevelt last November."

Representative McReynolds, Democrat, Tennessee: "It was delivered with the usual Roosevelt clearness and insistence that we have proper governmental authority to restore correct economic and social conditions in this country."

Representative Wolcott, Republican, Michigan: "It was a typical Democratic speech. I was disappointed that he was not more specific."

Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi: "Most inspiring and encouraging, especially in the light of our present battle over the nation's power policies."

MOYERS CLAIMED 'DANGER TO PUBLIC'

State Petition Says: "It Is Not Safe That He Be at Large."

A petition to increase the bond for William T. Moyers, convicted of the $30,000 holdup of Thomas K. Glenn, Atlanta banker, yesterday revealed the state seeks the increase on the contention that "it is not safe for the general public that he be at large."

The petition, filed in Fulton superior court by Solicitor General John A. Boykin, set forth, in part: "Evidence showed the man was of violent temper and disposition, going about the streets armed, and having evidenced a determination on more than one occasion to use same."

Moyers, whose pre-trial bond was $20,000, has appealed the court decision, which sentenced him to 5 to 10 years for robbery by intimidation, and is now in Fulton Tower in default of $5,000 bond, set, following his conviction, by Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr.

Judge Etheridge has set a hearing on the petition for 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Land Demand Rivals 1925 Boom in Florida

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 20. (AP)—For the first time since 1925's land boom, buyers stood weary hours in line tonight as a real estate company announced a new subdivision would be sold tomorrow "first come, first served."

Some 30 commercial lots, made available through demolition of an exposition building in an area now zoned against business, were announced for sale with a limitation of two lots to each broker, and none reserved.

The line outside the company's office started at 10 a. m. today with one broker's agent. He was joined an hour later, and by 6 p. m. there were 10 men in line. There was a special police detail to prevent crowding.

SLANDER SUIT HEARING ENDS IN VERBAL 'WAR'

so furiously the court reporter gave up and made no effort to record the full conversation. He did, however, catch this statement from the evangelist:

"You know, I have refused to take your political dictation. You told me you had all the Catholic judges in Los Angeles under your control, and I think it's a shame to bring a man's religion into this thing."

"I never said anything like that," Andrews shot back. "You're telling a lie. I never so much as mentioned a Catholic judge."

Joseph Fainer then arose and said. "Come on; let's get out of here. You don't have to sit here and be insulted. Let him get a court order and we'll answer proper questions."

At the time of this exchange, Miss Crawford was still panting from another explosive answer, made for the record. Andrews had asked her if she said:

"'Once I get my hands on Angelus Temple, I will turn it into the biggest political ring in California and use it to become the first woman governor of California.' Didn't you say that to Florence Elliott?" Miss Elliott is an Angelus Temple secretary.

"I never said anything to Florence Elliott," Miss Crawford snapped, "because she was calling Mrs. McPherson a harlot, a drunkard and a drug addict.

"But I did hear her say—she was always talking about Mrs. McPherson—that her husband said that when he went out with her (Mrs. McPherson) and she would have to reach for the gear shift, she would touch his knee instead. And he said she invited him to come and be in a relation with her that was questionable, to say the least."

Previously, Miss Crawford declined to answer a question about a paragraph in her complaint which says she was told that Mrs. McPherson declared: "'She may have been good enough to be a governor's mistress, but I won't have her on the platform at Angelus Temple.'"

Miss Crawford said: "I refuse to talk about a man dead, and one for whom I have the highest respect."

VANDERBILT 'CLIPPER' ARRIVES AT TRINIDAD

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The William K. Vanderbilts in their luxurious "Baby Clipper" arrived here from Puerto Rico tonight on their airplane tour of the Caribbean and South America.

Vanderbilt said the flight would take them to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, thence over the Andes to Santiago, Chile, and up the west coast to Panama. The cruise would end at Miami, Fla., where it began, he said.

Today a refuelling stop was made at Fort de France, Martinique.

Rheba Calls Aimee's Attorney "a Liar"

"You are a liar," snapped Miss Rheba Crawford as Attorney Willedd Andrews, defending Aimee Semple McPherson at a deposition hearing, denied charges that he had attempted to "frame" the former co-pastor at Angelus Temple. The hearing was in preparation for the trial of Rheba's million-dollar slander suit against Evangelist McPherson. Miss Crawford, known as "The Angel of Broadway," was a former Salvation Army lass in Atlanta.

MASON 62 YEARS, D. J. ROSS, PASSES

Tucker Resident Dies at Age of 83, After Long Illness.

D. J. Ross, one of the oldest active Masons in the state, died yesterday at his home in Tucker, Ga., at the age of 83, following an extended illness.

Mr. Ross was a native of Gwinnett county, but had lived mainly in DeKalb county. He was the son of the late Andrew Martin Ross and Judith John Mann, pioneer Georgians. He became a Mason at the age of 21.

Surviving are his wife; four sons, W. A. Ross, of Lakeland, Fla.; J. D. Ross, of Tampa; H. D. and L. M. Ross, of Atlanta; five daughters, Mrs. G. D. Steele, Mrs. H. C. Goza, Mrs. J. A. Goza, Mrs. H. A. Morgan and Mrs. W. C. Morris; 27 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Tucker Methodist church with the Rev. Lee Smith officiating. Burial will be in Prosperity cemetery, Doraville, under direction of A. S. Turner.

TOKYO ARMY SEEKING DICTATORIAL POWERS

Staff Draws Demand for Full Militarization of Japan, Manchukuo.

TOKYO, Thursday, Jan. 21.—(UP) The Japanese army is preparing a declaration to the nation demanding almost complete militarization of the empire and Manchukuo, the Domei news agency reported today.

If adopted the plan would mean that the Tokyo general staff would control nearly every phase of the life of more than 120,000,000 inhabitants of the empire and Manchukuo.

Details of the plan, Domei understood, are:

Because of Japan's peculiar geographical position—an empire of more than 4,000 islands with possessions in the South Pacific and on the mainland of Asia—and her treaty with Manchukuo which makes her responsible for the defense of that country, Japan must have a military establishment capable of dealing with any combination of powers which might be formed against her.

Air defences must be improved and civil aviation encouraged through increased subsidies.

The economic structure of the empire must be "rationalized" by improving the condition of farmers, who are deeply in debt, and encouraging the development of home industries and small business enterprises "to enable a perfect spiritual and material union of all classes of the people."

A plan for the mobilization of all resources of Japan and Manchukuo must be drawn up and legislation adopted to make it effective. The plan must provide for unified control (presumably by the army and navy) of all defence organizations including organs of information which may be used for propaganda.

The declaration will reveal that the army has appropriated yen 234,000,000 (m) (about $57,000,000) for its military establishment in Manchukuo.

MEDIATION BOARD UPHELD BY COURT

Group Accorded Authority in Settling Intra-Union Disputes.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The United States fifth circuit court of appeals ruled today that the Federal Mediation Board has full authority in settling disputes between opposing labor unions in collective bargaining.

The high court nullified an injunction granted by Judge Louie W. Strum in the southern Florida district court restraining the receivers of the Florida East Coast Railroad Company from recognizing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

An election held in May, 1936, by the Mediation Board to determine if the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen or the Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen should represent the road's engineers in collective bargaining was won by the former by a vote of 58 to 52, records disclosed.

"There is no doubt," the circuit court said, "that in establishing the Mediation Board and giving it authority to act . . . congress intended that the decisions of the board should be final and binding upon contending groups of employes and the carrier. . . .

"The Mediation Board has authority to interpret its own rules and to amend or set them aside in its own discretion."

MOONEY PARDON PROPOSED.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A resolution bearing the names of 26 of the 80 assemblymen was introduced in the assembly of the California legislature today proposing a legislative pardon of Tom Mooney, convicted bomber of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day parade.

REJECT UNICAMERAL PLAN.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Arkansas house of representatives late today rejected a proposal calling for creation of a unicameral legislative system in this state. Vote on the plan in the 100-member house was 16 ayes, 73 nays.

DOZENS ARE ARRESTED AS KIDNAPING PROBERS RAID ITINERANT AREAS

75 Officers Are Working on Fingerprint Clue in Dragnet Operations.

SEATTLE, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Mass raids on shack towns and "hobo jungles" in two states today put dozens of men into the hands of officers pursuing the fingerprint trail of Charles Mattson's kidnap-slayer.

About 75 federal agents, state patrolmen and city police combed itinerant section of Pacific northwest cities.

Their drive here netted more than a score of men, many of whom were fingerprinted even before they were booked for detention.

Fingerprint Theory.

Police said they were proceeding on the belief the brutal abductor had "holed up" somewhere in the area and that if their dragnet operations chanced to bring in the wanted man unrecognized, his fingerprints would disclose him immediately upon classification.

Police Chief William H. Sears said the raids were ordered by C. C. Spear, of Portland, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, in charge of this district.

Sears said the drive was launched simultaneously in Tacoma, where Charles was kidnaped for $28,000 ransom December 27; Everett, near where his nude and battered body was found January 11; Bellingham and Seattle, Wash., and at Portland.

Authoritative sources in Tacoma said the kidnaper left his fingerprints on the $28,000 ransom note and on the shattered French windows through which he departed with the lad.

No Wholesale Arrests.

Undersheriff Louis J. Forbes said his crew of criminal deputies here would make no wholesale arrests but would detain for questioning any specific individuals they believed might have information about the case.

Prisoners brought to the Seattle police station included several Shacktown habitues carrying weapons, some of them markeshift affairs. The weapons were confiscated.

George Dewey Wilson, 38, who was held in Portland yesterday because he allegedly resembled the kidnaper's description and mentioned the Mattsons in a denunciation of wealthy families, was given a 30-day jail sentence for vagrancy. He denied participating in the abduction.

Leigh Haskell Fowler, convicted robber, remained in jail at Bellingham, presumably for further questioning in connection with the kidnaping investigation.

"Kidnap Notes" Published.

The Post-Intelligence published in a copyrighted story what purported to be the texts of two notes written by the Mattson boy and from his kidnaper to Dr. W. W. Mattson, the boy's father.

The first note, mailed December 29 told Dr. Mattson, the newsppaer said, to "let us know through the papers" if he wanted his boy back. The letter threatened the child's life if his father failed to call police off the case. It was signed "Tim" in the same ink and printing, the newspaper said, as that of the ransom note.

The second note, received through the mail several days later, wanted to know "if you are getting the notes or are police keeping them from you." The note said "If you (Dr. Mattson) do not obey the connections will be off for keeps and remember an army of police can kill a couple of kidnapers but they will not be able to find the kid until after he is dead."

Officials declined comment on the story.

Bill Would Prohibit Filing Mules' Teeth

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Arkansas house of representatives passed today, 78 to 4, a bill to penalize mule owners who file the teeth of animals with the intent to deceive prospective buyers.

Representative Lloyd Darnell, the author, explained that "everyone looks at a mule's teeth to determine his age."

"Under my bill," Darnell said, "mule swappers can't file a mule's teeth and sell you an ancient animal on the claim that he's a youngster."

CHARTER IS SOUGHT FOR BUS COMPANY

New Passenger and Freight Line for Georgia Being Formed.

Application for a charter for the Suburban Coach Company, to operate bus and freight lines in Georgia and interstate, was filed in Fulton superior court yesterday. The petition requests a capital stock of not less than 1,000 shares nor more than 10,000 shares.

The petition was filed by three Atlantans, Alexander Gaines, Devereux Lippert and R. H. Peters. Jones, Fuller & Clapp are the petitioners' attorneys.

Petitioners announced they did not, at the present, contemplate operating buses between Atlanta and its suburbs but would haul passengers and freight to all sections of the state and between other states if the charter is granted. They will be subject to regulation by the Public Service Commission.

Permission to deal in motor fuel, equipment and stocks of other corporations was also asked. No par value for the stock shares was mentioned in the petition.

FIVE-STORY PLUNGE FATAL TO EX-BANKER

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Alfred C. Andrews, retired vice president of the Chase National bank, was killed today when he fell from a window of his fifth floor Park avenue apartment into the courtyard below.

Andrews, 61, had been ill for several weeks under the care of a nurse, Miss Emma Hill, who said she left him in his bedroom, went to the kitchen to prepare broth, and found the window open when she returned. She looked out and saw the banker's body in the courtyard below.

In addition to his banking affiliations, Andrews was a director in the Dictaphone Corporation, Packard Commercial school, and of Wallace & Tiernan Insurance Company, of Newark, N. J.

He was a member of the Union League Club, Sons of the Revolution, and was listed in the social register.

Leader of U. S. Syrians Pays Visit to Hartsfield

S. A. Morkarzel, recognized leader of the Syrian-Lebanese people in the United States, called on Mayor Hartsfield yesterday at city hall and was assured of co-operation in advancing the Americanism of the Lebanese in America.

Morkarzel, who spoke last night at a meeting of the Syrian colony in Atlanta, is editor of "El-Hoda," the official Syrio-Lebanese Arabic daily published in New York. He is a brother of the late Nahoum Morkarzel, who represented the Lebanese Republic at the Versailles peace conference.

The editor spoke last night on changing the name of Syrians to Lebanese, since the Republic of Mount Lebanon has been recognized. Accompanying him on his visit to the mayor were the Rev. Father Paul Risk, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church; Joe A. Maloof, Tom Najjar, J. B. Riashy and Louis Maloof.

TVA Attorney Shows Importance Of New Ruling in U. S. Court Here

Fly Says Underwood's Decision Stops Practice by Companies of Filing Several Suits and Choosing Most Favorable Decision.

Federal court records here yesterday carried a ruling which permits the Tennessee Valley Authority to proceed with its power program in Georgia.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood Tuesday granted a temporary order restraining the Georgia Power Company from enforcing a previous injunction against the TVA, obtained in Tennessee.

The ruling was immediately hailed by James Lawrence Fly, general counsel to the Tennessee Valley Authority as the "the only logical outcome."

Fly, in New York, said it meant that power companies fighting TVA could not continue to "try the same issues in successive courts and then choose the most advantageous decision."

The Georgia Power Company was one of 19 power companies granted an injunction against the TVA program by Federal Judge John J. Gore in Tennessee several weeks ago. The utilities attacked constitutionality of the TVA.

Hearing on Merits.

Judge Underwood held that the TVA had a right to hearing in district court here on merits of the case. He thus opened the way for TVA to sue for a permanent injunction against interference with its power activities in Georgia.

"Judge Underwood," General Counsel Fly said in a statement issued in New York, "holds to the basic principle that parties to litigation may not shuttle from one co-ordinate court to another, try the same issues in successive courts and then choose the most advantageous decision.

"The Georgia Power Company first filed its action in the Georgia court and moved for a preliminary injunction against TVA power sales and construction in Georgia. On May 28, Circuit Judge Sibley, sitting for Judge Underwood, upheld the TVA and refused to enjoin its operations in Georgia, but retained jurisdiction for any further proceedings which might be necessary.

Two Other Suits Filed.

"On the next day the Georgia company joined 18 other power companies in filing two identical suits, one in the United States district court at Birmingham and another in the chancery court of Knox county, Tennessee, which was later removed to the federal court there.

"Each of these two suits sought to enjoin TVA operations in Georgia and elsewhere.

"Counsel for the companies later stated that they never intended to try both of these new actions, but that they would move forward with the one which they could press most advantageously.

"The Authority struck at the merits of the Alabama action by a motion to dismiss and on the eve of a hearing the companies abandoned that suit.

"Thereafter and with the Georgia case and a dozen others in various courts still pending the companies again pressed for a preliminary injunction, this time before Federal Judge Gore in Tennessee. There, they procured their injunction and insisted upon framing it broadly enough to enjoin TVA's operations in Georgia.

"The Authority was impelled to bring this to the attention of the Georgia court (Judge Underwood). Thereupon the Georgia company made a sudden move to dismiss the case in Georgia. This the court refused to permit.

"The present order of Judge Underwood enjoining enforcement of the Tennessee decree in Georgia is the only logical outcome. The United States courts cannot afford to permit such unconscionable jockeying with the facilities of the courts of equity. The decision of Judge Underwood is not only in recognition of the burdensome injustice to the Authority, which is inherent in such tactics, but it also signifies that that court in a dignified manner will protect its jurisdiction."

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxines. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 21, 1937.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

The President's inaugural address is pitched in a key of sober resolution. Mr. Roosevelt evidently emerges from the period since the election with the determination to lead "the American people forward along the road over which they have chosen to advance."

It is plain that he considers the result of the November election a mandate to project the policies he has pursued during his first term. This speech is notice even to the running reader that the President is still wedded to the program of a planned prosperity based on the unlimited natural resources of the nation.

In effect, the President elaborates the major thesis of his recent message to congress. At that time, he urged upon the supreme court a more realistic interpretation of the constitution. Now he dwells upon the theme of a democracy triumphing over "blind economic forces and blindly selfish men" in order that the general welfare and secured liberty sought after in the constitutional convention 150 years ago may be preserved in terms of the actualities of today.

It was democracy rising to the height of its great obligation which during the last four years undertook "to bring private autocratic powers into their proper subordination to the public's government." It is the same kind of effective democracy which is now preparing "to erect on the old foundations a more enduring structure for the better use of future generations."

To effectuate that purpose, Mr. Roosevelt believes that "heedless self-interest" must be recognized not merely as "bad morals," but as "bad economics." He holds that—"Out of the collapse of a prosperity whose builders boasted their practicality has come the conviction that, in the long run, economic morality pays. We are beginning to wipe out the line that divides the practical from the ideal, and in so doing we are fashioning an instrument of unimagined power for the establishment of a morally better world."

The President welcomes the era of good feeling which seems to be at hand. "But we realize there can be no era of good feeling save among men of good will." The change in the "moral climate" of America which Mr. Roosevelt discerns as the primary good of the quadrennium just past, justifies the belief that in the same atmosphere "we have set our feet upon the road of enduring progress."

But there is still much ground to be covered before a halt can be called, the President insists. It is under improved conditions that indifference raises its head. It is at this hour when we know that the darkness is behind us that democracy faces a specially crucial challenge. While millions of our people are deprived of the elementary decencies of civilized living, while "one-third of a nation" remains "ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished," the government must continue "to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern."

So "we will not listen to comfort, opportunism and timidity," Mr. Roosevelt declares, but "we will carry on." And thus the pledge is given that the march toward economic morality, toward social justice, toward giving more to those who have too little, rather than greater abundance, to those who already have much: toward a creative democracy, toward security and peace, will be continued "on to the bound of the waste, on to the City of God."

Representative Sol Bloom finds it hard to believe much that he reads in history. Mr. Bloom appears as a sort who will eventually demand a recount of the Dionnes.

Whatever became of the Congo tribe which occasionally ate a tax collector? We never tire of listening to this story.

THE WAY TO LAW OBSERVANCE

Acting Chief Hornsby has issued to every branch of the police force instructions for strict, impartial and unceasing law enforcement. With the instructions went reassurance to enforcement officers that they need not fear that political influences would handicap them in their effort to enforce the law.

The acting chief and the rank and file of the force should have the full support of the public in the carrying out of these instructions.

That the main body of the police department of Atlanta is composed of intelligent and efficient officers who deserve the confidence reposed in them is evidenced by the improvement already observed under the new leadership.

Outstanding is the activity in the traffic division, because violations of the traffic regulations are the most common, the offenders being heedless and careless individuals in all walks of life. Captain Malcom, head of the traffic squad, has instructed his men to "crack down" on all violations of traffic regulations in the effort to bring order out of the chaos that prevails in Atlanta traffic conditions.

There will be no more tearing up of tickets, and no "fixer" can have the charge canceled; every ticket means a case before one of the recorders, who have asserted that the minimum fine for drunken driving will be $52, and that lesser offenses will be handled in accordance with the laws.

Raiding squads have been told to keep up their energetic work against bootlegging, the "bug" and other illicit practices, and to enforce the closing laws against places where beer is sold and where disorderly individuals gather.

Word comes from police headquarters that the present move to enforce laws of the city is not simply a spasmodic campaign to allay public indignation, such as has occurred at intervals in the past.

Certainly if the acting chief's instructions are carried out on a permanent basis, the city will witness a new era in law observance.

A FINE AID TO CITIZENSHIP

Just recently the centennial celebration of Emory University took place and now comes the announcement of the tenth anniversary session of the Institute of Citizenship, which will take place February 8-12, 1937. In the past ten years outstanding men and women of America, as well as other parts of the world, have taken part in the sessions of the institute.

The institute was founded in 1927, the purpose being to stimulate an intelligent interest in public affairs. Emory University was actuated by the search for truth in this field in founding the institute. It has meant much for the cause of good government, not only in Georgia, but throughout the south.

The study of local government is to be stressed at the coming session. Georgia counties sending representatives to take part in the discussions will unquestionably be aided in their participation in The Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Government Awards.

Two noted authorities on local government will lecture at the institute, Dr. Thomas H. Reed, municipal consultant of the National Municipal League, and former Mayor Murray Seasongood, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Dr. Reed is a nationally known authority on county government, having recently made a survey of Jacksonville and Duval county and drew up a charter for their consolidation. Mr. Seasongood as mayor of Cincinnati cleaned up the city and gave it good government. He is past president of the National Municipal League.

In addition to lectures on county government, there will be a round-table on the same subject. This round-table will be headed by Dr. Frank Prescott, of Chattanooga, who for years has been a close student of county government. Dr. George Spicer, of the University of Virginia, will be a leader in this round-table also. Dr. Spicer is chairman of the Virginia commission on county government and is largely responsible for the great improvements in county government there in the past few years. Dean J. T. Askew, of Armstrong Junior College, will be the third leader in the round-table. He has studied county government in this state and knows many facts about it.

Other noted speakers will include Dr. Raymond Buell, president of the Foreign Policy Association of New York, and Dr. Edward S. Corwin, of Princeton University.

The Constitution congratulates the institute on its tenth session. The splendid nature of its program should cause a new record to be made in attendance.

Science is speculating on what might happen if a meteor hit Manhattan. Our thought is it would wire home, after a week, for money.

World's Window

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Notes From a Diary.

Met Jules Romains, the great French novelist, on the street here in New York. Said he: "When I was a boy Christmas used to be the day when I received an orange. To have that perfect, golden apple in my hand was sheer happiness. This Christmas I was banqueted in one of the Venetian salons of a leading hotel. The pontiffs of literature, the editors, stage people and bankers were there with their gorgeous women. The room scintillated with jewels. I never felt so homesick in my life. I almost wept when I thought of the day when Christmas just meant getting an orange."

In nearly two months in New York, I have still to find one individual who will or can sit down quietly and discuss a subject not directly related with some personal interest. People often wonder why life in Europe is so infinitely more charming than in America. There you have one of the reasons.

I had the surprise of my life when I heard that great and rubicund Hollander, savant, historian and biographer of Rembrandt, Dr. Hendrik Willen Van Loon, talk fluently in Russian. But then remembered that he was the first reporter the Associated Press had in Russia after the Bolshevik revolution.

Dr. Van Loon and I talked of the time when the Tercio, the Spanish Foreign Legion, terrorized the Netherlands. Seventy-five thousand men and women tied back to back in Haarlem and thrown into the Spaarne river, 100,000 in Antwerp; every inhabitant of Naarden, men, women and children, jammed into the church and then the building set on fire; a blood bath in Zutphen, and yet in the end they were beaten.

Mijnheer Van Loon is at work on a biography of Rembrandt's immortal kinsman, Lodewijk Van Beethoven, the composer. Curious, when you come to think of it that that race by the shores of the North sea produced the greatest painter, the greatest musician, the greatest international jurist (Grotius), the greatest mystic, Thomas A. Kempis, and the greatest humanist of all times, Desiderius Erasmus.

"We are Americans now," said Dr. Van Loon, "but we surely do not need to be ashamed of our race." I never was and even less, if that were possible, since one of our race became the greatest President America has had. For Mr. Roosevelt, 100 per cent American though he is, has every characteristic of the Dutch race to an astonishing degree, including the facial peculiarities.

A proposal to make the paying of ransom money in kidnaping cases a criminal offense is now before the New York state legislature. Prospective kidnapers ought to be rubbing their hands at the news. For this measure, if passed, would dispose parents to keep knowledge of a kidnaping from the authorities altogether and the collecting part of the ransom would therewith become so much the easier.

A well-known columnist would have his readers believe that Paris is a "debacle" and that virtually nobody wants to live in that God-forsaken village. This is the usual old trick of catering to the rubes out in the woods. Paris is the most beautiful, the most charming and the most glorious city on earth. It is alive with ideas. It is not dollar-mad nor infatuated with the false gliter of Hollywood. Not every room may have a bath and a radio in the Paris hotels. Yet over in Paris, people live.

I passed a shop on Broadway today in which a gent was holding forth to a crowd of the boobeoisie on the subject of health. He argued that "God was a defeatist. He gives us eyes and they are so bad we have to wear glasses. He gives us teeth and they decay." . . . He seemed to have a lot of success with that nonsense amongst the crowd.

Good Morning.

WET WEATHER TALK.

President Eldon Dittemore, of Bowdon College, drops me a line to say that his favorite rain poem is James Whitcomb Riley's "Wet Weather Talk," two stanzas of which I quote:

It hain't no use to grumble and complain;
It's jest as cheap and easy to rejoice—
W'y, rain's my choice.

They hain't no sense, as I san see,
Fer mortals, sich as us, to be
A-faultin' Natchur's wise intents,
And lockin' horns with Providence.

Very good, and thanks to President Dittemore. Truth of the business, if this rainy weather keeps up the consistency which it has observed throughout the first 20 days of 1937, we'll soon be as use to it as we thought we were to sunshine. The excess rainfall thus far this year would indicate that we are steadily heading toward a rainy season in the winter months and a dry season in the spring and summer months. I do not know what the weather bureau people would say about it, but all of us that try to work the soil will probably agree that this tendency has been marked in recent years. Just this time last year we were far in excess on rainfall and then camfe one of the driest Mays and Junes on record, and the dry weather prevailed pretty well until November, when it started in raining again.

It is very easy for us to say that if we had the matter of directing the rainfall, we would spread it out a little more to insure some refreshing showers along in late April and May and June when we are trying to get our crops off on schedule, but maybe what would please farmers and gardeners might not be the best for all the folks; so, in keeping with the wholesome philosophy of the beloved Hoosier poet, let's say, "When God sorts out the weather and sends the rain, w'y, rain's my choice;" and if He sends us a drouth and the crops wilt and the grass parches, we'll take what He sends without complaining.

May I repeat what I tried to say the other morning when talking about the rain, that we are highly favored as compared with our neighbors in the middle west who are struggling with floods and other sections where blizzards and ice storms have wrought havoc. One can only wonder what these blooming fruit trees are going to do when the winds of February and the expected cold gets here, but there's no use worrying about it. I suppose we had as well enjoy the buds and the blossoms, even if they do get killed. And maybe with all this rain, we'll discover another poet, who can tell? I've been waiting for Ralph Jones to write a sonnet on the subject.

New Method.

China has invented a new method of discouraging kidnaping. Marshal Chang, the fellow who snatched Premier Chiang, has been made, we read, the house guest of T. V. Soong, Chiang's brother-in-law.

Two Books.

Two recommended books for insomnia sufferers should be those two recently published, highly popular tomes, "Awake and Remember" and Arouse and Beware."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

NEXT? WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The picture of President Roosevelt standing there with hand upraised naturally prompted some inside speculation among the assembled Democratic clansmen from far and near about who would be occupying that same spot four years hence.

The Democratic politicians' best bet guess seemed to be Governor George Earle, of Pennsylvania. Several other names were mentioned; but none as frequently as his. The ideas advanced were that he comes from a big pivotal eastern state, that he could be counted on to carry on the liberal Roosevelt tradition, that he is in the favor of National Chairman Farley.

Two others mentioned were Agriculture Secretary Wallace and Senator Bennett Clark, of Missouri. The politicos do not care particularly for Wallace, but some feared he might be Mr. Roosevelt's choice. Clark has some active backing already started in the midwest, but his standing with "the organization" is short of altitudinous.

No one made any bets against the possibility of a third term draft of Mr. Roosevelt.

LONE-STAR Not many Republicans came to the inauguration, except the congressional Republicans who could not avoid it. No gathering of the Republicans was needed, however, to disclose the fact that Senator Vandenberg is the only choice the leaders can visualize from this distance. There is some talk of Alf Landon coming to the senate from Kansas next year to take hold, but it is rather indefinite.

Very quietly and naturally, Vandenberg is being pushed forward as the policy leader of the party in congress. While the nominal leaders in and out of congress are being more or less passive, it is Vandenberg who is beginning to determine the party's position by his stand on the issues of the day.

His Republican colleagues seem to feel the party should start earlier this time to build up a man or men.

DASHES When picketing seamen got their first appointment with Commerce Assistant Secretary Monroe Johnson, they walked in and opened the conversation with a little sea-going language. They thissed and thatted the dashed-dashed Copeland law, and a few other odds and ends.

Secretary Johnson is a colonel who took a post-grauate course in picturesque English in the trenches. He jumped up and shouted: "Gentlemen, no one swears in this office except me. If you continue to do so, you will get thrown out dash-dash (how) and dash-dash-dash (where)."

Even the sailors shuddered.

The conference thereafter was as formal as a session of the U. S. supreme court.

ECONOMY Speaker Bankhead did not appoint the expected yes-committee to handle the President's government reorganization program. He chose a couple of economy fighters as hard-boiled as top sergeants to head it, Buchanan, of Texas, as chairman, and Cochrane, of Missouri, as No. 2 man. They are for Roosevelt and for efficiency, but primarily they want more economy than the President requested.

The choice seems to have been Bankhead's own private idea. He is personally a strong economy man, except on farm tenancy and a few other Alabama things.

STUCK You may depend on Agriculture Secretary Wallace to tear down the capitol, stone by stone, unless the sugar processing tax is repassed by congress. Those warm words he spoke the other day in favor of reimposition of the tax were the result of weeks of inner troubles. What led up to the outburst was the refusal of the processors to allow the farmers a large share in spite of the pressure put on them by AAA (in a purely advisory capacity, of course).

Wallace intimated he would scrap the whole quota idea unless congress authorizes the tax. This is strong talk, as the Cuban agreement provides an automatic tariff of 2 cents at the expiration of the quotas. It would mean one of two things: (1) The situation would revert to its 1933 status, with the protected domestic industry in a position to expand and kill the Cuban trade, or else (2) the administration would change the Cuban treaty so the tariff would not go all the way back to 2 cents. Even the phrase "tariff protection" gives low tariff Wallace the creeps, and the second alternative would threaten the domestic industry with extinction.

In other words, Mr. Wallace is up to his ears in the sugar, and it is not dry sugar either. He must get the processing tax authority to save himself, and he probably will.

CO-OPERATION Defeated House Leadership Candidate O'Connor has earned a reputation as a good sport. Several times lately, during the absence of Leader Rayburn in conferences, O'Connor has handled administration matters on the floor of the house. All has been forgiven, or at any rate nearly all.

Peculiarities Of Customs Duties.

Lately have been puzzled, and interested, over the intricacies of the duties one has to pay on articles coming here from foreign countries. A few instances have come to the attention of the old column and they present, collectively, a problem beyond my simple capacity for understanding.

Local lady received a package of Christmas gifts from England. The attached declaration clearly listed two articles as being in the parcel yet when she received it, the package had been torn open and there was only one article inside. It was a hand-knitted garment of wool. And the charge for duty was probably more than it was worth. Anyway, it was more than the declared value on the shippers' statement.

The lady paid, under protest, and wrote a complaint. Her answer, from Washington, merely denied there had been more than one article in the package, despite the declaration of two, and made a statement that the rate for the knitted jacket was half the value plus an additional charge based upon its weight, so much per pound. The charge for weight coming to more than the original, based upon half valuation, thus making the total in excess of the actual total value.

The lady accepted the Washington explanation—what else could she do about it?

Another Woolen Article.

Second instance also concerns a Christmas gift sent to an Atlantan from overseas. This again was a knitted article of wool. A shawl, to be exact. It came from Switzerland. The package was received unopened. And there was no charge for import duty whatsoever.

Why the difference?

Now, let's take a look at a different and yet interesting comparison.

If you visited the Atlanta stores at Christmas time you saw many attractive and desirable articles, suitable for gifts to your friends. Many of them were not made in America.

For instance, in one of our largest department stores, there was a display of really attractive silk pajamas and kimonos. Real silk and hand-embroidered. The price was only one dollar. If you looked carefully you could find the tag informing you the goods were made in Japan.

Now it is self-evident that, to permit sale at one dollar, silk pajamas, hand-embroidered, must take something close to the same tariff duty as the knitted shawl from Switzerland. Certainly not the rate charged for a knitted jacket from England.

Napkins From Jugoslavia.

Another acquaintance, a woman usually meticulous about buying American-made goods, bought some really good, decorated table napkins. She was astonished at the low price, just five cents each. When she got them home and examined them carefully she found they were made in Jugoslavia. What duty did they pay to permit sale, presumably at a profit, at five cents each?

Then there is the mystery of my own Christmas cake and plum pudding.

Every Christmas, for more than twenty years, friends in England have sent me a Christmas cake, plum pudding, mince meat and English toffee. The same size each year, weighing the same amount. During that span of two decades I have paid duty that has never been twice the same. Several years there has been no charge at all and it has ranged upwards from nothing to about $1.50. One year, I remember, the charge was a nickel.

Why?

If any tariff expert can explain all these puzzling, apparent, discrepancies, I'll be interested, to say the least.

Some Ideas About Weather.

Thinking of the unusual weather we have had this winter, looked up an Almanac and found a collection of old-time words of wisdom about the most discussed subject in the world. Here are a few:

If the sun goes down cloudy Friday, sure of a clear Sunday.

If a rooster crows standing on a fence or high place, it will clear. If on the ground, it doesn't count.

Red sunsets bring fine tomorrows.

Fog in the morning, bright sunny day.

If it rains and the sun is shining at the same time, the devil is whipping his wife and it will surely rain tomorrow.

And so forth and so on.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Sunday, January 21, 1912:

"W. L. Peel, president, Atlanta Music Festival Association:

"'Contract signed as authorized. Operas: 'Aida,' 'Pagliacci,' 'Faust,' 'Trovatore,' 'Boheme,' 'Rigoletto,' 'Mona,' or 'Tannhauser.' Six not sung before in Atlanta by Metropolitan. Caruso will sing three performances. Farrar two, on separate nights. Home tomorrow.

VICTOR LAMAR SMITH.'"

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, January 21, 1887:

"Monroe, Ga., January 20.—(Special)—Uncle Billy Smith, the oldest man in Walton county, died yesterday in his 92nd year. He came here when there were but two other white men in the county, and settled with the Indians. He raised a large family of children. His posterity number several hundred."

Brother Governors.

Enoch Lincoln was born in Worchester, Mass., December 28, 1788, son of Levi Lincoln, who refused an appointment as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. Enoch was governor of Maine at the same time his brother, Levi Jr., was governor of Massachusetts.

Old Uniforms.

The first people to wear shirts as political uniform preceded the Fascists and Nazis by two centuries. They were the Protestant peasants of France, who rose against the government in 1702.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Asking Price Of $50,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A little quiet inquiry among my waiter and bartender friends at the height of the coronation festivities inclined me sadly to the belief that some of the recent debuts, New Year parties and similar frivolities of the idle rich were priced by ambulance-chasers.

It is notorious that when a hustling attorney-at-law comes up with a client who has had $15 worth of skin scraped off his nose by a house detective for doing feats of strength in a hotel lobby, the attorney always sets an asking price of $50,000.

My friends among the waiters and bartenders assure me that it is utterly impossible for a thousand guests to eat and drink even $25,000 worth in a night even though the night be stretched on past the coming of dawn and the party calls for scrambled eggs as a sedative.

It appears that the idle rich are by no means careless about their buying when they decide to ring the welkin which may be one of the reasons why they remain rich. The provisions are acquired in the most businesslike manner, with discounts for quantity and cash and though the guests may give their happy spirits full play and do the split and skin the cat from the crystal chandeliers that does not indicate that the host has yielded, too.

It appears that, on the contrary, the host will be keeping a cold, impersonal eye on the hired help to make sure that none of them sends out full champagne bottles among the dead ones or that if he does not wish to check and tally himself he will hire a bookkeeper with a long, thin nose and a Vermont disposition to do this for him.

Great Saving Is Possible

Or, if the racket is being thrown in one of the big hotels to introduce some young lady to her old friends and to several hundred total strangers who are not necessarily worth knowing even at a dollar a head, the business arrangement will call for a flat price, per head, including breakage, music and flowers which latter item gives some salvage when the florist backs up his truck next day to dismantle the charming bower.

Our lavish host is a man or woman of quite different character when going over the price list and the menu with the banquet manager, in advance.

People like those big, careless figures and I suppose it does no harm to give a host credit for sending it in real fast on a big night in the debut and debauchery season.

"They do not all drink champagne," one of my waiter friends reports. "Lots of them drink whisky and if the host can get a Harvard or Yale or Princeton stag away to a fast start with Scotch or Bourbon he is saving money right there because they can hold only so much, but hootch is cheap and you will find that they boost it at the start of the evening.

"Of course, they all probably will switch to wine after a while but by the time the joy becomes unconfined you can start running in the cheap champagne covered with napkins. After an hour or so they do not know the difference between house paint and developing fluid. A great saving is possible."

For another thing, my waiter and bartender friends tell me that the rare viands and exotic delicacies at such parties are pretty much a figure of speech. The rare viands and exotic delicacies consist mainly of chicken salad, liberally stretched with veal and celery, followed by more chicken salad if a stag forgets where he set down his plate. My friends estimate that you could get by for about 50 cents per head on the salad or a mere $500 for a thousand guests.

Booking Agents Furnish Stags

True, some of the young stags who are imported from the ivy circuit do not eat very consistently between debuts and save their appetites for parties. But on the other hand there are always a certain number who pass out cold early in the evening and eat nothing at all. So it averages up at about 50 cents a head for chicken salad.

The music, of course, does some expensive costing for our host but not enough to justify the estimates which are lightly placed on certain festivities and the bower effects are stretched out with storehouse scenery and backdrops and palms of the type which used to stand in all respectable saloons.

To this must be added the cost of importing the stags from the stations on the ivy circuit because the stags are furnished by booking agents, a good deal like the waiters, and they are strictly F. O. B. The hostess merely calls up the booking agents and demands one hundred or two hundred assorted stags and the agents wires them to get their monkey suits pressed because there is a big scoff-touch on the program for Saturday night.

My waiter and bartender friends tell me that you just ought to see the genial host or hostess scraping up the chicken salad and peering under the tables and behind the doors for concealed champagne after the jolly guests have staggered away from a big debut. They insist also that they could guarantee to give one of those $50,000 parties for $25,000 and come up with a nice profit.

Washington Victory.

General George Washington defeated a German army in 1776.

The British thought they had the Revolution won and actually had ordered General Lord Cornwallis' army home, when Washington, having sneaked his 2,400 men across and down the Delaware on Christmas night, fell at dawn upon Colonel Johann Rall's 1,500 Hessian mercenaries as they slept off Christmas jags at Trenton, N. J. Rall was killed, 1,000 men were made prisoners, and 1,200 badly needed rifles, six cannon and large stores of ammunition captured.

For each Hessian killed at Trenton and elsewhere in America, Britain had to pay $35 to Langrave of Hesse-Cassel, who had rented 12,000 troops to his good friend George III for $500,000 a year.

Tough War.

Spanish influenza is in this country again. That gives you an idea of how tough the revolution is over there. Even the germs can't take it.

Domestic Problems Remain Unsolved When Sentiment Interferes With Sense

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Since time immemorial, men have died and left widows in the care of only sons. And thus, unless fortune is kind, the stage is set for a tragedy of life more drear than the tragedy of death.

Strangely enough, the elements that develop the tragedy are commonly regarded as virtues.

There is, first of all, the son's sense of duty. Obligated to support and cherish his mother, he makes no effort to find a mate and establish a new home. He is, first and last, a dutiful son.

This role is made easier for him by his mother's love and experience. She comforts and encourages and praises him, as a good wife would, and keeps his house in order. He can say, in all sincerity, that he doesn't need a wife.

But he was born to love a mate and be a father, and he cannot be wholly normal if his natural capacities are unused. The power of habit may bring him contentment, but middle age will find him lonely and defrauded and his home will be a monastery without the consolation of religion.

If he falls in love and marries, he escapes one danger to face another.

His bride, wise with the age-old wisdom of her sex, wishes to make a new home of her own. But he assumes that she shares his sense of duty, and she tries to live up to his good opinion of her.

"Mother won't live long," says he, "and we must do what we can to make her happy."

His mother knows that the bride is right, but, forced to choose between losing her son and sharing her house with another woman, she takes counsel of her heart, as women always have, and chooses folly rather than wisdom.

The old home becomes a place of torture. Cold good manners give way to bitter enmity. No matter which woman takes charge of the house, the other lives in misery and rebellion of spirit. No kitchen is big enough for two women.

The son also lives in misery, for in this, as in other matters, it still remains true that no man can serve two masters. He will love and comfort both, and listen to both, but his neutrality will please neither and both will reproach him with tears or in silent martyrdom. And his soul will live in torment.

Men learn some things from the experience of others, but they never learn to use common sense in dealing with their loved ones.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

* * * *

"And she sighed 'Though you're ready today, sir,
To flirt when I flutter my fan,
Tomorrow you'll go on your way, sir,
Forgetting the maid of Japan'."

But the maid of Japan refuses to be forgotten, and that is most annoying. The situation has made it necessary for a group of devoted gentlemen to undertake a mission from America to Japan in the interests of some sort of settlement. They arrived this week—Claudius Murchison, of North Carolina; Cason Callaway, of Georgia; Donald Comer, of Alabama, and others intent upon an agreement which will stop Japan's cheap-labor cotton textiles from a threatened destruction of America's foreign and home markets.

* * * *

When Commodore Perry negotiated the treaty with Japan in 1854, which opened the Mikado's empire to western trade, it does not seem to have occurred to him that the economic winds might blow both ways and that the next century would find Japan storming markets of the west with her own goods.

* * * *

Today, America sends to Japan each year about $90,000,000 worth of raw cotton and receives from Japan about that value in silk. Against these great items of export and import the value of the cotton textiles that come from Japan to the United States, approximately $3,000,000 in 1936, is slight, But it is over twice as great as it was four years ago and is growing larger each year. Back of it, making it possible today and perhaps overwhelming tomorrow, is cheap labor, girls under 14 working more than eight hours daily for less than 25 cents a day. "People who complain of the south's wage differential ought to consider Japan's," thinks Donald Comer. As a New Dealer and a social-minded industrialist, Mr. Comer has been loyal to administration moves for higher wages and better living standards in America, but he thinks they make necessary some sort of protection against countries where no such wages or standards prevail.

* * * *

Whether it succeeds or not, the textile mission to Japan poses some pretty problems for the south. The biggest single item in southern economy is export cotton. And Japan is the biggest customer for that cotton. Certainly the south cannot afford to jeopardize $90,000,000 worth of raw cotton to Japan in order to escape a mere $3,000,000 of cotton textiles from Japan.

But the south's biggest customer of all, as Donald Comer points out, is not Japan, but the cotton textile mills of the United States, 80 per cent of whose spindles are now in the south. Southern cotton mills are not only the biggest customers of southern cotton farmers, but are also partners with them, says Mr. Comer, in the struggle against southern poverty, in the effort to keep profits and wages at home and to have the excess products and populations of southern farms absorbed. He calls attention to a recent address at the University of Georgia in which David Lilienthal, of TVA, declared that "unless the south is able to process a substantial part of the raw products it produces, it will continue to struggle against overwhelming economic odds. While he believes some amicable agreement can be arrived at in Tokyo, he is certain that if the south must choose between her Japanese customers for cotton and her own southern ones, there can be no doubt of the wisdom of choosing the southern ones. He has hopes, however, of a triangular arrangement which will avoid any sort of trade war or Japanese reprisals against American cotton. He wants Japan to sell her textiles to low-wage countries like Brazil and Columbia and China and pay us for our raw cotton in the products of these countries, coffee from Brazil and Columbia, tea from China, rubber and tin from the West Indies, sugar and oils from the Philippines.

* * * *

The situation is recited here without prejudice. We have our own ideas on these matters, but what impresses us at the moment is that they are matters involving the basic economy of the south and requiring vital decisions in one direction or another.

Talmudic Tales

THE SCOLDING WIFE.

The next day, when the young man was at work, the rabbi called upon her and said:

"Your husband is using every spare moment he can find to study because he is ambitious to better his lot and also yours."

"Do you not realize that if he is able to obtain a better position, you will likewise benefit?

"Instead of constantly scolding, you could make it much easier for your husband if you co-operated with him.

"His duty is to support you. However, his worthy ambition is to improve his position by study.

"You, his wife, likewise have an obligation. I know your task is hard, but if you will follow this advice you will help your husband and by so doing you will also be loyally performing your duty."

She was much impressed with the good man's words and after a few minutes' thought she said:

"You are right, rabbi, I have been thinking only of my own self. I am willing to sacrifice a few pleasures now for the sake of greater future reward."

History relates that, with the co-operation of his wife, he became a great scholar, who brought honor to his family and his people.

Due to the extensive interest in Talmudic Tales, 128 of the legends and over 500 Pearls of Wisdom have been published in an attractive book of 195 pages, handsomely bound in grained blue vellum cloth, with gold-stamped title. $182,340 PAY REFUND FORWARDED TO 2,000 CITY SCHOOL WORKERS

New Budget Being Drawn Up on Basis of $2,745,738 Sighted Revenue.

As a $182,340 refund on salary cuts was sent out to approximately 2,000 employes of the Atlanta school department, officials yesterday began the task of making up the 1937 school budget on the basis of anticipated revenue of $2,745,738.

T. W. Clift, school business manager, said checks representing from 2 to 6 per cent of annual salaries were mailed to teachers and school employes yesterday.

More Cuts Seen.

It was estimated that the 1937 school budget will be balanced with cuts from 4 to 30 per cent from basic pay for all workers in the school department, as it was last year.

From revenue, anticipated as 30 per cent of the collections made by the city of Atlanta, the schools expect to receive $2,518,766, and $226,972 from the state, non-resident students and vocational contributions.

These sums represent approximately $30,000 more than the anticipated revenue in 1936 but increased interest rate on bonds and automatic salary increases and increments will probably prohibit any of the amount being used in reducing the salary cuts, it was said. Increasing costs of all types of materials and a large appropriation for textbooks will also be counted in the new budget against the increased anticipation.

No New Building Fund.

The budget will not provide for new buildings and class rooms, since the department has $255,212 for such purposes on hand. Four projects are now underway, and 11 others are planned. Clift said the E. L. Connally school building, in West End, costing approximately $50,000, is to be completed within a month.

The business manager said $17,416 will be set up in the 1937 budget for the sinking fund and interest on bonds, and that the cost of textbooks will be $5,000 greater this year that last. He said the budget will contemplate no new employes.

NOTED FLIER PLANS OCEAN STRATO HOP

Chamberlain To Demonstrate Feasibility of Attitude Flights in Light Planes.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Clarence Chamberlin, the aviator who followed Lindbergh across the Atlantic 10 years ago, will undertake a stratosphere flight across the same ocean within two months, he said here today.

Colonel Chamberlin, who is wintering in this city, said that Mrs. Chamberlin would accompany him on the flight if the plane can carry the extra weight and oxygen supply for a passenger.

"Our ship is really ready now and all we are waiting on is a government export release on the motor we are to use," said Chamberlin. "These negotiations are being carried on by the company that made the motor, and all we can do is wait."

The destination of the flight will depend on where his associates, who are interested in the commercial side of the venture, can get the most favorable contracts, Chamberlin explained. He believes it will be either London or Paris, with the start from New York.

"The purpose of my stratosphere flight will be to demonstrate the feasibility of high-altitude air-taxi flights across the Atlantic in light, fast, oxygen-equipped planes," Chamberlin said.

CALIFORNIA OIL WELL IS DEEPEST IN WORLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Drilling nine feet beyond the two-mile mark, engineers of the Tide Water Associated Oil Company brought in the deepest oil well in the world, the company announced today.

"McGonigle No. 12," the new well's official title, is in the Ventura avenue field, in California, and is 10,569 feet deep.

"McGonigle" takes the record from "No. 5 Rigolette" of the Texas Company in the LaFitte field, Jefferson parish, Louisiana, 10,244 feet deep.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

TWO TO BE ORDERED TO JAIL IN FRAUDS

Fulton Court Gets Remittiturs on Turnipseed and DeKrasner.

Remittiturs from the court of appeals upholding the sentences of Robert F. Turnipseed and Norman DeKrasner, Atlanta attorneys, convicted in connection with the fake damage claim racket, were received in Fulton superior court yesterday afternoon, signed and made the order of the lower court by Judge Paul S. Etheridge, presiding in the first criminal division of criminal court.

The orders will be issued this morning and turned over to the sheriff authorizing him to commit the defendants to jail, William H. Spratling, chief deputy clerk of the criminal division, said.

Turnipseed was convicted on three counts of cheating and swindling February 4, 1935, and sentenced to serve 12 months on each count, the sentences to run concurrently. He appealed to the court of appeals where the lower court's decision was upheld. Later he again carried the case up on an extraordinary motion for appeal and this is the question on which the high court passed.

DeKrasner was convicted on two misdemeanor counts in connection with the damage claim racket and received two 12 months sentences to run concurrently. He was convicted February 23, 1935. Both cases have been in the high courts since then.

LOUISIANA ROAD BONDS SOLD AT RECORD PRICE

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Louisiana Highway Commission sold $12,000,000 of bonds today for the highest price the state ever received for road securities.

The bonds were sold in two blocs, one of $5,500,000 designated as Series "Q" and the other, designated Series "R" to a syndicate headed by the Hibernia National Bank of New Orleans.

The syndicate offered a premium of $15,600 on the entire $12,000,000 and agreed to pay 3 3-4 per cent interest on Series "R."

The bonds are part of a $30,000,000 issue authorized by constitutional amendment for additional road and bridge construction and other purposes.

FLORIDAN IS ACQUITTED IN KIDNAP-MUTILATION

CLEARWATER, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—F. W. Switzer, former Tampa policeman charged with participating in the abduction of Robert M. Cargell, was acquitted in circuit court today by a jury that remained out less than 30 minutes.

Cargell, a St. Petersburg attorney, was kidnaped and mutilated in March, 1935. The victim identified Switzer as one of the band that perpetrated the act.

GEORGIA RELIEF LOAD DROPS 29.6 PER CENT SINCE JANUARY, 1936

Skilled Labor Group Depleted by 41 Pct, Semi-Skilled by 40.4 Pct.

Skilled laborers are rapidly drifting from Georgie WPA and other relief agency rolls into private employment, it was revealed yesterday in a report released by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state relief administrator.

A 41 per cent decrease was shown in the number of skilled workers on relief rolls from January 10, 1936, to the corresponding date this year, while the decrease in the unskilled labor ranks amounted to only 22.5 per cent.

Semi-skilled workers are being absorbed by industry at practically the same rate as that of skilled labor, the decrease amounting to 40.4 per cent, while "white collar" workers followed closely behind, the percentage of decrease being 38.8 per cent.

Total Decrease 29.6 Per Cent.

Unskilled labor comprised approximately 65 per cent of the "labor load" of WPA and other relief agencies.

As a result, the total "labor load" has decreased only 29.6 per cent.

The report revealed there has been an increase in the number of inexperienced persons working and certified for jobs since January of 1936. This classification, WPA officials said, covers those entering the business world for the first time, and the group is placed in the classification of unskilled labor.

The smallest decrease was shown in the "farm laborers and operatives" classification, with only 18 per cent being absorbed. This group comprises the largest number of eligible workers in any single occupational group.

More Women Get Jobs.

The return of prosperity, however, has resulted in a decrease of 64.8 per cent in the "domestic and personal service" classification.

More women than men secured employment in private industry, the report demonstrated 33.5 per cent leaving rolls, while only 28 per cent of the men obtained other work.

The total decrease in numbers was 20,709, a drop from 52,813 to 32,104.

Conscientious Flyer Saved by Telegram

The nick-of-time arrival of a telegram yesterday saved a contempt of court charge against W. C. Rogers, commercial airline pilot and nephew of the late Will Rogers.

Rogers, who was arrested last week by Motorcycle Patrolman W. L. Jay on a speeding charge, was due for arraignment before Recorder A. W. Callaway. His name was called, but he failed to answer.

Just as the recorder was about to hold him in contempt of court, a messenger boy arrived with a telegram from New Orleans, in which Rogers explained bad weather had grounded his ship there, causing his inability to attend the hearing.

The case was then postponed until January 27.

2 KILLED, 2 STRICKEN BY POISONOUS DRINK

OCALA, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Physicians blamed poisonous alcohol today for the death of two men and serious illness of two others.

James Kelly, 38, and Vernon Mason, 28, roommates, died yesterday. Odell Kelly, brother of James, was not expected to live. William Mormon, 20, was less seriously affected but under close medical observation.

All four were unemployed and were found in a squalid apartment where they lived. Sheriff Gordon Morehead said his investigation showed the men drank the liquid thinking it was a cheap intoxicant.

REV. M. J. GALLAGHER SUCCUMBS IN DETROIT

Bishop Dies in Sound Sleep After Going to Hospital for Throat Ailment.

DETROIT, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Most Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Detroit, died in Providence hospital tonight. He was 70 years old.

The prelate, who had been suffering from a throat ailment 10 days, was taken to the hospital only today.

The bishop's housekeeper became alarmed when he failed to awaken from a sound sleep late in the day and she summoned a physician.

Dr. Ray Andries examined Bishop Gallagher and ordered him taken to the hospital immediately. He died within a few hours.

Bishop Gallagher visited the Vatican a few months ago.

He is the immediate superior of Father Charles E. Coughlin, of Royal Oak, and frequently defended Father Coughlin's activities over the radio and as head of the National Union for Social Justice.

Bishop Gallagher, however, announced last fall that he favored the re-election of President Roosevelt. Father Coughlin earlier had ceased to support the President and attacked him bitterly in several addresses.

RELIEF CONFERENCE SCHEDULED TONIGHT

City Councilmen, County Commissioners and Solons Will Map Plans.

Members of city council and the Fulton county commission will confer with DeKalb and Fulton county legislators at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the city hall in an effort to determine means of raising additional funds to care for the county's needy on relief roles.

The county has announced it will donate $25,000 per month for relief and the city council finance committee last week set aside an appropriation of $75,000 for relief in its 1937 budget.

This provides $375,000 with which the board of public welfare is to operate in 1937. Last year they operated on a budget of slightly over $600,000 and found that sum insufficient, Frank Miller, director of the board, said.

The city's 1936 appropriation was $40,000 per month but after the first three months only $29,000 per month was paid.

Commissioner Charles R. Adams said last night the commissioners realized the grave situation confronting the county and city in caring for the large number of unemployed and disabled families and would do all they could to aid them. The $300,000 appropriation is all the county can afford, he said.

The county announced last week it would match any amount given by the city for relief in Atlanta and then would provide the remainder of the $300,000 toward caring for the needy in the county outside city limits.

Legislators will be asked to aid the city and county in providing for the needy as many needy in Atlanta, while not on the relief rolls, are from all sections of the state.

Curtailment of relief activities and the dropping of some families in destitute circumstances will be necessary if more money cannot be secured, Miller stated.

SLATON, HARTSFIELD DISCUSS 'OLD TIMES'

Professor W. M. Slaton, former superintendent of city schools, was a visitor at the mayor's office in the city hall yesterday.

Professor Slaton was principal of Boys' High school when Mayor Hartsfield attended it. They discussed old times.

The former school superintendent is a brother of former Governor John M. Slaton. He was accompanied yesterday by his son, John M. Slaton Jr.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Raymond Ohmer, 45, manager of the cash register division of the Ohmer Meters Company, of Dayton, Ohio, collapsed in a branch office of the company here today and died before the arrival of a physician. A physician said death apparently was due to a heart ailment.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

MRS. DAVIS ASKS WRIT FOR PENSION STANDING

Judge Moore Sets Hearing on Mandamus for January 29.

Petition for a mandamus forcing the Atlanta Police Pension Board to reinstate her in good standing was filed yesterday by Mrs. Lora Davis, policewoman, in Fulton superior court.

Last week the pension board refused to reinstate her and ordered that all money paid into the fund by Mrs. Davis be returned. She was dismissed from the force early last year and was reinstated last July on the order of Fulton superior court, which held she was under civil service and could not be dismissed without cause. Since her reinstatement on the force, the pension committee has not replaced her name on the pension eligibility lists.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore ordered a hearing on the mandamus set for January 29. Defendants in the action are B. Graham West, city comptroller; Henry Kennedy, treasurer; Lieutenant E. W. Ginn, Bryon Benson and C. F. Allen, members of the committee.

2 ATLANTANS TESTIFY IN TENNESSEE KILLING

State Calls Man, Daughter From Here as Surprise Witnesses.

An Atlanta man and his daughter were surprise prosecution witnesses yesterday at Ducktown, Tenn., as trial got under way in which three men are charged with killing D. W. McFadden, Asheville, N. C., road contractor, last May 17.

The Atlanta witnesses were Mrs. Manning K. Syfan, wife of a machinist inspector for the Seaboard Air Line railroad, and her father, A. E. Bearden, a barber, both of 156 Olympic place, Decatur.

Mrs. Syfan gave a vivid, eyewitness account of the killing, testifying she saw the climax of the shooting on a detour road near Isabella, Tenn., a half mile inside the North Carolina-Tennessee state line. The Atlantans were motoring through the section at the time.

The defendants are Emmett Gaddis, Lloyd Parton and Clarence Brooks. At a preliminary hearing, Gaddis, a former deputy sheriff of Polk county, pleaded self defense, alleging he was wounded by McFadden.

KIWANIS LEADER PRAISES HORNSBY

Educational Chairman Barker Addresses 22d Anniversary Luncheon.

Acting Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby was praised yesterday at a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club by Ralph C. Barker, of Durham, N. C., chairman of the International Committee on Kiwanis education.

Speaking at the 22nd anniversary luncheon session, Barker praised "the face of determination" of Chief Hornsby, and then declared that the responsibility for decreasing traffic accidents was that of members of the club.

Barker urged proper employment of leisure time for youths, and told club members "we want better men if there are to be better boys—they mimic you." He said boys must "get it out of their heads they can loaf and step into administrative positions when they grow up."

COCA-COLA IS WINNER IN FOUR COURT CASES

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Four federal injunctions against individuals and firms accused of imitating the name or other features of Coca-Cola have been issued here in the last few days.

In each of the cases Federal Judges George H. Moore or Charles B. Davis approved decrees in favor of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Atlanta, Ga., against St. Louis firms.

The orders permanently enjoin the defendants from "marketing any product under the name 'Kola,' 'Cola' or any similar to Coca-Cola."

90,762 Auto Tags Are Sold Up to Date

Georgia auto tag sales totalled 90,762 yesterday, 22,475 ahead of the same date last year, Director Marcus L. McWhorter, of the motor vehicle division, reported today.

McWhorter estimated more than 225,000 tags will be sold before the first-of-the-year rush period is over, leaving some 75,000 to be sold during the balance of the year.

The last day set by law for purchasing tags is February 1 and there has been no notice of an extension of time.

Tags sales to February 1 last year were only 163,884, but an extension to March 1 was given.

BANKRUPTCY CHARGE FACES NOTED LAWYER

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—An affidavit charging Dudley Field Malone with concealing assets from a bankruptcy trustees was filed in federal court today, and the accusation was instantly and categorically denied by the widely known lawyer.

The charge was made in the affidavit of Alfred C. Frodel, who gave a New York city address, in opposing Malone's application for a bankruptcy discharge made last December 17.

The "Monroe" doctrine was enunciated by President Monroe in his message to congress December 2, 1823.

POLICY CANCELLATIONS SENT DIRECT TO FIRMS

Rivers' Secretary Says Further Action Awaits Governor's Return.

Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, said yesterday cancellation notices on approximately $6,000,000 of insurance on state buildings went direct to the 62 companies involved and not to agents who placed it.

Former Governor Talmadge was reported to have placed the insurance with the aid of Jesse Draper and Eugene Oberdorfer Jr., Atlanta agents and his close personal and political friends.

The insurance would have run until shortly before Rivers' two-year term expires.

The Governor recently appointed a committee headed by John L. Conner, of Atlanta, to reprorate the insurance and to seek adjustments in rates and types of policies.

Musgrove said a committee meeting probably would not be held until Conner returns from the Roosevelt inauguration in Washington.

Premiums on the insurance total approximately $70,000.

VAN DER VEER NAMED YAARAB TEMPLE HEAD

New Potentate Unanimously Chosen To Succeed Roy Mather.

Noble Francis Edwin Van der Veer was unanimously chosen potentate of Yaarab temple last night at the annual meeting, held in the Spanish room of Shrine mosque.

He succeeds Potentate Roy S. Mather, who declined to serve a second term, following one of the most successful administrations since the depression.

Other officers advanced were Noble Claude N. Hughes to chief rabban; Noble William J. Draper to assistant rabban; Noble Wilbur F. Glenn to high priest and prophet; Noble Barnes E. Sale to oriental guide Noble Frank A. Cundell was re-elected recorder and Noble James S. Floyd was re-elected treasurer.

Imperial Outer Guard Tom C. Law, a past potentate of Yaarab temple, and ex-officio a member of the imperial council, presided during the election of officers. Past Potentate Henry C. Heinz, who is a member of the board of trustees of the Shrine's Hospital for Crippled Children, was re-elected a representative to the imperial body for his 19th visit. Other representatives chosen were Potentate Francis E. Van der Veer, Wesley Hirshburg, "daddy" of Yaarab temple's brass band, and Abit Nix, of Athens.

Past Potentate Roy S. Mather and Assistant Rabban William J. Draper were chosen representatives to the Southeastern Shrine Association. Potentate Van der Veer and Recorder Frank A. Cundell are representatives ex-officio. Past Potentate Dewald A. Cohen, of Yaarab temple, is president of the association and Hiram R. Romans, past potentate of Yaarab, is the secretary-treasurer.

An impressive ceremony in memory of nobles who have "passed within the unseen temple" within the past year was conducted by Past Potenate Cohen, assisted by Yaarab band and chanters.

Certificates and medals for distinguished service were presented to Past Potenate Dewald A. Cohen, Orator W. Frank Luckiesh and Bartis E. Goodman, chairman of the charity committee.

Nobles of Yaarab patrol receiving 15-year service bars were F. W. Griffin, J. N. McDonald, P. R. Miller, A. P. Sears, W. B. Potts and Captain Glover E. Thrash. J. C. Crawford received a 10-year service medal.

Noble Cal Barber, of Yaarab band, received a 20-year medal, and Nobles W. M. Bumstead, Simon Titlebaum, Sydney Ruskin, J. W. Thompson and Park Williamson received 20-year service bars. B. F. Tant, M. Greenburg and P. J. Schoneick received 10-year medals.

Curtis Buford and the chanters received a 20-year service bar; Charles Chalmers, C. V. Logan and Leroy Webb, 15-year bars, and Edward Anchirs a 10-year medal.

Of the Oriental band members Bradford Byrd, P. A. Griswold and Sam Hawkins were awarded 15-year service bars, and W. A. Phillips, W. N. Daniel, Julius McMillan, Roy L. Cowan, R. L. Lassiter and J. K. Morrow were awarded 10-year medals for service in that organization.

PERKINS, G. M. CHIEFS CONFER ON STRIKE END

men it describes as "clearly trespassers" remain in the plants. Martin, leaving for Washington tonight, said "there will be no change in the union's determination to hold the men in the plants until negotiations with the company are completed."

Non-union employes of the Baltimore Fisher plant prepared for a "sitdown" demonstration in Washington tomorrow unless the federal government takes steps to end the strikes. They voted such action to "show that the employes are satisfied with working conditions here (in Baltimore) and do not want to belong to a union."

A Chevrolet plant adjoining the Baltimore Fisher factory is scheduled to shut down tomorrow affecting 1,200 workers.

Settlements of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company strike today and brightened prospects in the Libby-Owens-Ford strike were welcomed by automobile manufacturers whose stocks of glass had dwindled to small proportions, endangering production schedules.

The glass shortage has been credited with responsibility for part of the General Motors shutdowns. The striking Federation of Flat Glass Workers are affiliated with Committee for Industrial Organization and have a "joint council" with the automobile workers.

Men wearing U. A. W. A. buttons participated today in picketing the office of the Flint trolley coach, whose drivers have been on strike since December 8 demanding a 20-cent increase in their 55-cent hourly wage. The management denied reports that an attempt to operate the buses had been planned, and said none of today's pickets was a company employe. The automobile workers have supported the striking bus drivers who were suspended by their American Federation of Labor union.

Women prepared for possible service on strike lines at Flint, with organization of the "women's emergency brigade" composed of women who have husbands, sons or brothers engaged in the General Motors strike. Mrs. Geora Johnson, the leader, a 23-year-old mother of two children, said the purpose was "to be on hand in any emergency" and that the members, claimed to number 50, were prepared to "form a line around the men" in event of any disturbance.

Harlow H. Curtice, Buick president, said the immediate cause of that plant's shutdown was lack of materials in some departments and overstock of finished work in others. The final assembly line was suspended 20 days ago because of lack of bodies produced by the strike-closed Fisher plant No. 1. There were 9,183 hourly rate workers employed today before the shutdown; some 5,000 had been laid off earlier.

A 23-day "sitdown" strike by U. A. W. A. members at the Bohn Aluminum Company's plant No. 3 here was settled late today with agreement by the company to put 500 employes back to work on a minimum hourly wage of 65 cents for men and 50 cents for women, and to rehire a worker whose discharge precipitated the strike.

New Strikes.

New strikes broke out over the United States.

One, which union leaders said they would support although it had not been called by them, closed the Kelly-Springfield tire plant at Cumberland, Md., affecting 1,800 workers.

Two men operating a crane in the steel products division of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company at Akron, Ohio, started a strike that spread to 700 men.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, began conferences in Toledo, Ohio, in an effort to settle a strike of 270 gas workers.

Terre Haute, Ind., continued without street car or bus service and striking employes announced intention of asking a state inquiry into the Indiana railroad receivership. The strike occurred unexpectedly Sunday in a demand for a 20 per cent wage increase.

The west coast maritime deadlock remained unbroken. It equalled the 83-day record of the 1934 walkout and more than doubled it in cost. The Pacific tieup left 223 ships in dock and 40,000 seamen idle and sent the loss up to nearly $600,000,000 at a rate of $7,000,000 a day.

Leaders of a livestock handlers' union in East St. Louis asked authority in a mail ballot sent to 300 members to call a strike in wage and hour demands.

Defer Mine Decision.

Conciliators seeking to avert a "sit down" strike in the iron ore mines of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, at Birmingham, worked to end differences between union members and the T. C. I. as final action was deferred until the week end.

The management of the Marshall Field Mills Corporation, at Philadelphia, posted notices in one of the company's two mills where 70 men began a sit-down strike yesterday, announcing the textile plant would be closed permanently.

Labor difficulties in Maine ended tonight when 600 strikers at the Somerset Shoe Company's two plants at Skowhegan voted to accept the management's proposal for a February 1 wage adjustment.

GORMLEY IS SELECTED BANK SUPERINTENDENT

By L. A. FARRELL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Governor Rivers announced definitely here today that he intends to send to the senate the name of R. E. Gormley, of Cuthbert, as state superintendent of banks. The Constitution last week made known the definite selection of Gormley, a former bank superintendent, and Mr. Rivers confirmed it today.

Gormley will succeed John Beasley, of Glennville, who was named by Governor Talmadge the day before his retirement from office. The Governor said that Beasley and Gormley had been in conference in Atlanta and that the Glennville man was ready to step out. This appointment will go to the senate Monday, as will those of W. L. Miller, of Lakeland, chairman of the Highway Board; Judge J. B. Jones, chairman of the Revenue Commission, and others.

As far as can be learned Governor Rivers still intends to appoint E. Jack Smith, of Macon, as an engineer-member of the Highway Board, succeeding W. E. Wilburn, of Oglethorpe, as board member. Miller's place on the board is the one formerly held by Judge Max L. McRae, of McRae.

Governor Rivers will remain in Washington tomorrow to attend the meeting of the Democratic national committee. He plans to be back in Atlanta early Saturday.

CONVICT CONFESSES SLAYING OF TROOPER

a man later identified as Benoit knocked on the door of a farm house near Fetterman, occupied by Paul Balog, 56, his wife and two children. The man asked Balog and his son, Steve, 16, to help him dig his car out of the mud. Balog said later the man threatened to shoot them if they didn't do it.

They went to the barnyard, Balog said, where the man declared he was the one who shot the trooper, and with two guns—one his own and the other taken from Hammond—forced the Balogs to start their pickup truck and drive him toward Monroe.

At the edge of the city they were met by state police, but Benoit, who was driving, swerved his car, narrowly missing the trooper who sought to question him, and eluded capture.

Drove Around.

Balog said they drove around in the vicinity of Monroe for an hour, dodging police cars by driving in private lanes and leaving lights off, but finally again aproached the intersection of Michigan state route 50 and Telegraph road, where Benoit and John Smith, 29, alias Delberto, had been arrested by Troopers Hammond and Sam Sineni last night as suspects in the kidnaping of Fred Williams, a Detroit used car salesman.

As Benoit dodged into a driveway, a state police car followed and fired one rifle shot into the back of the truck, Balog told newspapermen. The bullet penetrated the end gate and the seat on which the trio sat, but failed to strike any of them.

Balog said Benoit resisted when four troopers sought to handcuff him, but that when he saw the number facing him he was quiet.

Slayer Bleeding.

When he arrived at the sheriff's office, he was bleeding profusely from a gash in his forehead over his right eye. He was shoved by police and deputy sheriffs into a room, where a blanket was drawn over the window.

An hour later the sheriff announced the confession.

A crowd gathered outside the jail, but there was no sign of disorder.

Benoit faces a first-degree murder charge, issued late today by Municipal Judge John P. Faucher, and kidnaping warrants obtained by Department of Justice agents in Detroit. The kidnaping warrants were issued after it was asserted Williams had been taken to Toledo after his abduction in Detroit.

ROOSEVELT SWORN IN AS RAIN POURS DOWN

and bedraggled before it was done. The silk top hats were not at all fitted for the scene, yet they did not seem out of place.

They sat there in the blowing, blustering rain while Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke. He spoke of the need for giving a better chance to all the people, a security and a helping hand to the common man whom he had rescued from oblivion and from the grip of an economic system which had plunged the country into the greatest crisis it had ever known. This was the same man who was inaugurated four years ago amid scenes of depression and despair and a belief by many that the inauguration might be the last one of its kind.

Nation On Way Back.

But today he took over the second term with a nation on the way back to prosperity and with a social security planned for all of the people.

When he was done the marine band, drenched and with the instruments water filled and soaked, played the "Star-Spangled Banner," the national anthem.

Many, many years have gone by since that song was writen as the grim colonials, ill-fitted for war, fought and won. Each morning the Star-Spangled Banner was still there. And today it floats on the seven seas and it represents a nation more strongly democratic than ever before and with a man as President who more than any other man guarantees the provisions of the constitution of the United States.

And that, too, was a great moment, as the great band crashed out the music of the anthem and the crowd stood there in the rain, bare of head, looking at the Star-Spangled Banner that waved in the wind and rain-swept air.

And then he was gone. He rode in an open car, disdaining a closed one, saying that if the people could take the weather to see him, he too, would take it.

And so, dripping with rain, he and Mrs. Roosevelt rode back to the White House through lanes of cheering people. He waved his soaked top hat at them and smiled.

President Greets Rivers.

There was a brief hiatus then. Governor and Mrs. Rivers, of Georgia, were among the guests at a White House luncheon where the President affectionately greeted Ed Rivers, the gallant little fighter who entered the lists for democracy and defeated the malicious and vicious efforts to turn the party in Georgia over to the forces of self-seekers.

Some of the soaked crowd had been sitting in chairs along the parade route since 10 o'clock in the morning, awaiting the inaugural parade. There were thousands of them there even though other thousands could not brave the rain.

I went early to the press stand directly across from the reproduction of the Hermitage, Andrew Jackson's old Tennessee home, from which the President was to review the parade.

They had built him a glassed-in booth on the veranda.

When I got there the workmen were tearing it away. He would not stand under cover when the people who wanted to see him and the men who had to march in the parade were unprotected.

Proud Little Granddaughters.

And so he stood there with Vice President Garner and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the Democratic war President, and with two very proud little granddaughters, and close friends, to see the parade representing some of the nation's might.

There was a stretching and a looking toward Constitution avenue. The parade was moving from the capitol plaza where the crowd had heard the inaugural, and would swing into historic old Pennsylvania avenue, a few blocks down from the reviewing stand.

The reviewing stand, built along the street, was beautiful. It was an exact reproduction of the front of Old Hickory's home, even to the climbing roses growing up the front.

There was a roar of engines and 50 motorcycles with Washington policemen riding them moved down the avenue. And then far away came the music of a band. But first there were automobiles bearing the visiting Governors from 38 states and visiting Democratic dignitaries from the others. Even Vermont and Maine were there, glad to have a part in being back with the nation once more.

Then the Army Band.

And then came the army band, stepping along, the leader putting his baton at attention as he passed the President.

And then more cars. I waited for Ed Rivers, of Georgia. They came at last, the cars with the Georgia ribbon on them. The stands gave the state a great cheer and the President had for them one of his finest smiles and one of the most vigorous waves of his hat.

Riding in the car nearest the reviewing stand were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rivers. And in the others came chiefs of his staff.

The navy band went by, their blue coats soaked as were those of all others. They were playing briskly, the old tune "Anchors Aweigh."

There were more cars and then came the cadets from West Point. This is a great nation of ours that has grown under the star-spangled banner and the cadets from the Point and from the other military schools of the nation are among our finest young men.

Swinging Along.

They too, inspired an emotion of pride and respect. They came swinging along, their gray and red-trimmed overcoats neat and trim despite the rain; with bayonets fixed on their rifles.

They were grand to see as they swung from old Pennsylvania avenue, giving a sharp eye left to the President and moving along like so many machines as they marched in platoon fronts.

There was one humorous incident. Just back of me a beautiful young lady suddenly began to leap up and down and shriek out a boy's name.

She was pointing and yelling and the young man cut his eyes over without moving his head. A smile went down the line of the platoon and the crowd roared with laughter. The young man was much embarrassed.

They went on, the noise of their marching feet muffled by the rubbers they wore over their shoes, sounding as if it were coming from far away.

Like Black River.

The parade of a part of the nation's might continued. The midshipmen came by, all in blue.

The coast guard academy, wearing blues and leggings, were equally as smart.

And then came the regulars. The marines, with their band leading, were a feature. They came by with a great flourish of trumpets and a crashing, jaunty tune: "Johnny Get Your Gun, Get Your Gun."

The Civilian Conservation Corps came by, getting a great hand. Other administrations had left the youth of the land to go to hobo jungles, into crime and to roam the highways. President Roosevelt had said the eager minds of the young people should not be wasted. And he created the CCC, one of the great accomplishments of his administration. They were a fine group, swinging along in their khaki colored overcoats and their work gloves.

The National Youth Administration followed, young boys and girls, being given a chance under the guidance of this man who is carrying out all the provisions of the constitution and not merely those which protect selfish interests.

Bluejackets and Coast Guard.

The bluejackets marched by. The coast guard followed. The landing force and beach apparatus came by.

And then the coast artillery came, with the trim, grim guns and the field pieces with the soldiers riding the caissons rolling along. There were great searchlights on trucks, there were anti-aircraft guns.

And there were some horses. Their clopping feet made a curious sound there on the avenue. It went clop, clop, clop, a sound repeated a thousand times by hundreds of horses' hoofs.

The standards of colors moved by and the crowd stood with bared heads to greet them.

In High Good Humor.

President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner were in high good humor. They laughed and talked between units of the parade. And once Garner leaned over and whispered something and they both laughed.

At last it was done and as the graying shadows of dusk began to fall, the crowd disappeared, taking the streets and moving toward home, hotels and trains.

There were 10,526 participants in this parade and it was the smallest one in years, President Roosevelt having insisted on a simple ceremony. These figures included 8,804 marchers, 692 mounted, 261 vehicles, 1,130 passengers in the vehicles and 17 bands.

The parade required an hour and 40 minutes to pass a given point, one person was killed watching the parade, falling from a wet roof and plunging nine stories to death. Another person was killed by train and more than a score of persons, including a West Point cadet and a Boy Scout, required treatment at hospitals for exposure. It was a very raw day.

The Georgia delegation, wet, weary but still happy, was preparing to enjoy the evening before leaving for home at 3 o'clock on Thursday morning.

Many of them were going to the southern states dance. Others were going to shows.

Governor Rivers and Mrs. Rivers attended a tea at the White House after the parade.

"It was great," said Georgia's governor. "The President's speech was just what we expected, a pledge to carry out the program of the New Deal which the nation wants and which Georgia is proud to have a part in helping accomplish." And so ended the day. The captains and the kings depart. But the star-spangled banner is still there with a great meaning and a greater power than ever before.

BUDGE IS ONLY AMERICAN STAR AHEAD OF HIM

Famous English Pro Rates Frankie Parker in Tie for Tenth.

(Editor's note—A ranking of the leading amateur tennis players of the year is given here by the British and American amateur champion who recently turned professional. The list carries added weight as the writer has played against all of them in actual competition during the season.)

By Fred Perry.

(Copyright, 1937, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Sooner or later, every writer decides that the time is ripe for him to make a ranking of the leading tennis players of the year.

As I have played against them all in actual competition during the season, I hope to be able to submit a list which will not cause too much dissension!

LITTLE TO CHOOSE.

The season of 1936 showed us that any ranking of the world's best players would be a hazardous affair, for there is little to choose between any of those whose names appear in the latter half of the list. They defeat each other so often that anything is liable to happen, and many a well-known writer has been known to make predictions that have "gone wrong" when least expected.

So then, here goes for my ranking:

1. Gottfried von Cramm. (Germany.)
2. Donald Budge. (U. S. A.)
3. Adrian Quist. (Australia.)
4. H. W. Austin. (Great Britain.)
5. Jack Crawford. (Australia.)
6. Bryan Grant. (U. S. A.)
7. Wilmer Allison. (U. S. A.)
8. Vivian McGrath. (Australia.)
9. Roderick Menzel (Czechoslovakia.)
10. Frank Parker (U. S. A.), Christian Boussus (France), and Heiner Henkel (Germany.)

And now for the reasons that have led me to make it.

There can be no doubt about the first position, as von Cramm has not only won one of the major championships—that of France—but he also reached the final of Wimbledon for the second year in succession. His record in Davis cup competition is one of which any player could be proud, as he won all the matches in which he played with the exception of one game against Maier in Barcelona.

BEAT ALL COMERS.

He defeated all comers during the early part of the season on the Riviera, annexed the French title in May, and then reached the final of Wimbledon by means of a series of outstanding victories.

Donald Budge has made a big name for himself in the past summer and is going well on the way to the championship this year. His Davis cup efforts against the Australians gave him a good start and throughout all his European trip he lost only one match, and that was to me at Wimbledon. On his return to America, he proceeded to beat all the American stars.

To Adrian Quist must go the third place by dint of his victory in the Australian championship and also his record in Europe. Throughout the whole trip, he was defeated only by Budge, and, indeed, surprised us in the Davis cup matches by accounting for Austin in four sets.

Austin never seems to do anyting sensational during th season until Davis cup play comes along, and then he really "goes to town" with a vengeance. His tournament appearances, always rather few, do not meet with a great deal of success, but he never seems to lose to anyone ranked below him.

Next comes Jack Crawford, the favorite from "down under," as Australia is called. He has been the leading player of the world—which was only three years ago. His perfect technique and almost flawless stroke production make him a difficult player to beat. He has beaten all those ranked below him, and so we must give him prior place above them.

And now for the "Mighty Atom" from Atlanta—Bryan Grant—who seems to wallop all the top-ranked players at some time or other and who has, in fact, started on his "scalping trail" already this year with two victories over Budge in Florida. Grant will always appear well up in the list, but his lack of forcing shots may prove to be a distinct stumbling block to his reaching the title, although I hear he was hitting the ball harder in Florida.

Allison did not play a great deal during the season, but showed sufficient form to warrant his ranking.

McGrath is one of those players whom no one seems to be able to fathom. His freak backhand makes him a difficult player to beat.

There are many others who could, perhaps, fill these last few places equally well, but I am going on the form shown by those players who have been playing all the season against the leading players of various countries. The younger players of this country have earned the right to inclusion, particularly Parker, but their turn will come later.

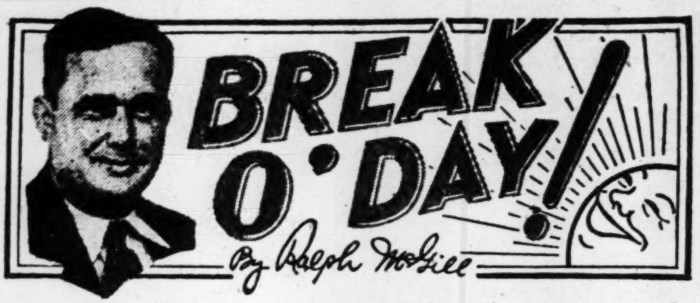
ATCHESON WINS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Jack Emas, young Germantown (Pa.) ace, defeated the second seeded star in the national Y. M. C. A. handball championship, Al Alfenson, of Minneapolis, tonight in the opening round of the contest. The scores were 21-16 and 21-15. Sam Atcheson, the defending champion from Memphis, Tenn., breezed to an easy victory over George Tuschor, New York, 21-6 and 21-7.

Men Past 40

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.

This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for Women) and are sold and recommended by Jacobs Pharmacies, Taylor's Drug (Peachtree and Cain) and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St., N. Y.—(adv.)



WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—Standing in the torrential rain today waiting for President Franklin D. Roosevelt to appear and take the oath of office, the flag of the United States seemed just a flag.

And then he came. And I watched the bearded Charles Evans Hughes step forward. And with him the clerk of the supreme court, carrying the old family Bible of the Roosevelt family.

And I heard him slowly intone the oath of office.

And Franklin D. Roosevelt, not content with a mere affirmation, repeated the oath from memory and pledged himself to it.

He spoke. And some how the nation seemed to be more real. The great sweep of the 48 states seemed very real.

When he was done, the air was still, save only for the slashing rain. And the great marine band broke into the crashing strains of the national anthem.

The thousands looked then at the flag.

And I thought of Francis Scott Key and of how he waited the long night through while cannons boomed and the fate of the Colonials hung in the balance to see if the morning sun would reveal the Star-Spangled Banner.

And standing there today, before the great dome of the nation's capitol, and watching the flag above the head of the man who had just taken the oath as President of the United States, the flag, too, became very real.

Looking at it, watching it, one knew then why men have died for it; why men have carried it into battle with a great desire to place it in triumph. Looking at it then, it was easy to understand why the flag is a thing of majesty to be saluted and respected.

It stands for a great many things. It stood for humanity in every war and it stood for human rights in every one.

If I could I would arrange for every boy and girl in the nation at least once to stand there on the capitol plaza and to hear the oath and to see the President of the United States take office and to hear the band play the Star-Spangled Banner.

I have seen, in years of newspaper writing, many things to make the pulses thump. There is the thrill of a dog on point, the thrill of a halfback loose in an open field and the thrill of close-played baseball games.

But never before has there been a thrill like this one.

Standing there in the driving rain, wet, cold and tired, there came with the greatest thrill of all, a nation inaugurating its chief and the flag above him and the band playing the old, old song.

THE REGULARS.

There was a thrill, too, on Pennsylvania avenue.

And I thought of an old story of the parade down that avenue when the Federal troops were paraded at the end of the War Between the States.

A great bishop was standing with General Grant on the reviewing stand. He watched the regiments go by.

"Fine men," he said.

The Army of the Potomac came by.

"What splendid men," he said. "I understand why they could win." And then came the troops from the west. They were ragged and unkempt. They carried their rifles at various angles. They had hams and food hung from some of the rifles. They were whistling and were not in step.

"General," said the bishop, "those men could whip the world."

I felt something of that today as the youth of West Point and Annapolis and the Coast Guard Academy marched by, trim and neat and soldierly.

There was something grand about it as they passed the reviewing stands and the sabers flashed to attention.

And then came the regulars, the veteran troops of infantry, artillery and horse. They had the look of the regulars, the greatest soldiers in the world.

Much has passed down Pennsylvania avenue. Many soldiers have marched there. But none finer, I am sure, than the young cadets and the regulars who marched there today, saluting the President of their country and honoring him as he honored them.

HE CAN TAKE IT.

The nation loves this man Franklin D. Roosevelt. And for reason.

Today, for instance, there were some little stories which were big things.

Everything was in the rain today. He saw some old friend unprotected in rain. And Mrs. Roosevelt left the captiol veranda and came down without any foolishness of armed protection, and walked to the President's section to supply an umbrella. The inauguration officials sought to have President Roosevelt take the oath in an office. The rain was cruel and cold. In more than a decade of working on newspaper stories, I have never seen worse working conditions.

"They can take it. So can I," he said.

So, he stood there bareheaded and spoke, with the rain pelting on him.

And he knew the thousands lining the street to the White House wanted to see him. So he and Mrs. Roosevelt rode in an open car and he kept his hat off, waving to the people.

They had built a glass-inclosed booth about the veranda where he was to review the parade. It was heated and it was bullet proof. When he saw the rain would keep falling he had them tear it away and he stood there in the rain for more than two cold, wet hours to greet each unit in the parade.

Those are little things. But they are indicative of the great understanding of the man. He is human. So he understands humanity.

WITHOUT A PRESIDENT.

For 29 minutes today the nation was without a President.

Technically, the President's term expired at noon. It was not until 29 minutes past 12 that he took the oath.

But things seemed to go on just the same.

The weather was the worst feature. It was the first time in history the chief executive was inaugurated in January instead of March 4.

Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, liberal Republican who supported Roosevelt in both campaigns, authored the bill which made the change.

"Don't blame me about the weather," he said. "Wait and see what March 4 is like."

J. P. C. DEFEATS PETRELS, 52-26, IN GREAT GAME

Kulbersh Leads Attack for Progressives With 11 Points.

By Melvin Pazol.

Well, it looks like it's up to the Celtics to end the winning streak of the J. P. C. The Progressives exactly doubled the score on a hapless Oglethorpe team last night for their 27th straight victory. The final score was 52-26.

The Progressives were not even extended last night. In fact, they have been extended in only one game this season, and that was against the Birmingham Y. M. H. A. in Birmingham.

The Celtics will be opponents of the J. P. C. team next Monday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club. And the Celtics may have to pull all the tricks in their bag to defeat the club by any sizeable score.

Leading last night's attack for the J. P. C. was Emanuel Kulbersh, who started at guard in place of the ailing Pony Minsk. Kulbersh amassed 11 points, shooting them from all angles. With Steve Browdy, lanky center, off form, Kulbersh's accurate shooting was doubly appreciated. Or, maybe, it was Ben Forkner, Oglethorpe center, who had something to do with Steve being off form. Forkner certainly turned in a grand defensive game. He was right there, no matter which way Browdy tried to turn. He also shot seven points to Browdy's three.

Morris Katz got 10 points for second scoring honors of the evening Buster Fisher, of Oglethorpe, and Hyman Katz and Happy Ginsberg, of the J. P. C., each shot eight points.

One of the Petrel players remarked after the game that the Progressive substitutes seemed to play better ball than the regulars. Which ought to be encouraging news for Coach Shep Lauter. The subs scored 24 points to 28 for the regulars.

In a preliminary game, the J. P. C. Cubs defeated the Oglethorpe All-Stars, 35-30.

City Is Given Cordele's Franchise

MOULTRIE, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—A dispute over the Cordele franchise in the Georgia-Florida baseball league ended tonight when league directors awarded the franchise to the city of Cordele.

J. H. Shipp and the old Cordele Baseball Association, both of whom had claimed the franchise, relinquished their claims in written agreements and accepted the city of Cordele as rightful owner of the charter.

John R. Brown, city manager of Cordele, was officially recognized as league director until an organization approved by the city commissioners and the Cordele Chamber of Commerce has been set up and officers elected.

Dr. Charles Adams, spokesman for Cordele citizens, said the city had no intentions of operating a baseball club, but asked that the franchise be vested in the city with authority to designate a body for that purpose.

ADAMS MATCHED WITH JEFFRIES

Sailor Jack Adams, the Pacific coast titleholder and one of the roughest matmen to appear here since Count Rossi, the Italian, gave up the mat until his broken nose healed, will meet a fast grappler when he steps into the ring to face Bill Jeffries, Arkansas traveler, at the North Side arena Friday night.

COLUMBUS ROUTS PURPLES, 65 TO 37

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 20.—Continuing to show a remarkable eye for the basket, Dan Kirkland, captain and center, led the Columbus High Blue Devils to a 65-37 victory over Boys' High, of Atlanta, here tonight. The victory was the second conference win for the locals in as many nights, and their third in G. I. A. A. competition in as many starts.

The Blue Devils took the lead from the opening tip-off, and from then on completely outclassed the Atlanta quintet.

Gershon, with 15 points, and Bob Smith, with 13, led the Purple attack, which did not really begin to function until the last period. These two lads displayed plenty of speed and were the only ones who could get around the taller local lads with any degree of regularity.

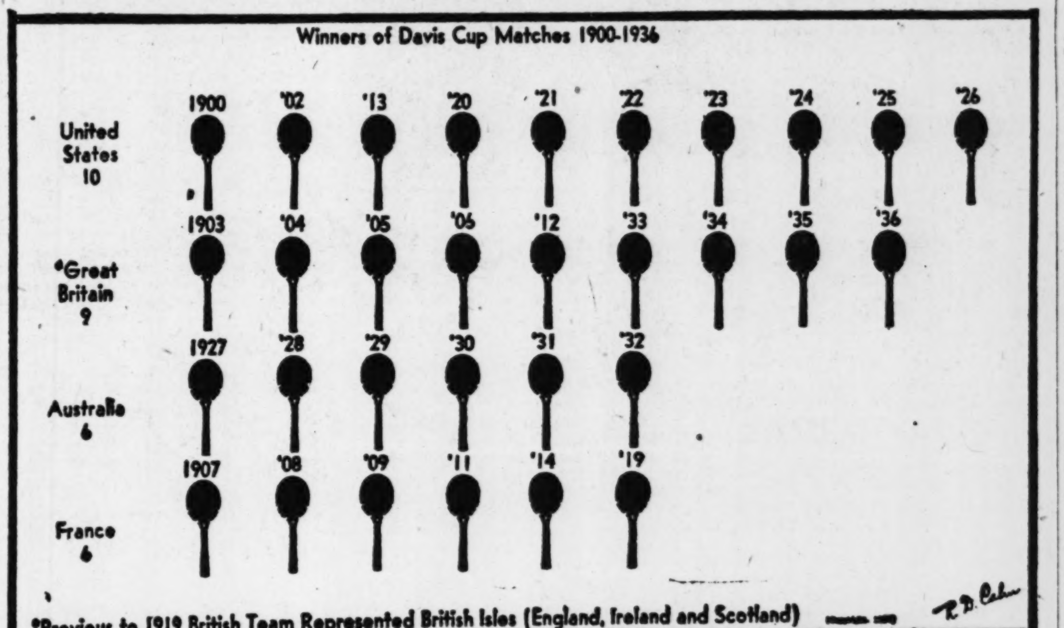
ATLANTANS INVITED.

PIEDMONT, Ala., Jan. 20.—The Coosa Y. M. C. A., of Piedmont, Ala., will hold a basketball tournament here March 5-6. Teams in and around Atlanta are invited. Anyone interested is requested to write George W. Webb, Y. M. C. A., Piedmont, Ala.

United States Leads in Davis Cup Victories



Speer Offers Six Clever Matmen

The six wrestlers who appear tomorrow night on Frank Speer's heavyweight program at the Atlanta theater will not have to worry about the recent ban on flagrant fouling tactics by the Atlanta commission. Because these six stars do not have to depend on carnival tactics to entertain the fans. They can give stirring performances and yet stick to the rules.

Of course Karl Davis, one of the principals, who meets Billy Bartush, doesn't like to wrestle if he can get by an easier way. But when necessary, he is as scientific as they come. The Ohio giant was tutored by John Pesek, one of the greatest of all wrestlers, for three years.

Even in Friday's opener, which pits Roland Kirchmyer against Hans Steinke, there is great talent. Kirchmyer, while not as colorful as some of his rivals, was a member of the United States Olympic team in 1932 and in the opinion of many experts, can hold his own with any of the professionals of this day, if the rough stuff is barred.

George Hagen and Milo Steinborn, main event opponents, need no introduction. They are masters of the old school of grappling, yet they have kept pace with the time and are capable of giving the younger group plenty of competition any night. Their match is sure to be one of interest and to produce rare science.

BIBLE DICKERS OVER SALARY

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Instead of paying the football coach less, pay the professors more, the chairman of the University of Texas regents suggested today as a way to remove a reported objection to hiring Nebraska's Dana X. Bible here.

Bible and Texas officials were in a closed conference tonight, while reports persisted that salary was one of the main points under discussion.

One story was that Bible asked $15,000 to $25,000 for himself and staff with a five-year contract. The university president receives $8,000 and the best-paid professor $5,000.

Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the university, has expressed opposition to paying the coach more than any faculty member, and Bible was said to be hesitant to accept the job without full faculty good will.

ENRIGHT, RUSSELL BOTH CONFIDENT

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 20.—Both Coach Rex Enright and Lake Russell are confident of victory when the Georgia and Mercer basketball teams square off here Friday night.

The Bulldog mentor predicts an overwhelming victory for his team which has a .500 average in conference competition. Lake Russell insists the Bears have averaged over four points a game and the crafty Bears' coach says he believes that will be the average for the season. The Mercer outfit is scheduled to battle the Celtics Thursday night.

Georgia's squad was sent through a drill stressing point-gathering tonight. All players are in good condition. Olin Thompson, junior who won for Georgia Friday night, is showing steady improvement and is expected to shine by tourney time.

Evening School To Play Gordon

Coach Bill Layton's Georgia Evening College Redbirds will be seeking revenge tonight when they tangle at the Y. W. C. A. with the fast Gordon cagers from Barnesville.

The G. M. I. club, coached by Dickie Butler, is one of the strongest in the history of the school.

The University of Georgia Evening College is leading the Metropolitan league with 18 victories and two losses. Strengthened recently by the addition to the squad of two former Tech aces, Billy Glenn and Culver Kidd, the Redbirds are considered one of the fastest teams in the city.

MOULTRIE WINS.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Showing a complete reversal of form since last week, the Moultrie Steers defeated Albany's Y Blues, 42 to 33, here last night to avenge a previous licking dealt them by the Blues.

Carl Hubbell's Brother To Pitch In Sally League With Savannah

By Jack Troy

Merritt (Little Trouble) Hubbell, brother of the great New York Giant southpaw, is scheduled for a fling or three in the Sally league this summer with the Savannah Indians.

Like Big Trouble, Merritt also is a southpaw—and a good one, 'tis said. His battery mate will be one of the House of David boys, Bill Steincke.

Big league scouts who gave Hugh Luby the red light because they thought he had a weak arm are now turning the other cheek. . . . Because last year he led the Western league's second basemen with 101 double plays and 406 assists. . . . Which does not seem to indicate an arm that ought to be consigned to the graveyard. . . . He handled the most putouts with 360 and was tops in fielding average with .955. . . . Luby has glanced at some pretty fair country pitching. . . . With Sioux City last year he faced such pretties as Claude Passeau, Italo Chelini, not to be confused with Nino Martini; Clarence Mitchell, Ad Liska, Bill Phebus, Frank Lamanske, and others. . . . By this token, his batting average of .319 hangs high. . . . Lipscomb's shoes are large, but so are Luby's feet, speaking, of course, in a baseball sense. . . . The speed which netted him 171 stolen bases in five seasons of play has given rise to another story. . . . It seems he was traveling through a graveyard one dark night and heard a discomfiting

Abe White Thinks He'll Stick With Cardinals

Braselton, Ga., Boy Signs 1937 Contract; Recovers From Serious Operation.

By Thad Holt.

Adel (Abe) White, of Braselton, Ga., is the boy who, when he was introduced to the city slicker and explained that he hailed from the country, inspired the answer—"You're telling me!"

"After all," said Abe, with a grin, "what's wrong with being from the country?"

And our answer to that is: not a darned thing . . . not so long as the country can produce men with the sincerity and ability and humanness of Abe White.

Abe White, you know, is the left-handed pitcher who hurled in seven of the eight games Buford played in gaining second place in the National semi-pro tournament at Wichita, Kan., last year. The former Birmingham Baron southpaw won all four of the games he started in that mammoth meet, saved two others and was awarded a trophy for being the outstanding pitcher in the tournament.

GREAT FAST BALL.

The fast ball lefthander's work brought him an immediate contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and Abe finished out the last month of the 1936 campaign as a member of the notorious Gashouse Gang.

"They liked me, those Cardinals," drawled Abe. "Frank Frisch told me to warm up a few days after I arrived—that he was going to start me against the Bees. While I was warming up the St. Louis management heard that Galveston, from which club I previously had purchased my release, was claiming I still belonged to them. That prevented my appearing in a major league game, since the matter had to be investigated and cleared up."

The 29-year-old ex-plowboy says everything is set now, that he has signed his 1937 contract with the Cardinals and expects to make the grade, his hopes being brightened by the fact the Cards have only one other notable southpaw prospect—Bob Weiland, up again for a major fling.

UNUSUAL CONTRACT.

Incidentally, White's contract with the Cardinals is an unusual one, since it is made with the crafty Cardinal chain.

White was paid well to sign with the Cardinals last year. Furthermore, St. Louis cannot release him to any other club. They must either keep him or give him his outright release.

"I'll never play for another minor league club," declared Abe. If I fail to stick with the Cards, I'll return to Buford and pitch for the Shoemakers as long as they want me. Abe is visibly attached to the Buford people for their considerations in the past, and particularly those by the Allens, John, Vic, Bona Jr. and Bona III. "They're grand people," he said.

Several Southern league clubs, including Atlanta and New Orleans, sought Abe last year. He pitched for Birmingham from 1931 until midway of 1936, finishing that season with Galveston. Abe started his career with Carrollton in 1929.

COUNTRY BOYS.

"I found most of the Cardinals just a bunch of good-natured country boys like myself, declared Abe. Pepper Martin took a liking to me and we were great pals. And Dizzy Dean came out one day when I was burning 'em over and said "Boy, how does it happen you ain't got up here sooner. You sure can blow 'em in there."

Abe says that after making the swing around the circuit with the Cardinals he gained a lot of confidence. "I had some sort of idea that all big leaguers were supermen," he said. "But a good look convinced me I'm a pretty good pitcher after all, at least a better one than a lot of those guys up there. Some of those pitchers have no control at all, and I know I can throw one where I want it, which I guess is something for a southpaw."

GAINS BACK WEIGHT.

The only thing that worries the Braselton boy is a recent serious operation for the removal of a kidney stone. "I got down to 155 pounds after spending nearly three months in bed, but I'm back to 185 now. My doctors tell me I should be better than ever, with all that poison removed from my system."

And maybe Abe White will be good enough to take his turn on the mound with such greats as Dizzy Dean and Lon Warneke. And, perhaps, this fine country boy who isn't yet quite used to tall buildings and city ways but whose heart is as big as his dreams, will find himself in the next World Series that comes to pass.

By golly, I hope so.

JACKETS GAIN SWEET REVENGE IN 51-13 VICTORY

Tech Pass Work, Defensive Play Completely Bottle Up Tiger Attack.

By Jack Troy.

It is hardly likely that any team ever got greater revenge than did the Tech team of last night over the Clemson Tigers, from South Carolina.

Tech ultimately crushed Clemson, 51 to 13, before a whooping crowd of close to 1,000 in the naval armory.

That partly tells the story. But there are a few early facts which illustrate it much better.

Seven minutes of playing time elapsed before Clemson scored a point. That one came on a free throw by Jack Bryce. Nine minutes ticked off before Clemson made its first field goal. Bobby Cheves made it good on a "crip" shot. It was one of the few times all night the Tech defense was lax.

After 14 minutes of play, the Tigers got their fourth point. And again it was a free throw by Jack Bryce.

JACKETS GO TO TOWN.

Meanwhile, the tall ball-hounding Jackets, the same starting team as of the Mercer game, were going to town. They had 12 points before their bewildered foes had any.

They started with Ben Jones' great follow-up shot in which he tipped the ball into the basket. The sheer wizardy of the pass work was something to marvel at. Tech worked the ball down the floor on short, sharp passes, maneuvered a man open under the basket and swish!—two points.

With Ben Jones playing a whirlwind floor game, aided and abetted by Bo Johnston and Bill Jordan, and with the defense tighter than Dick's hatband, the Jackets ran up 31 points in the first half, meanwhile limiting Clemson to the magnanimous total of five.

Ben Jones, the Canton crackshot, cracked down on the basket for 13 points before the intermission. Bo Johnston, the Savannah sharpshooter, followed closely with 11, and Bill Jordan, the Chattanooga lallapaloza, accounted for seven. It was a three-man scoring parade in that first half.

DEFENSIVE EXHIBITION.

And never, no never, will any Tech crowd see a finer exhibition of defensive play, ball handling or ball hounding.

In one fell swoop, so to speak, the towering Techmen, out for blood, wiped out the two losses of last year. In one single night, they amply made up for those reversals of last winter at the hands of a then potent Tiger team.

NEVER GOT BEARINGS.

Clemson really is a better team than appeared last night, but the Tigers were powerless. They were so much chaff churned before a gale. They never got their bearings—and seldom, indeed, the ball.

And especially was that true in the first half, before Coach Roy Mundorff started running in one player after another. Twelve players, virtually amounting to three teams, were used.

Once Coach Joe Davis was heard to remark when one of his players was called for holding the ball too long over the line: "For goodness sake, why doesn't the referee let us keep the ball for just a second or two? My boys hardly know what it feels like."

And that remark will stand as a pretty fair estimate of the situation.

JONES AND JOHNSTON.

Ben Jones and Bo Johnston were the Tech leaders on attack. Jones was high scorer with 17 points. Johnston had 11. Jones' magnificent work as a feeder—he passed the ball to teammates most of the time instead of trying for goals, himself—and Whack Hyder's outstanding work on defense were highlights.

Marshall Mauldin, Cracker centerfielder and quite a basketball player himself in the past, sat there and marveled at the pass work and defensive play of the Techs.

"I've never seen anything like it," he said.

Not a Clemson player was allowed more than one goal from the floor. Jack Bryce, guard, with one field goal and two free throws, was high point man.

Afterwards, Coach Davis said, "The Tech squad certainly showed me something. They really have everything."

Tech's next home game is scheduled for a week from Wednesday night. Fort Benning's soldier five replaces Presbyterian College. The Jackets go away this week end, meeting Sewanee on the mountain top. Last night's victory was their fourth straight of the season—and they appear just to be hitting their stride.

MAROON COACH PLANS TO TOSS MORE AERIALS

L. S. U. Will Be Tough, But We'll Beat 'Em, He Says.

By Paul Michelson.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—That great, big army man from the south returned to his city haunts today to warn his old football pals that the "Big Wind" was just commencing to blow over the pigskin arenas of the nation.

"Fellows, you ain't seen any forward passes yet," predicted Major Ralph Irvine Sasse, former master mind of West Point's gridiron campaigns and now commander-in-chief of Mississippi State's football forces. "The boys are just beginning to throw that apple."

It's all right with the good major. He likes it.

"My motto hereafter is to throw that football till you make 'em dizzy," continued the major as he hesitated only long enough to tell his negro valet to keep looking for a stray collar button. "All of us have been dumb in football and the wonder to me has been that we've held spectator appeal. It's time we ripped the game wide open with passes and gave the folks a show worth the price of their tickets."

"The Southeastern conference title will be strictly between L. S. U. (Louisiana State) and Mississippi State. We'll beat L. S. U. In the Southwest, Texas A. & M. should rule the roost. Right now, I want to go on record as picking either Texas A. and M. or us to get Rose Bowl and Sugar Bowl bids."

Curry Pointer Field Trials Winner

QUITMAN, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Homewood Flirtatious, white and black pointer which won the 1935 national championship, hunted like a perfect lady today to add the Continental Field Trials subscription all-age stake to her laurels.

In spite of hot, dry weather that made the going difficult, the pointer, owned by H. M. Curry, of Pittsburgh, ranged far and fast over Gerald M. Livingston's 22,000-acre estate in a sparkling exhibition of quail hunting.

The pointers again had things their own way in the Continental Derby all-age.

Propeller, owned by G. Dawson Coleman, of Philadelphia, took first with Homerun Susianna, owned by Miss Claudia Phelps, of Aiken, S. C., second and third divided between Beck Blue Willing, owned by Dr. D. L. Garrett, of Tulsa, Okla., and Homewood Stardust, owned by H. M. Curry Jr., of Pittsburgh.

Cash prizes totaling $2,000 were divided among the winners of the trials here.

Fred Steele Signs For Risko Battle

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Freddie Steele, of Tacoma, fighting champion of the middleweights, signed today to defend his title January 29 in Madison Square Garden against a former titleholder, Babe Risko, Syracuse's sailor slugger.

Steele chose to make his eastern debut in a title bout against the man from whom he won the championship in Seattle July 11. Contracts were signed at New York boxing commission headquarters.

Paul Waner Joins Ranks of Holdouts

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Paul "Big Poison" Waner, last season's leading batter in the National league, is a holdout.

W. E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, disclosed today he had received Waner's unsigned contract with a request for a "further increase" in salary. He did not say how much Waner had been offered or what he was asking.

In the same mail Benswanger said he received the signed contract of Paul's brother, Lloyd "Little Poison" Waner. The two are spending the winter in Sarasota, Fla.

Tom Beaupre Loses To Gunnar Barlund

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Gunnar Barlund, slugging importation from Finland, won his fourth straight fight in the white hope field trials at the Hippodrome tonight by taking a decision over Tom Beaupre, Dallas heavyweight, in 10 rounds.

spending money, the government permitting no more.

"What will most of the boys do?" I asked one of them.

"Drag, I guess," he said.

And then I learned that to drag is to date a girl. Many sweethearts of the cadets were in Washington today and they had money to spend even if the future generals did not.

MAINE AND VERMONT.

Maine and Vermont were represented in the parade and even though Democrats rode in the cars the crowd mingled boos with cheers.

As Maine went so went Vermont. And they were the only two states refusing to join in the progress and the plans of the New Deal.

The parade was a lengthy one. And the Governors had a great time.

There were more than 30 governors here today, which inspired Governor Harry W Nice, of Maryland, one of the few remaining Republican Governors to say: "That's enough Governors to ruin any town."

PNEUMONIA GERMS.

By noon today your correspondent literally was soaked. Let me hasten to say the soaking was with rain. The rain had the overcoat as heavy as a suit of armor. The shoes full of rain and watching and administering of the oath of office to President Roosevelt, I stood with rain swirling about the old feet. Water dripped down the old neck.

And that was just the beginning. There followed a long wait for the parade and then watching it. All in the rain.

It was cold and if the pneumonia germs will please stay away I will appreciate it very much.

But it was worth it to see the nine old men, to see Chief Justice Hughes step up and to hear and see him administer the oath and then to watch the great parade.

MOULTRIE NOW RED SOX FARM

MOULTRIE, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Moultrie today became a Georgia-Florida farm of the Boston Red Sox.

Alex Hall, president of the Moultrie Baseball Corporation, said following a brief conference here late yesterday with Billy Evans, business manager of the Sox, that the Packers had signed a working agreement with Boston for 1937. He said the local club will draw its rookie talent this season principally from Rocky Mount of the Piedmont league, and Shreveport of the Texas league.

Boston replaces the Atlanta Crackers, who utilized Moultrie as a rookie farm last season.

Recommendations by Evans indicated Grant Gillis, 1936 pilot, would again be at the helm of the Packers this year. He said Gillis was recognized as a "high type leader for young ball players" and would be satisfactory to Boston.

National Guard Beats Atlanta Rifle Club

In an unofficial .22-caliber rifle match Wednesday night, a five-man team of Company F, 122d infantry, Georgia national guard, defeated the five-man team of the Atlanta Rifle Club by a total score of 940 to 909. Captain R. C. Endicott, of the national guard, was high score man with 195 out of a possible 200, fired at 50 feet using regular issue ammunition and regular army .22 rifle with iron sights. Bill Sanderson was high rifle club man with a 188.

The scores were tabulated as follows:

The shoot also served as a competition for Company F to decide the team to shoot in the Chief of National Guard Bureau match which is to be fired before January 31. Colonel Haganey, with a 184, is the fifth man on this enlisted man's team, replacing the vacancy left by Captain Endicott, since officers are not allowed to fire this course for competition.

A return match between the Atlanta Rifle Club and Company R, 122d infantry, will be shot at an early date. Both teams invite competition with other rifle teams.

G. M. A. TO MEET TYPISTS TODAY

G. M. A. and Commercial High will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the new Fulton High court in a fourth-round game of the Big Seven schedule.

The game was scheduled for Friday afternoon in one of the features, but was moved up to this afternoon to permit G. M. A. to play Albany High Friday night on the College Park court.

G. M. A. has two straight victories and no defeats and trails Monroe Aggies by a half game, as the Aggies have won three straights.

sound. . . . He got away from there. . . . A short time after he had slammed the front door, he heard a persistent knocking. . . . It was his shadow clamoring for admittance. . . . On, well. . . . Jimmy Bloodworth, who starred with Columbia last year, going there on option from Chattanooga, will be back with the Lookouts this summer. . . . He plays every position, including pitcher and catcher, but not at the same time. . . . Clyde Milan, old Deerfoot, holds him in high regard. . . . It may as well be recorded here and now that Chattanooga will give one and all trouble in the Southern league race. . . . Papa Clark Griffith is not going to do wrong by adopted son Calvin, new president of the Lookouts. . . . And even so, sale of Albany to the Giants naturally throws to Chattanooga all the leading prospects owned by Washington. . . . Which brings to mind a recent statement by Griffith . . . "We don't want anybody playing ball in Chattanooga that is not a big league possibility." . . . Doc Prothro, who was dissatisfied all last season with his second basemen . . . now has come up with one named A. Niemiec. . . . But don't be fooled by the name, he plays no anemic brand of ball. . . . It has been written the Red Sox have promised Doc Prothro a pennant. . . . When the Southern league directors meet here in February, to adopt a schedule, they also should make some provision for more pennants. . . At this distance, it appears there will not be nearly enough to go around. . . . Johnny Watwood, who will manage Houston, in the Texas league, next summer, once stretched Joe Hutcheson out for the count while playing with Memphis. Big Joe's advice to Houston players is to let that be a lesson to them. . . . A veteran sports editor is of the opinion Bulldog Williams' number is up as a Southern league umpire. . . . He's one of the most popular brothers in blue working games in Atlanta. . . . It would be sweet revenge, indeed, should Bitsy Grant win the national grass courts title at Forest Hills. . . . And then turn in his uniform. . . . That is to say, turn pro. . . . It may not happen, but what s-w-e-e-t revenge it would be for Bitsy over his pals of the U. S. L. T. A.

BOYCOTT THREAT DRAWS PROTESTS FROM RING FANS

By Jack Cuddy.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Briefs from the brawn patrol: Max Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs, has been receiving hundreds of letters from boxing fans throughout the country telling him that the anti-Nazi boycott against the Schmeling-Braddock title fight is an outrage and a reflection against American ideals of sportsmanship and fair play.

One of these letters is from a bell hop in Sioux City, Iowa, a lad named Melvin Dean. Although Melvin claims no blood ties with either Dizzy or Man Mountain Dean, he has a very novel idea to thwart the boycott, draw the biggest gate in boxing history and help the milk funds in various cities. Here is Melvin's plan:

"Let Max and Braddock fight it out for the championship before a motion picture camera, with nobody present but the necessary officials. Then keep the outcome a secret and show the pictures all over the country at exactly the same time, as soon as the films are developed and delivered to the theaters." Jacobs' reaction to the plan was this: "That boy Dean is a genius, but how could we keep the outcome a secret, after what Schmeling will do to Braddock?"

Walker Favors Calling Off Bout.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Although the New York Athletic Commission, as a group, declines to comment on the effect the anti-Nazi league boycott will have on the Jim Braddock-Max Schmeling heavyweight title bout, Commissioner D. Walker Wear today said if he had his way "I would call the bout off."

PEPPER MARTIN SIGNS CONTRACT

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Cardinals, brought his troubles to St. Louis today to the man who always sees silver linings in the clouds, Owner Sam Breadon, and the man who usually straightens out all difficulties, Vice President Branch Rickey.

Pepper Martin wasn't among Frisch's trials and tribulations. And with good reason. The Wild Horse of the Osage drove into town in a truck, galloped into the Cardinal office and speedily signed his 1937 contract. He said he was "tip-top and ready to go."

But, all in all, it was "worry, worry, worry" with the Fordham Flash. He fairly barked:

"What if Paul Dean doesn't come back. What if Jim Winford doesn't come through? What if we don't get any help from our young pitchers? What if—you fellows don't know what worrying is in this world."

LADY ASTOR'S SISTER, MRS. R. H. BRAND, DIES

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert H. Brand, the former Phyllis Langhorne, of Richmond, Va., a sister of Lady Astor, died today of influenza and complications at Eydon Hall, Northamptonshire.

Mrs. Brand was the wife of the managing director of Lazard Brothers and Company, bankers. Lady Astor was with her sister when she died.

Friends said Mrs. Brand never really recovered from the shock of the death of her son, David Brooks, who plunged from a 14th floor Park avenue apartment in New York city November 15.

Mrs. Brand was one of the celebrated "five beautiful Langhorne sisters," daughters of Chiswell Dabney Langhorne, one of Virginia's wealthiest residents.

One of Langhorne's six daughters died in infancy. The others are: Irene, who married Charles Dana Gibson, American artist; Nora, wife of Paul Phipps, British architect; Mrs. Moncure Perkins, who died as a young woman; Lady Astor, and Mrs. Brand.

Brand was Phyllis Langhorne's second husband. She was married formerly to Reginald Brooks, of New York.

GENERAL DE SLOVITSKY.

His age was not known.

D. H. McCONNELL.

SUFFERN, N. Y., Jan. 20.—(AP)—D. H. McConnell, 78, a founder and president of the Allied Products, Inc., perfume manufacturers, died today at his home after an extended illness.

Mr. McConnell founded Allied Products under the name of California Products but with expansion into one of the largest companies of its kind the name was changed.

He was prominent in Republican politics and was a member of the Union League Club in New York city. He also was one of the founders, president and chairman of the board of the Suffern National Bank and Trust Company.

Surviving are the widow, a son and two daughters.

D. HARVEY HILL JR.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 20.—(AP) D. Harvey Hill Jr., 47, textile writer and secretary of the Southern Textile Association, died here today after having undergone two operations in the last eight days.

Hill was associate editor of the Southern Textile Bulletin and also of the Southern Knitter, both published in Charlotte.

He was a grandson of a noted Confederate general of the same name. His widow and two children survive him.

97TH BIRTHDAY HELD BY DACULA CITIZEN

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Jan. 20. J. J. Hinton, of Dacula, celebrated his 97th birthday Tuesday at his residence. Mr. Hinton is a pioneer of Gwinnett county and a veteran of the War Between the States.

He has 12 children as follows: Dr. W. T. Hinton, D. A. Hinton, J. M. Hinton, J. S. Hinton, Mrs. W. S. Sims and Miss Mattie Hinton, of Dacula; Mrs. David Sims, Ellington, S. C.; Dr. A. L. Hinton, Orlando, Fla.; Mrs. A. W. Ethridge, East Point; H. J. Hinton and Mrs. J. F. Mahaffey, Lawrenceville.

There are 27 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

Many neighbors and friends gathered at the home in the afternoon to pay their respects and many presents were given him.

STATE PARK SYSTEM IS LAUDED AT ATHENS

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Georgia has the nucleus of a state park system which "if properly developed and managed will be excelled by no other state of the nation," Charles N. Elliott, national associate forester, told the University of Georgia Forestry Club here.

A state park, Elliott said last night, should serve the public, but should pay its own way with revenue from visitors, rather than from sale of products grown on park lands.

STATE DEATHS

MRS. RUTH PRATHER.

AMERICUS, Ga., Jan. 20.—Funeral services for Mrs. Ruth Council Prather, 34, who died here Saturday, were held from First Baptist church yesterday. Rev. L. M. Polhill, pastor of the congregation of which Mrs. Prather was a member, conducted the rites, assisted by Rev. Joseph S. Cook, pastor of First Methodist church, and Dr. James B. Lawrence, rector of Calvary Episcopal congregation. Burial was in Oak Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Prather, who was one of Americus' most popular and widely known young matrons, was active in the affairs of First Baptist congregation.

She is survived by her husband, Stuart H. Prather, Americus businessman; one son, Stuart H. Prather Jr., and a daughter, Miss Florence Prather, all of Americus. Her parents, Lee G. Council and Mrs. Florence Hildreth Council, and a sister, Mrs. Howard E. Whitlock, of New York city, also survive.

JERRY CHAFIN.

ROME, Ga., Jan. 20.—Jerry Chafin, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Chafin, of Aragon, Route 1, passed away at the residence Monday night after an illness of four days.

Besides his parents, the boy is survived by his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Chafin and Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Wilson, all of Aragon, Route 1.

The funeral was held yesterday from the Aragon Baptist church, with the pastor, Rev. Calvin Smith officiating and interment was in the adjoining cemetery.

MRS. MARY SNOW.

LAFAYETTE, Ga., Jan. 20.—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Snow, 70, who died at her home at Chickamauga, were held Sunday afternoon from her home with Rev. W. J. Debardeleben and Rev. Perry Brannon, of Chattanooga, officiating. Interment took place in the LaFayette cemetery.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. P. Moore and Miss Ida Snow, of Chickamauga; three sons, J. H. and H. A. Snow, of Trion; Williams Snow, of Chattanooga; one sister, Mrs. Frank Yancy, of Gaylesville, Ala.

EMILE GAILMARD.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Emile G. Gailmard, 76, died at his home here yesterday after a two-week illness. A former resident of Warm Springs, he lived here 15 years.

He had been an employe of the Southern Railway for many years.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Tampa, Fla.

WALTER HILL ELECTED BY ART ASSOCIATION

E. P. McBurney, Mrs. F. W. McRae and H. O. Oliver Made Vice Presidents.

Other officers include: E. P. McBurney, first vice presirent; Mrs. Floyd W. McRae and Herbert D. Oliver, vice presidents; J. J. Haverty, chairman of the board of trustees; Robert Maddox, treasurer; Dameron Black, assistant treasurer, and L. P. Skidmore, secretary.

Skidmore is also director of the museum and was re-elected to serve as secretary of the group during 1937.

Mrs. Edgar Neely, lecture; Fitzhugh Knox Sr., library; Mrs. E. Bates Block, planning; J. L. Edwards, school; McBurney, finance, and Beverly M. Dubose, membership, were named committee chairmen. Nine trustees were re-elected and three new ones chosen to complete the board of 12, Skidmore said.

JAPANESE DIET OPENS WITH ATTACK ON REDS

Communists Are Blamed for World's Woes; U. S. Relations Praised by Arita.

TOKYO, Jan. 21.—(Thursday)—(AP)—Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita carried to parliament today a defense of his administration, blamed Communist activity for world political troubles and extended a friendly greeting to the United States.

The foreign minister devoted much of his address opening the diet, or parliament, amid allegations the military might seek a dominant position in the state, to vigorous attacks on the komintern.

He defended the German-Japanese pact as directed only against Communism and not intended to foment dispute with world powers. He advocated that all colonial possessions of all nations be opened to free trade, and said relations with the United States "are happily improving."

The world political situation, Arita observed, "appears to be growing worse than ever, owing especially to the activities of the Communist International."

Improved American relations, he observed, were due "as well to our consistent policy of contributing in cooperation with that power to the maintenance of peace in the Pacific as to a deeper understanding on the part of the American people regarding the situation in east Asia.

"The Japanese government will continue to spare no effort in the cultivation and improvement of the cordial relations already existing between the two nations."

BUS SAFETY VOTED BY NORTH CAROLINA

Assembly Appropriates $600,000 To Replace Dangerous School Cars.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 20.—(AP)—The general assembly hit the fastest pace of the 1937 session today, with three major committees considering crop control and money problems and more than a score of bills being pushed into the legislative mill.

A measure to appropriate $600,000 for the replacement of dangerous school buses won approval in the house and quickly was passed in the senate.

The State Fair Tax Association joined the ranks of the Retail Merchants' Association in demanding abolition of the three per cent sales tax.

Meanwhile, the joint agriculture committee continued its discussion of the proposed tobacco compact bill, with several amendments being offered to protect the "one-horse farmer from unfair production allotments."

WHISKY AD BILL OFFERED IN S. C.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 20.—(AP) A variety of bills went into the house hopper today.

Two bills to prohibit advertisements of whisky and cigarets in which pictures of women appear were introduced and referred to the judiciary committee.

Also to the judiciary committee went a bill to reduce the number of public service commissioners from seven to three.

A bill to substitute a state police department for the Governor's constabulary and state highway patrol was offered.

Hartsook, both of Greensboro, N. C. Funeral plans will be announced by A. S. Turner.

EDITOR OUTLINES GEORGIA PROBLEMS

Macon Publisher Says Social Security Should Include Farmers.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—W. T. Anderson, editor and publisher of the Macon Telegraph, said tonight poverty and low wages present the most serious problem facing Georgia.

In an address before the Phi Kappa Literary Society of University of Georgia, Anderson pointed out that a low wage level for the negroes of the state means reduced purchasing power. "Georgians must realize the necessity of paying the negro a fair wage if general living standards of the state are to be improved," he added.

He advocated broadening of the present social security program to include farm and domestic workers as one means of accomplishing the improvement and said non-industrial workers are paying for the social security program in higher prices and yet are excluded from its benefits.

Anderson advised the development of better and more numerous markets for Georgia farm products. He said $60,000,000 worth of food products was shipped in to the state in one year, while Georgia farmers lacked sufficient markets for their crops.

JOHN E. WHITLEY, 91, DIES AT LAGRANGE

Father of Contractor Passes After Several Weeks' Illness.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Jan. 20.—John Edward Whitley, 91, father of J. E. Whitley Jr., contractor of state-wide prominence, died at his home on Whitesville street last night, following an illness of several weeks, and funeral services were held this afternoon with Rev. John Mings in charge.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ellen Whitley, of LaGrange; four daughters, Mrs. Edgar Whitley, of Eufaula, Ala.; Mrs. Tom Green, of Columbus; Mrs. Mary Wade and Mrs. Sallie Clark, of LaGrange, and five sons, J. E. Whitley Jr., LaGrange; G. C. Whitley, Marietta; M. C. Whitley, Woodbury; J. B. Whitley, Greenville, and J. S. Whitley, Columbus.

VETERAN FIRE CHIEF RENAMED AT LAGRANGE

LAGRANGE, Ga., Jan. 20.—Charles W. Corless, veteran fire chief of LaGrange, was re-elected at the last meeting of city council. Chief Corless has been in the employ of the city of LaGrange for more than a quarter of a century, and has served as fire chief since 1918.

Re-election of the entire corps of firemen was also effected. The list includes J. J. Roberts, James Cohen, Albert Laster, Milton Smith, R. L. Forman, J. W. Hansen, Farris White, Ben Hardaway, Bill Yarbrough, George Edmondson, Henry Dye and Carl Worley.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING PLANNED AT LAGRANGE

LAGRANGE, Ga., Jan. 20.—Plans for construction of a new $65,000 school building to replace Dawson Street school, destroyed last year by fire of unknown origin, were discussed here today following appropriation of $40,000 by the city of LaGrange at a meeting of the council and Mayor R. S. O'Neal held Monday night.

The additional $15,000 is being sought in the form of a federal grant.

The new building will be modern in every respect and when completed will be one of the best school plants in this section of the state.

SECURITY BODY PLANS FOUR GEORGIA OFFICES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Social Security Board announced today four new field offices for the administration of federal old-age benefits will be established soon in Georgia.

They will be at Athens, Lumpkin and Clayton streets; Augusta, Southern Finance building; Columbus, Twelfth street and Broadway, and Macon, Bibb building.

Offices at Atlanta and Savannah already are in operation.

The board said staffs in the new offices, which will be small, will be drawn from civil service lists.

ONE WORKMAN KILLED, TWO HURT IN LANDSLIDE

Otis R. Henry, 40, Dies Instantly Above Cartersville in Mine Avalanche.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 20.—Otis R. Henry, 40, was killed instantly and Tate Goode and Henry Willis were severely injured this morning when loose rocks started an avalanche in the quarry of a slate mine about 18 miles above Cartersville.

The three men were engaged in "coaling" a huge steam shovel in the quarry when the landslide took place. Henry, in a tram-car, was unloading bags of coal on the platform of the shovel and was caught under falling rock and dirt.

The injured men were rushed to Cartersville, where examinations proved that Tate was suffering from internal injuries, while Willis had a crushed leg and severe lacerations about the face.

Rescue workers were engaged over two and one-half hours in extricating Henry from underneath the rock.

All three men are well known in this section and are related to some of Bartow county's most prominent families.

Funeral services for Henry will be conducted at White tomorrow afternoon.

PARKING EXCUSE

Wedding Date Plea Accepted by Macon Judge.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Recorder George M. Nottingham recognized Miss Ruby Mabry's wedding day excitement as a legitimate excuse for a parking lapse.

The young woman was brought into court yesterday, accused of parking in a forbidden zone. The arresting officer helped along by telling the judge Miss Mabry parked there in order to hurry into a florist's to get flowers for her wedding.

The recorder dismissed the case with a warning that the excuse would work but once for her.

INSTITUTE AT G. S. C. W. WILL BE HELD TODAY

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Jan. 20. Miss Gay B. Shepperson, of Atlanta, WPA director of Georgia, will speak on "The Changing South" and "The South at the Crossroads" at the opening of the first annual Institute of Human Relations at the Georgia State College for Women to be held here tomorrow.

"Student Responsibilities in Social Change" will be the theme of the institute which is under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., College Government Association and the Recreation Association.

The speakers for this year include Dr. Arthur Raper, of Agnes Scott College; Dr. Joseph Roemer, of Peabody College, in Nashville; Dr. Thomas C. Barr, Nashville minister, and Dr. Paul Morrow, curriculum director at the University of Georgia, who will open the institute.

AUGUSTANS INVITED TO ATHENS MEETING

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Four Augustans received invitations from the Athens Chamber of Commerce to attend its annual meeting tomorrow night to discuss the proposed $22,000,000 Clarks Hill hydroelectric and flood control project.

BITTER COLD HAMPERS ATTEMPT TO RESCUE SCORES SNOWBOUND

Frigid Wave Brings New Threats to California Citrus Growers.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Bitter cold engulfed the west tonight, complicating attempts to rescue scores of snowbound persons and bringing new threats to rich California fruit groves.

Orange and lemon growers near Los Angeles fired up orchard heaters for the second time this month, hoping to prevent an increase of the $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 damage estimated following the January 9 freeze.

From Flagstaff, Ariz., a snow plow started efforts to break through to Fort Tuthill, where the 11-month-old child of WPA Foreman George Freeman was reported seriously ill and the Freeman family and 10 workmen were snowbound.

Many persons remained virtually snowbound in southern California mountains, but none was reported in danger. Food has been taken to those needing it.

In northern Arizona, sheep and goats, upon which thousands of Navajo Indians depend for a living, were reported starving.

Thirty-two degrees above at San Francisco marked the coldest January 20 in weather bureau history. The deepest snow on record covered the Salt Lake City area today, more than 20 inches. Last night's minimum of 38 degrees in Los Angeles rose to 48 today.

At Meacham, Ore., the low mark was 44 below zero. State Health Officer Frederick Stricker, of Oregon, reported 900 known cases of influenza and 118 of pneumonia in the state.

The body of Gus Ebson, 45, lumberjack, was brought out by Alaskan dog sled from a snow trail where he froze to death near Sonora, Cal. He became exhausted while skiing.

Juan Packezo, 30, sheepherder, who disappeared two weeks ago in snow-covered southeastern Utah, was given up for dead.

The body of John Panyon, 21, was found frozen in his stalled automobile a short distance from a mine, east of Butte, Mont., today. Panyon's death was the second from freezing in the Butte area in the past 24 hours.

IT'S THE PIN-POINT CARBONATION
What keeps your high-ball alive so much longer when it is mixed with Canada Dry's Sparkling Water? What keeps the bottle sparkling even after twenty-four hours with the cap off in a refrigerator? And when Canada Dry's Water is poured into a champagne glass, what makes that sparkling effervescence so noticeable? Finally, what gives Canada Dry's Water that "Champagne" Sparkle? The answer is PIN-POINT CARBONATION.

Solo Stage Star Works While She Rests

When she is "on tour," Cornelia Otis Skinner takes care of her speaking voice by living quietly, resting as much as she can and employing her idle hours by writing new monologues to add to her repertoire. Here she is at work at the Biltmore hotel, waiting for her appearances this afternoon and tonight at the Atlanta Woman's Club in "The Wives of Henry VIII", and other monologues.

Historical Field Risky for Writers, Says Cornelia Otis Skinner Here

"Historical novels usually bore me," commented Cornelia Otis Skinner.

"You're not referring to 'Gone With the Wind'?"

"Oh, heavens, no!" she insisted earnestly. "Margaret Mitchell created fictitious characters and merely set them in historical scenes. She did a wonderful job. It's really encouraging to know that the American public has responded so well to such a good book. My criticism of historical novels is directed merely against those persons who try to delineate the private life of some famous historical figure. In other words, if Margaret Mitchell had tried to write the private life of General Lee or General Jackson or General Sherman into her book, she would have been forced to embroider the facts."

Cornelia Otis Skinner has read a great deal of history in search of material for her historical monologues, such as "The Wives of Henry VIII," which she will present as the second half of her performances this afternoon and tonight at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Her repertoire also includes monologues on Empress Eugenie and the loves of Charles II.

"Margaret Mitchell," she said, "wrote about human beings in the everyday walks of life and she did her job splendidly.

"My complaint is when I read allegedly inside exposes of the private lives of some notable historic figures and know very well that the characters were evolved in the minds of the authors, according to their likes or dislikes, their passions or their prejudices, religious or political."

Besides her historical monologues, Miss Skinner has a repertoire of 25 character monologues, out of which she selects several for each performance. She writes all her material herself and is unique in this field.

She reached Atlanta yesterday and enjoyed a day of rest before her appearance today and tonight. "I have to stay in training when I am on the road," she explained. "It's just as though I were singing—I must take care of my voice and the weather everywhere is terrible just now."

She makes two or three tours a year; her husband and her son live in New York during the winter and on Long Island in the summer and she limits the length of her tours so that she can spend most of her time with them; she does not believe in hand-plucked eyebrows which, she insists, are "ghashtly things, adopted only by Americans, Orientals and Elizabethans—I like them bushy and natural."

She is the daughter, as everyone knows, of the late Otis Skinner.

Week End Expected To Bring End To Period of Warm, Wet Weather

The weatherman wouldn't say it above a whisper, but the old song entitled "Button Up Your Overcoat" is due for a revival over the week end

"Nothing definite until tomorrow," Chief Forecaster George W. Mindling said last night, "but it looks as though this spring-like weather is going to break soon, probably during the week end. The severe weather in the middle west is apparently going to drift down this way."

So it would not be amiss to check the coal bins and to clean out unused furnaces; some overcoats may need buttons and a good solid piece of leather underfoot is not to be sneezed at.

For today the forecast is again the old recording, now getting scratchy and tuneless—cloudy skies, light rains and considerable fog during the early morning hours. It will also be slightly warmer, probably starting at about 55 degrees in the morning—building up to a terrific letdown, as it were.

Yesterday's low point was 46 degrees, with a gradual climb to 49 during the day.

Rain today will mark the 18th rainy day out of the 20 days chalked up in January. The surplus rainfall for the month has been 6.45 inches, twice the normal amount.

LT. M'KIBBEN TO HEAD CITY DETECTIVE SQUAD

Now Detectives.

Plainclothesmen elevated to detective rank and pay are A. B. McNaughton, J. B. King, E. J. Hilderbrand, John Crankshaw, C. C. Harper, Leo Nahlik, E. S. Acree, Frank Watson, R. R. Davis, Paul E. Jones and W. D. Wallace.

Transferred from uniform duty with the rank and pay of a detective is C. L. Taylor.

Transferred from uniform duty to the detective bureau as plainclothesmen are I. P. Jones and Doc Sims. Jones is at present assigned to duty as chauffeur for Mayor Hartsfield.

The detectives transferred will replace 13 supernumeraries removed from the regular pay rolls as an economy measure and replaced on the supernumerary list.

The new head of the detective bureau has been a policeman since February, 1912, and has spent most of his police career as a detective on the automobile theft squad. He became a lieutenant in June, 1934, and since that time has been in charge of the day watch.

Lieutenant Burnett has been attached to the detective bureau a good part of his police career, and at one time was in charge of the traffic bureau.

Personnel Reduced.

The special order reduces the personnel in the detective bureau from 59 to 47.

The slashes came as a result of a study instituted by Chief Hornsby shortly after his appointment in the first day of the Hartsfield administration with instructions to eliminate "deadwood" in the detective bureau.

Hornsby last night in announcing the designation of McKibben to be in charge of the bureau said he expected him to do a good job with the reduced department and that he had implicit confidence in his ability to carry out that work.

Just as Hornsby has been given complete control of the police department by the police committee of city council, so McKibben was handed control of the detective bureau by the police chief.

Immediately after he issued the special order, Hornsby told newspapermen that "any further announcements will have to come from Lieutenant McKibben. He is in complete charge of the bureau."

"PROUD FATHER" AT 79.

"several feet high" surged toward the residential and business districts. Families had evacuated their homes several hours before when the levee showed unusual signs of strain.

Residents reported from 10 to 12 feet of water coursed into their homes, and approximately three feet of water drove into the business area.

Backwater from the Mississippi spread over lowlands in western Tennessee. The Cumberland river, more than six feet over flood stage, drove out many householders and threatened waterfront buildings at Nashville.

The Yadkin and Roanoke rivers went over the top in North Carolina.

Guards patrolling levees near Blytheville, Ark., were ordered to "shoot to kill" any persons found attempting to cut through levees to save their own property from inundation.

Ohio River Swells.

The rain-fed Ohio swelled steadily for some 700 miles from Belleville, W. Va., to Cairo, Ill., although it fell or remained stationary from Belleville upstream to Pittsburgh. The Mississippi, gorged by showers ranging up to more than two inches, rose along its middle and lower reaches.

Rain and snow were forecast. Colder weather was predicted, too, but meteorologists expected flood waters to burden the Ohio for at least a week between Portsmouth, Ohio, and Louisville and for three or four weeks below Louisville. A crest of 46 feet—near the 1913 flood level—was indicated at Evansville.

Heavy snow, measuring up to 10 inches, drifted over roads in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Snow reached a depth of two inches in New York.

Chinese Jail Giant Too Big for Wagon

SHANGHAI, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Detectives who raided a Japanese drug dealer's home tonight were beaten by a Chinese giant, eight feet tall, who apparently had been employed by the Japanese as a bodyguard. Reinforcements eventually overcame both the Japanese and the giant, who gave his name as Tsan Yung-an.

The giant was tied with ropes because no handcuffs could be found large enough for him. He had to be marched to jail because he was too big for the patrol wagon.

THOMASVILLE COURT IS TO BE RETAINED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Senator Russell, of Georgia, said today he would amend his judicial redistricting plan to include a division for the federal district court at Thomasville, Georgia.

The senator said his bill was drafted early in the last congress, before a division of the court was authorized for the south Georgia city. Through inadvertence, he said, the new bill was introduced as originally written, making no provision for the Thomasville court.

The co-author of the bill, Representative B. Frank Whelchel, of Gainesville, said he had no intention of changing the status of the Thomasville court, and indicated he would discuss an amendment with Senator Russell.

The Georgians proposed a new federal district in Georgia. They are opposed by Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Decatur, who said a greater need was for an additional judge in the Atlanta court.

Reporter With Only Three Passes Is Far, Far From Inaugural Parade

Closest He Comes To Seeing Procession Is a Misty View of a Statue From Quagmire of LaFayette Park; 14 Slips Required To Observe Entire Show.

By EDDIE GILMORE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Your correspondent barged forth with three glittering police passes today and wound up in the muddy bog of a city park a day's sail from the inaugural parade.

The passes were all right, but there just weren't enough of them to dent the bulging lines of stalwart policemen and chesty firemen—not to mention half the youth of the capital dressed in Boy Scout suits.

A total of 14 passes was required to view this soggy inauguration from every angle.

To begin with there was a dainty little pink card that gave admittance to a squashy area on Capitol Hill two inches deep in rain water.

This would have been fine except for a hunk of canvas—thrown over the great seal of the United States and never removed—which blocked out the President and gave the illusion that the ceremonies were going on without him.

So it came time to try the magic of a canary colored pass marked "special."

"Why?"

"Because the President hasn't passed. Can't you read?"

There it was in black and yellow.

"Police will permit bearer to pass through police lines and operate within three feet of curb along route of parade—after the President has passed."

"What good's a pass after the President's passed?"

"You can see the horses," said the policeman.

Uptown, however, the constabulary was tougher, special passes were demanded by the metropolitan police, park police, capitol police and White House police.

Having only three passes the closest this reporter came to seeing the military parade was a misty view of the statue of General Kosciusko in the quagmire of LaFayette park.

WHY THEY GAVE UP OTHER MAKE CARS and Switched to the Big New 1937 Dodge!

READ WHAT THEY SAY!

ISABELLE CARPENTER REESE, Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.—"I always thought that all cars just above the very lowest-priced cars cost about the same. I know better now. When I started checking delivered prices of the more popular makes, I found that they delivered for considerably more than Dodge. I bought a Dodge and saved money right from the start."

W. McILROY, Los Angeles—"An eyeful for looks—a miser for thrift—I found that out about Dodge—and that's why I switched. I think it's the finest-looking car on the road—and what a honey it is to handle! It hasn't given me less than 19 miles to the gallon of gas since I started driving it."

MRS. JOHN McBRIDE, Valparaiso, Indiana—"It's gorgeous looking—and what a money saver! My new Dodge gives me 20 miles to the gallon of gas. And how easily it steers—what quick gear shifting—and you couldn't sell me on any other brakes after using Dodge hydraulic brakes."

ARTHUR J. F. LOWE, Chicago—"The low delivered price of the new Dodge sold me. I looked at all of the well-known makes and found that Dodge delivered prices, by comparison with other makes, were lower than ever before! Why, my Dodge sedan is costing just about what one of the lowest-priced sedans would have cost!"

DESERTING other makes of cars which they had long "sworn by," thousands of motorists the country over are discovering that "switch to Dodge" literally means "to save money!"

These thousands have found that the new 1937 Dodge gives them not only record-smashing economy but an unbeatable combination of extra-value features!

They've found that Dodge gives them a quieter ride than they've ever known, because its safety all-steel body is anchored to the frame in noise-proof cushions of rubber! And the new Dodge "high-safety" interior, with no protruding buttons on the instrument panel, gives them an entirely new kind of safety!

And that's not all! New Chair-Height seats, inches wider both front and rear!... Low, level floor!... New windstream styling! . . . Genuine hydraulic brakes! And yet with all these and many other extra-value features, Dodge delivers for only a few dollars more than lowest-priced cars!

See and drive this new Dodge today! See why Dodge owners everywhere report 18 to 24 miles per gallon of gas! Do these things and you, too, will say "switch to Dodge—and save money!"

Crown Darby Given Celebrants On 20th Wedding Anniversary

By Sally Forth.

CONGRATULATIONS mingled with farewells last evening when one hundred members of the younger married contingent gathered at the Capital City Club as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bird. The festive occasion was in celebration of the hosts' 20th wedding anniversary and the affair was also in the nature of a farewell party. Within a few weeks the hosts and their two charming daughters, Betty Ann and Louise, will depart for Dallas, Texas, where they will establish their residence.

Preceding their departure from their Valley road home last evening a special messenger delivered to Mr. and Mrs. Bird a handsome gift which bore the names of their guests. The present was a complete surprise to the celebrants, who had carefully guarded that the date of the party had any special significance.

The package contained a Crown Darby tureen, very classic in shape, and 12 Crown Darby after-dinner coffee cups. Ivy leaves in different shades of gray, the tendrils traced in gold and the leaves outlined with gold, decorated the cream-colored background of the tureen. Rich shades in red, gold, blue and yellow featured the bud and flower design ornamenting the coffee cups. The selection of the gift was exceedingly appropriate as china is always given on the 20th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird greeted their guests in the grill room of the club which had been transformed into a veritable peach orchard with garlands of smilax and miniature trees bearing full-blown peach blossoms. Mrs. Bird's dainty blond beauty was further accentuated by her gown of green satin, which was offset by a shoulder spray of exquisite white orchids. Her only ornament was a beautiful bracelet, the gift of Mr. Bird.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Bird was a social event taking place January 20, 1917. Mrs. Bird is the former Archie Crowley and since her marriage to Mr. Bird, they have been popular in whatever social circles they have chosen to lend their presence. Since their residence in Atlanta, where they maintain a charming home on Valley road, they have been admired and popular figures among social and cultural sets. Their forthcoming departure for Dallas is a source of sincere regret to their circle of admirers here.

"CINERARIA" was the word which stumped Mrs. Bolling Sassnet and won for Mrs. Earl Cone the prize offered by the Iris Garden Club at the horticultural spelling bee which highlighted the recent meeting of this fashionable group. The affair was held at the Habersham road residence of Mrs. Frank Spratlin.

The club was divided into two teams captained by Mrs. Herbert Reynolds and Mrs. Owen Perry. Such tongue twisters as antirrhinum, scabiosa, cephalocereus, linarias, brachycome and nemophia were given the team members to spell, being in accord with their botanical study of plants and flowers.

When it became a tie between Mrs. Cone and Mrs. Sassnet, "cineraria" was the word which had both lovely matrons dazed. But not for long, for Mrs. Cone outspelled her contest rival on this unusual name and won a handsome scrapbook as prize. Incidentally, Mr. Webster gives as his definition of the word as follows: "A handsome pot plant having ample heart-shaped leaves and large clusters of flower heads with white, red or purple rays, the colors often variegated. There are many varieties."

THE spotlight in babydom falls today upon those precious new arrivals at Piedmont hospital, Betty Gage Lippitt, Jack Glenn Jr. and Christopher Brandon. They all made their appearance recently, and seem to be finding this world an awfully nice place, thank you. Betty is following right in her beautiful mother's footsteps, for she's very popular with the boys. The other day she received the cutest miniature corsage bouquet from Christopher, but that very evening she had a date with Jack. But little Betty's a smart girl—she knows how to handle all the members of the opposite sex that surround her crib. And although she's only a week old, if you could see what an adorable baby Betty is you'd understand why she's the belle of the hospital.

LIKE all Scotsmen, Walter McElreath is inordinately proud of his origin. So proud, in fact, that he has given his lovely home on Piedmont road a Scotch name.

Situated as it is on a picturesque hillside, the name, Braebiggin, seems peculiarly appropriate. Mr. McElreath coined the name from the two Scotch words, brae, meaning hillside, and biggin which is Scotch for cabin or country home.

Mrs. Richardson Is Honor Guest At Farewell Party

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, who with a group of other prominent Atlantans, said on February 4 for a two-month South American cruise, was honor guest last evening at a novel and elaborate party given by members of her Sunday school class of St. Mark Methodist church. The occasion assembled 200 guests who were seated at attractively appointed tables, the decorations of each table being suggestive of each month in the year. The guests were seated at the table featuring the month in which their birthdays are celebrated.

Mrs. Otis A. Barge acted as supper chairman, and Mrs. Edith Duncan Muse, as program chairman, presented the following artists: Miss Elizabeth Hopson, pianist; Mrs. E. E. MacMoreland, soloist; Mrs. T. J. Watkins, soloist, and Miss Ruth Draper, well-known reader.

The following were in charge of table decorations: Mesdames Henry Reid, Bayfield Gibson, W. E. Beckham, Maynard Smith, J. W. Speas, W. O. Foote, Ben T. Carter, W. Lee Thurmond, W. L. Bryan, Forrest Barfield, John C. Orr, J. C. Duggan, Misses Angie Blosser and Eloise Moon.

During the evening Mrs. Richardson was presented with a shower of farewell gifts, the presentation being made by Albert Armstrong, Sunday school superintendent. Tributes were paid to Mrs. Richardson during the dinner by Dr. and Mrs. Lester Rumble, the former being pastor of St. Mark church, and Rev. Robert Hayes, assistant pastor of the church; Mrs. Willaford Leach, prominent member of the class; Mrs. Albert Armstrong, president of the Alonzo Richardson Bible Class.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

Stand on outer borders of bare feet while you brush your teeth.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DON'T BE A TENDERFOOT!

Are your heels run over? Better get them fixed before all the 26 bones of your foot are out of sorts. Runover heels weaken the muscles on the side of the foot and every time you let this happen you further injure the weakened muscles. There's nothing like aching feet to put lines in your face and give you a desperate expression.

Runover heels are visible evidence that you are walking incorrectly. when you toe straight ahead the weight falls along the whole length of the arch and you do not run your heels over. With the toes turned out, however, the weight is thrown on the inner border of the foot—which is its weakest position. Practice a walk that points the toes straight ahead with the weight inclined toward the outer borders.

It is particularly important for heavy people to carry their weight correctly, as even with normal weight the foot is subject to strain in incorrect weight-bearing. A high arch can be weak and a low arch can be strong, or the other way around. It's not the height of the arch that causes aches and pains, it's the lowering of the arch in weight-bearing that causes the trouble.

Walking a chalk line will help to strengthen your feet. Try it. Place one foot directly ahead of the other, with the toes curled under and the weight thrown to the outer borders of the feet. Take this foot exercise without shoes.

A little foot exercise goes a long way. as you will be glad to know. An instructor who specializes in corrective exercises for the feet says that if you will stand on the outer borders of your feet, without shoes, while brushing the teeth night and morning the arches will gradually be strengthened by even this small amount of exercise.

Picking up objects with the toes—jacks, marbles, pencils or a small dumbbell—has proved effective foot exercise. Sit on a chair and pick up the objects, one at a time, in the toes. Cross the foot over the knee and drop the jacks or marbles into the hand.

Try the grip walk, as advised by Lillian Drew. Step forward with one foot, and as the weight is brought forward, girp strongly with the advanced foot. Relax the girp as the next step is taken, grip with the other foot.

If you are a tenderfoot, contrast baths are helpful. Place the feet in hot water for a second or two, then in cold water to stimulate circulation. Rub briskly with a stiff brush.

Short stockings are almost as bad as short shoes for buckling the toes. Both make the toes curl up unnaturally and will give you anything from bunions to arthritis. Change your stockings daily, and if you are on your feet a great deal of the time, a change of shoes is as good as a rest.

You may think your fet get plenty of exercise, but if they hurt it's the wrong kind of exercise.

TOY PISTOL HOLDUPS ARE CHARGED TO PAIR

Identification of Men by Victims Is Claimed by Police.

Police pursuit of an automobile ended early yesterday morning in the arrest of two young men on charges of suspicion of robbery, following their identification by alleged holdup victims as the pair which, armed with a toy pistol, robbed them.

The suspects identified themselves as Bill Kingston, 23, of 515 Lee street, and Gerald Cosby, 19, of 960 Oak street.

Radio Patrolmen W. S. Acree and M. J. Price reported they pursued the suspects in their car on North avenue, forcing the vehicle to halt at Merritts avenue and Williams street. They said a toy pistol and three license plates were in the car.

The arrest followed a series of holdups shortly after midnight in which T. W. Beauchamp, of 180 Luckie street, reported being robbed of a ring and $14 in cash, A. A. Stephens, of 126 Hunnicutt street, of a purse containing a small amount of cash, K. B. Blume, of 450 West Peachtree street, of $1.50, and C. F. Martin, manager of a gasoline station at 921 Boulevard, N. E., of $35 in cash.

Police also stated the suspects were allegedly linked with the holdup of Mellwood Oxford, of 179 Houston street, delivery boy, and the robbery of an unidentified negro.

GEORGE W. OLIVER, WIRE LEADER, DIES

Postal Credit Manager Here Rose From Clerkship in 49 Years' Service.

George W. Oliver, credit manager for the Postal Telegraph Company here and a veteran of 49 years' service with the company, died Tuesday night at the residence, 1708 Peachtree street.

A native of Dorchester, England, Mr. Oliver came to this country in the early seventies with his parents, who first settled in New York. Prior to coming to Atlanta and beginning his long association with the telegraph company, Mr. Oliver lived in several cities in the Carolinas.

He began his service with the telegraph firm as counter clerk when the Atlanta office was opened in 1889. He was successively promoted to bookkeeper, cashier and credit manager, supervising credits in southeastern states.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Marie Costello and Mrs. C. B. Angle, of Chicago; two brothers, Herbert Oliver, of Washington, and Charles Oliver, of Birmingham, and two sisters, Mrs. Lillie Benson, of Albany, and Mrs. W. J. Lynch, of Atlanta.

Final rites will be held at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Sacred Heart church, with the Rev. John Emmerth officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, under direction of Sam R. Greenberg.

BOYD IS NAMED HEAD OF RAILWAY MAIL HERE

Jacksonville Man Chosen Superintendent, Succeeding Late J. F. Bradley.

James R. Boyd, Jacksonville, has been appointed superintendent of the railway mail service here, succeeding John F. Bradley, who died last Friday, it was learned yesterday.

Boyd, who has been chief clerk at Jacksonville, will arrive here Monday to assume his new duties, which involve supervision of mail movement in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee. More than 1,300 employes are under his control. Atlanta is one of the 15 division headquarters in the United States. His transfer here became effective Tuesday.

E. D. Adams remains as assistant superintendent of the Atlanta division under Boyd.

Boyd, who is 67, was born in Abbeville county, S. C., and joined the railway mail service in April, 1891, as a substitute railway postal clerk, serving on the Charlotte-Augusta route, the Charlotte-Jacksonville route and the Hamlet, N. C.-Jacksonville route. In December, 1913, he was appointed chief clerk at Nashville, and on February 1, 1914, was transferred to Jacksonville, where he has served until his promotion to the post here.

Bradley, whom he succeeds, served as superintendent here from March, 1934, until his death. He had been assistant division superintendent for 18 years prior to 1934.

PRIVATE LINE 'PHONE ORDERED OUT BY CHIEF

Declaring he doesn't intend to have "private conversations," Acting Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby yesterday ordered a direct-line telephone removed from his office, saving the city $10 a month.

"I don't need that phone," said the chief. "I can do all my telephoning through the department's exchange.

These Maps Will Tell You

When you read your daily newspaper, do you get a real picture of world events? The Germans land marines at Ceuta; the British government reduces the status of its diplomatic post at Addis Ababa; Italy denies that General Franco has promised the use of the Balearic Islands; an earthquake occurs in Costa Rica; an oil concession is granted in Afghanistan; new minerals are discovered in Siberia; the temperature reaches a new low at Laramie, Wyo.; the China Clipper pauses at Wake Island; a border incident occurs in Outer Mongolia; ships take supplies to Nome—scores and hundreds of date lines in your daily newspaper make you want to look at a map to visualize where and why world news is happening. Well, here's the solution: Our Washington Service Bureau has a series of four splendid maps ready for you. In the drawer of your library table you can have the world at your finger-tips. The set of four maps includes:

1. Map of the United States.
2. Map of North America.
3. Map of Europe.
4. Map of the World.

Each one is 13 1-2 inches by 21 inches in size, printed on good paper, in black and three colors, and on the reverse side contains a wealth of facts and figures on cities, rivers, population, air line distances, etc., which explain and supplement the maps themselves.

The set of four maps in a single packet will be sent to any reader for 25 cents to cover return postage and other costs. Fill out coupon below:

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

EVERY TOOTH IS WORTH A THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Pyorrhea means a purulent discharge but the term has been applied most commonly to chronic inflammation of the gums, especially the periosteum or bone-covering membrane lining the tooth sockets. This chronic inflammation is accompanied with more or less suppuration or pus formation and shrinkage of the gums and consequent loosening of the teeth. Not all gum inflammation (ulitis, gingivitis) is pyorrhea, though dentors often refer to the earlier stages of pyorrhea, (Rigg's disease) as interstitial gingivitis when they find the gums around the necks of the teeth involved.

In the light of the present knowledge the view acceptable to most doctors and dentors who have studied the question is that pyorrhea is a nutritional condition, that is to say it is a manifestation of faulty nutrition. Nutrition, as we docs use the term, means much more than proper food. It means the assimilation (metabolism) of material whereby body tissue is built up or repaired and energy liberated. So you see it includes digestion, absorption, utilization, or assimilation, excretion, in fact the works. After all, when a physician finds that a child or adult is "poorly nourished" he doesn't mean the patient doesn't get enough to eat. Most victims of malnutrition get enough to eat, many eat too much.

If it is true that pyorrhea is a nutritional disorder it does not follow that correction of the nutritional fault will cure pyorrhea. After the condition has progressed for any length of time there is inevitably more or less artophy, wasting, shrinkage, degeneration or shriveling of tissues, of course, with impairment of loss of function. Degeneration may be stopped, but regeneration is another matter. One can as reasonably expect to restore the characteristics of youth to an individual whose hair has grown gray and whose skin has become wrinkled as to restore normal teeth and gums after pyorrhea has been allowed to exist for months or years.

It requires the full co-operation of doctor and dentor to insure the best possible results from treatment of pyorrhea in any case. Neither should take any significant step in treatment without the sanction of his colleague. Only in this way can the progress of pyorrhea be checked.

The general health invariably suffers when pyorrhea exists. The principal reason for the undermining of health is the nutritional deficiency that causes the trouble. Another reason is the constant inoculation or poisoning of the body by absorption of septic products from pus-pockets about the teeth and gums, absorption through the lymphatic and blood stream. Swallowing of pus or other poisonous exudations from the gums is comparatively harmless.

The soreness, tenderness, sponginess of the gums as well as looseness or perhaps loss of teeth tends to prevent proper mastication of natural foods or to make the patient avoid healthful foods which require much chewing in favor of less healthful ones which require little or no mastication, and this leads to digestive difficulties of various kinds and often to further nutritional deficiencies, as will be explained in another article.

ELECTRONS PUT TO WORK.

Electrons are being harnessed for practical purposes. Experiments at the California Institute of Technology have reached a point where it is possible to turn a miniature windmill with invisible electrons.

Interesting Georgia Personalities VIA THE ZODIAC

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON,
Foremost American Astrologer.

MISS HARRIETT TEMPLETON.

March 9 marks the natal day of Miss Harriett Templeton, charming and petite secretary to Hon. Roy V. Harris, speaker of the house of representatives.

This brings her birth date under the influence of the zodiacal sign Pisces, the twelfth sign of the zodiac, and the sign of unselfishness, reliability, calmness, determination.

The moon governs the particular part of the sign under which this birthdate comes. This bespeaks one idealistic and fair-minded, reliable and sincere.

The Saturn-Jupiter position gives idealism and refinement of spirit. The Mars position gives executive talent.

The Sun-Jupiter position adds breadth of mind, high altruism.

The Venus-Saturn position gives her a love for art and culture and the finer things of life.

The sun position shows her to be intuitive and an excellent judge of human nature.

The Venus-Jupiter position becomes the promise of success and happiness to continue throughout the period of a long life.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Atlanta Constitution, compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best-known astrologers.

All you have to do is to fill in the coupon below, including a self-addressed, stamped envelope, together with 10 cents in coin to cover mailing cost. You will then receive through the mail certain pertinent facts which deal astrologically with the Sun at the time of your birth, called a Sun-chart, and with this Sun-chart, a series of numbers which will enable you to identify the planetary interpretations, which will be published in The Atlanta Constitution each day, dealing with the influence of a given planet on the day of your birth, according to the rules of astrology. When you have checked each of your numbers your forecast will be complete.

Below are planetary indications, according to the rules of astrology, one of which may apply to your forecast. Every day these interesting interpretations will be published, descriptive of the influence of the planets at the time of your birth. Your astrological forecast includes a Sun-chart and planetary interpretations, designated by numbers on your Sun-chart. Watch carefully day by day for your numbers.

Number 307—In selecting your mate you should be guided by a person's intelligence rather than merely physical attraction. You like people who are calm and well balanced. You are not inclined to make many promises, but carry out those that you do make. Your enemies need cause you no concern, as the likelihood is that you will always outwit them. You need not fear monotony, as there will always be plenty of excitement in your life.

Number 402—You are an excellent judge of human nature, and display presence of mind in the face of danger. You like speculation and at times are fortunate along those lines, but the indications are that these periods are only temporary, and bring no lasting benefits. Your best investments would be in government bonds and real estate, carefully selected. You will be tempted to go to extremes, but avoid them at all costs.

Number 303—You have a highly intuitive mind, but are likely to change your mind at a moment's notice. Your first impressions are usually your best ones. Avoid extremes of all kinds. You possess many latent abilities. Take stock of yourself, decide on your best talent, develop it, and yours will be a successful and happy life. Now is the time to avoid over-confidence and over-expansion.

Number 506—Practice regular habits of daily hygiene and your health will improve. You are clever in planning short cuts and economizing time. While others are puzzling over these problems, you are able to come to a conclusion.

Mrs. Bernice Denton Pierson, Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Please prepare astrological forecast, according to the rules of astrology, of the birth date submitted below and return to the name and address given. I enclose:

1. Self-addressed, stamped envelope.
2. Ten cents in coin to cover mailing cost.

Birthday ____________________

WISDOM PRESSES AUDIT OF BUREAUS

Additional Workers Join in Investigation During Inaugural Lull.

Audit of all departments was being pushed yesterday by the state auditing department, during the lull in business caused by the exodus of officials to Washington for the inauguration.

Under the direction of State Auditor Tom Wisdom, additional employes have been transferred to the state auditing department to expedite the work.

Auditors are now working on the accounts of the revenue department, the highway department, the military department and the comptroller general's office, having just completed an audit of the Governor's office which is to be compiled and presented to Governor Rivers on his return.

The Department of Agriculture, already audited, showed a deficit of $67,000 up to the time of Commissioner Tom Linder's retirement. The auditors are working overtime on the audit of the treasury department, since this division has not paid out any money under the new regime pending passage of an appropriation act.

JOB INSURANCE TEST BEFORE U. S. COURT

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—(UP)—The United States circuit court of appeals late today took under advisement the first national test case involving constitutionality of the unemployment insurance provision of the federal social security act.

The court must affirm or reverse the decision of District Judge George C. Sweeney, who held the tax for the general welfare and valid.

Specifically the tribunal must decide whether the Boston & Maine railroad should be restrained from paying an excise tax on pay rolls assessed under Title 9—the unemployment insurance provision—of the act.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

TWO-BIDS ON FREAKS.

The honor trick minimum for a forcing two-bid drops below five only in the case of freak long suits or freak two-suiters.

Distribution such as 5-5-2-1 is not a "freak," but the common garden variety of two-suiter. To justify a two-bid with four and one-half honor tricks, the two-suiter's distribution must be 6-6-1-0, 7-5-1-0, and only in rare cases of solid suits do 6-5-1-1 or 6-5-2-0 hands get by. Only a long suit of seven or eight cards justifies a two-bid with only four honor tricks. Even then, most such hands are better opening three-bids.

Whether freak or not, all two-bids must conform to the formula: more honor tricks than losers.

♠A K 10 9 7 6 4 3 ♥A Q J ♦K 6 ♣none.
♠A K 10 8 7 6 3 ♥K Q J ♦A 6 ♣2.

♠A K 6 5 3 ♥A K 7 ♦A K 2 ♣6 2.
♠A K 9 8 6 5 3 ♥A Q 8 ♦K J 9 ♣none.

TODAY'S HAND.

North-South vulnerable.

SOUTH
♠J 10 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	1 spade	Pass	Pass
Double	2 diamonds	4 clubs	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Redouble*

*Final bid.

The bidding was nothing to elicit admiration. The fact that it occurred in a duplicate game makes the North-South bidding particularly bad. At no time did either partner mention no-trump, which, on their combined holdings, would have been the logical contract. West's two diamond bid also was rather strange—there was no reason to anticipate that the takeout double of one spade would be left in, and therefore no reason to mention the lower ranking suit. South should have redoubled. When he did not do so, he should have considered himself fortunate that North acted on his behalf. He didn't think so, because he proceeded to mismanage the trump suit and went down one trick.

The opening lead was the king of spades. Dummy should win, and lead a low club. The bidding clearly marks West with a spade and diamond two-suiter; the penalty double marks East with no less than four clubs, and the probability is overwhelming that among these four are the queen and ten. The only way, therefore, to prepare for a double finesse is to lead a low club rather than the ace. On this lead South wins with the nine, then returns to the ace, and subsequently finesses to his king-jack. After picking up the trumps he need concede only a spade and a diamond.

The crux in this hand is entry handling. After dummy's spade ace goes on the first lead, its only other reentry, the club ace, must be preserved. To lay down the ace and then take a finesse, however deep, against East is futile and must result in the loss of a trump trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Partner opened the bidding with one heart. Next hand passed. Is my proper response one no-trump with the following:

♠J 8 7 5 ♥J ♦A 7 5 3 ♣8 5 4 2?

Answer: Yes.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—As I was coming out of the homesteaders' meeting yesterday one of the men stopped me and said: "I wish you could come down to my house, I've made a lot of new furniture and the house is looking very nice."

I can't help thinking there is a personal satisfaction in having things in your own home which have been made by your own hands. I have always felt that that was one reason why our forefathers often made really lovely things. They did not work under a strain or in a great hurry, for they were making things which would have to be used in their own homes for many years to come; everything they did was done with both use and beauty in mind.

A little of that feeling is being recaptured in places where people are again making for their own use, with their own hands, things they are going to live with. Next time I go to Arthurdale, I hope to have time to visit a number of houses, and see not only the furniture, but some of the new babies who are growing up so quickly. One man handed me a photograph of a young lady whose middle name is Eleanor, and I think she must be at least two years old, though she was born on the project.

Mrs. Scheider and I arrived in Washington last night. We dined on the train with some of the other people who went down with us, and put in five hours of uninterrupted work, a rare thing for us, and one we rejoiced in.

People always say to me: "Why do you think so much of uninterrupted time?" I realize I lay particular stress on it because, between the telephone and the numbers of people constantly coming to ask me questions, I rarely have 15 minutes without an interruption in the White House. I have learned to disentangle my mind from whatever I am doing, answer the question and go back to the task in hand, but try as I will, my train of thought is interrupted.

A press conference this morning, and before that at least ten people in and out of my room, each trying to adjust his or her particular difficulty. I hope everyone gets met at the trains, I hope the right people get their right seats, I hope I haven't forgotten my best friends, but I realize that all these are but hopes and much like our hopes about the weather! Time alone will tell what we have done and not done about tomorrow.

When you think it over, the most important thing is that the President's speech at this second inauguration shall carry on the spirit which began with his speech in 1933.

DR. C. K. HENDERSON, BAPTIST LEADER, DIES

Dr. Charles Kennon Henderson, prominent Baptist clergyman and veteran of the War Between the States, died unexpectedly yesterday morning at the residence, 290 Ormond street, S. E., at the age of 91.

Dr. Henderson was the oldest living graduate of Mercer University, which he entered after service with the third Georgia regiment, and from which he was graduated in 1868.

He was commander of Camp 159, United Confederate Veterans, and his likeness was chosen for one of three plaster figures on the walls of the cyclorama in Grant park.

Dr. Henderson served many pastorates in Georgia and other southern states. He was the author of several books, and a frequent contributor to the Christian Index and other religious journals.

He had served as president of Bowdon College, Bowdon, Ga. Following his graduation from Colgate Divinity school, he held several pastorates in New York state.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Grace Pittman, of Polk county; a daughter, Mrs. Gertha Hollis, of Richberg, S. C.; four granddaughters, Miss Kennon Henderson, of Carrollton; Miss Elizabeth Hollis and Miss Gertha Hollis, both of South Carolina, and Mrs. L. A. States, and six grandsons, Edgar and Joseph Henderson, of West Point; Mandeville Henderson, of Fitzgerald; W. G., Charles H. and Harris Hollis.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the First Baptist church in Cedartown, with Drs. W. H. Knight and Louie D. Newton and the Revs. H. H. Stembridge and Marvin Williams officiating. Burial will be in Cedartown cemetery, under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

MRS. E. T. M'LEROY, 67, PASSES IN EAST POINT

Mrs. E. T. McLeroy, long-time resident of East Point and prominent in church affairs, died yesterday at the residence, 509 South Church street, at the age of 67.

A native of Newnan, she had been a resident of East Point for 30 years, and was an active member of the East Point First Baptist church.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. David A. Fields; a son, E. G. McLeroy, all of East Point; four sisters, Mrs. E. H. Reeves, Mrs. O. H. Wingo, Mrs. E. E. Padgett and Mrs. F. G. Golden; a brother, Z. R. Vinyard, of Sharpsburg, and several grandchildren.

Final rites will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the First Baptist church, East Point, with the Revs. W. A. Duncan and E. A. Miller officiating. Burial will be in College Park cemetery, under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Hollywood Today

BY SHEILAH GRAHAM.

—News From the Studios—

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20.—Cecil B. DeMille has cabled Robert Donat, offering him the sun, moon and sky—also a sizable sum of dollars—to leave immediately the fog of London for Hollywood and the leading role in "Buccaneer," super epic concerning Pirate Jean LaFitte of Louisiana. Should Donat fail to nibble the gilded bait, De Mille will essay the equally difficult task of begging Clark Gable from his M.-G.-M. bosses. If this fails, he is not above asking Sam Goldwyn for the loan of Gary Cooper, for whom "Buccaneer" was originally intended.

And thereby hangs an amusing tale. When Goldwyn signed lanky Mr. Cooper away from the studio which had built him up from an unknown extra to a top box-office attraction, Paramount's anger found vent in a five-million-dollar suit charging Sam with star thefting. Since this incident, the two studios have not been on friendly terms—to put it conservatively.

A few weeks ago De Mille announced "Buccaneer" as his next production. Also, that he wanted Gary Cooper for the leading part. This gave Mr. Goldwyn the great idea of making a picture, "Pirate's Lady," based on the same character, and, of course, with Gary Cooper in the role of Jean LaFitte. And now there is a race on between the studios to beat the other to the post with the pirate story. At the moment, Paramount looks like the winner. Playwright Edwin Justus Mayer has been signed to rush the script into readiness within a month, instead of waiting until April, as planned earlier.

Bob Burns reports to R.-K.-O.-Radio, at the conclusion of "Waikiki Wedding," for an important part in "Radio City Revels." The lavish musical comedy revue in which Jack Oakie—fast becoming Hollywood's favorite funny man—and pathetic-faced Victor Moore have top comedy roles, is scheduled to start shooting March 15. Pretty Ann Sothern is being considered as chief feminine attraction for the film, and negotiations are afoot for the services of her band leader bridegroom, Roger Pryor.

Oscar Straus, well-known composer of the light operetta, "The Chocolate Soldier," has been persuaded by Sol Lessor to come to Hollywood February 15 to compose the music for 11-year-old Bobby Breen's next picture, "Boy Blue." This will mark the first film scored by Straus. Bobby will appear as the son of an Alpine sheep herder. Prepare for some fine yodelling, as the lad tends the flock. Kurt Neumann directs.

Weak, Rundown, Nervous Ailing Folks!

How Thousands Have Used New Sea Plant—Rich in Natural Iodine—to Get Back Glorious New Strength, Energy and Endurance!

Here's new hope and encouragement for thousands of tired, weak, worn out, haggard-looking men and women whose energy and strength have been sapped by overwork and worry, who are nervous, irritable, always half-sick and ailing. Science has at last placed its finger on what is frequently one of the principal causes of this dangerous rundown condition — IODINE STARVED GLANDS. When these glands don't work properly, all the food in the world can't help you. You just do not get nourishment from what you eat.

The most important gland—the one which actually controls strength and body-building—needs a definite ration of iodine all the time — NATURAL ASSIMILABLE IODINE—not to be confused with chemical iodides which often prove toxic. Only when the system gets an adequate supply of iodine can you regulate metabolism—the body's process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy.

To get this vital mineral in convenient, concentrated and assimilable form, take Kelpamalt—now recognized as one of the world's richest sources of this precious substance, yielding iodine in greater abundance than oysters, spinach or lettuce.

Without Cost—Make This Iodine Test

First see how long you can work or how far you can walk without tiring. Then take 3 Seedol Kelpamalt Tablets with each meal for one week and notice how much longer you can work without tiring, how much farther you can walk. Notice how much better you feel, sleep and eat. Watch for increased energy, vigor and endurance. See how your skin clears up, ordinary stomach distress is relieved, how scrawny hollows fill out. If you do not gain in endurance, strength and energy the first week, the trial is free. Your own doctor will approve this way. Seedol Kelpamalt costs but little to use. Try it today. Sold at all good drug stores.

SEEDOL
Kelpamalt Tablets

● Manufacturer's Note:—Inferior products sold as kelp and malt preparations—in imitation of the genuine Kelpamalt—are being offered as substitutes. Don't be fooled. Demand genuine Seedol Kelpamalt Tablets. They are easily assimilated, do not upset stomach nor injure teeth. Results guaranteed or money back.

Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity Plans Program for Convention Visitors

A series of entertainment features has been planned for the delegates to the national midyear convention of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity to be held at the Hotel Ansley Friday through Sunday. Members of Georgia Alpha chapter will be hosts, assisted by the members of the Georgia Beta chapter in East Point.

Starting with a Dutch supper and smoker Friday evening, the convention program calls for a sightseeing trip Saturday morning, a tea-dance at the Hotel Ansley at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, followed by the grand ball to be held in the civic room at 9:30 o'clock.

A special midnight supper has been planned after the dance, and Sunday morning the business meeting will be held, followed by the initiation of candidates into the grand chapter and the grand council degrees of the organization.

The convention banquet will be held at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon with John Howard acting as toastmaster Afterwards the visitors will be taken on a trip to Stone Mountain.

Assisting with plans for the dances is a date committee of which Miss Ruth Layfield is chairman. Other members of the committee are Miss Doris Turner and Miss Marguerite Herrin, representing the Tau Beta Phi sorority; Miss Ruth Stafford and Miss Sarah Laney, representing the Tau Phi sorority, and Miss Avrilla Sheridan and Miss Frances Peters. The convention committee of the Georgia Alpha chapter is headed by Maurice Mitchell and K. D. Cooper, as cochairmen.

Prominent fraternal leaders from a distance who will attend are National President J. J. LaBarbera, from Shelbyville, Ind.; National Vice President E. P. White, of Mobile, Ala.; National Secretary-Treasurer Paul F. Deaton, of Connersville, Ind., and Sam M. Bemenderfer, of Muncie, Ind., with Colonel George W. Biggerstaff, of Louisville, Ky., members of the board of trustees.

The Georgia Alpha chapter was installed November 18, 1927. The Georgia Beta chapter of East Point was installed November 14, 1936. Officers and members of the local chapter are M. H. Mathews, president; Ralph H. Allen, vice president; Dale Wilson, master of ceremonies; B. W. Mills Jr., secretary; Henry Satterfield, treasurer; Phillip Dunlap, sergeant-at-arms; Wayne Duttera, inner guard; Gordon Moore, outer guard; Garnett A. Carter, Robert L. Carter, K. D. THE COOK'S NOTE BOOK

By RUTH CHAMBERS.

By RUTH CHAMBERS.

It is my earnest belief that one of the real tests of a good cook is the making of that much maligned dish—hash. Properly prepared, it can be delicious; carelessly put together, it deserves the abuse heaped upon it by the jokesters.

Hash is not easy to make. We start with a piece or pieces of meat that are already cooked. We must warm this meat, but if we cook it any more it will become toughened and tasteless. Whatever our method of making hash, this fact must be remembered. We should remember, too, that no leftover piece of meat should be scorned.

Today's Dinner.
Roast Beef Hash
Buttered Onions Creamed Celery
Half Pear Salad
Coconut Custard Pie

It represents just as much food value as when it came sizzling out of the oven as a roast, and if reheated properly and combined with other foods we shall have no complaint as to flavor.

French cooks have some good suggestions we American cooks may use in making hash. Thrifty French cooks conserve every scrap of meat, and use great care and imagination in making leftover dishes. Let us consider some of their ideas.

Use a Little Fresh Meat.

One of these suggestions, new to many of us, is to use a small amount of some uncooked meat in the hash. This could be fat bacon or liver. Use the bacon with lean leftovers such as veal, and the liver with beef or lamb. This small amount of raw meat takes away any "reheated taste." Only two or three ounces is needed. Chop it by itself and cook it slowly in melted fat in which an onion has been previously fried, then removed.

And speaking of onion, if you use onion in your hash be sure it is well cooked. Do not permit any bits of half-cooked onion to be present.

Add Cooked Meat Last.

Whatever the hash recipe, the chopped cooked meat is added last. Continue the cooking only long enough to heat thoroughly. If the meat goes on cooking, it becomes toughened and tasteless.

Try Varied Combinations.

The French like to vary their hash combinations and seasonings. They will use chopped mushroom and tomato sauce, with stock or water as the moisture. This may give us the idea of using some of our delicious American canned soups as the moisture.

All-Meat Hash.

When there is a good supply of leftover meat, try preparing a hash without the addition of vegetables to the mixture itself.

Cook 1 sliced onion in 2 tablespoons of drippings. Remove the onion and add 2 ounces of chopped fresh liver. When the liver has cooked gently for 5 minutes add enough stock, water or other liquid as canned soup, to cover. Simmer for half an hour, then add chopped cooked meat, and enough flour to thicken well. Continue to heat until mixture comes to a boil, stirring vigorously. Remove from fire and let stand 15 minutes to distribute heat well through the meat. Here are some suggestions for serving:

On toast.

Beef Hash Portuguese Style.

One cup mashed potatoes, 1 cup cooked chopped beef, 3-4 cup tomato sauce, 3 tablespoons butter, bread crumbs.

Combine potatoes and meat thoroughly. Season. Add enough tomato sauce to moisten. Turn into a greased baking dish and cover top with remaining tomato sauce. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and dot with butter. Bake at 400 degrees F. until bread crumbs are well browned and hash thoroughly heated.

Roast Beef Hash.

Two cups cooked roast beef, diced; 3 cups boiled potatoes, diced; salt and pepper, cream.

Combine beef and potatoes. Season and moisten with cream. Put into a hot, buttered frying pan, stir until well mixed. Then place over low heat where it can brown slowly underneath (40 to 50 minutes). Turn and fold on a hot platter. Chopped parsley, green pepper, red pepper or pimientos may be added to hash mixture, if desired.

Poker Hash.

One large can tomatoes, 1 green pepper, 2 stalks celery, 3 onions, 1 1-2 pounds lean ground pork or leftover meat, salt and pepper, 1 package medium fine noodles, 1 cup snappy yellow cheese, grated.

Cut all vegetables fine and cook together until celery and onion are tender. Brown pork in frying pan stirring constantly. Blend the cooked ingredients together—meat, noodles, cheese and vegetables. Put in baking casserole. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake at 325 degrees F. an hour. When served, add browned almonds or mushrooms, if desired.

New Beef Hash.

One cup raw carrots, diced; 1 cup raw potatoes, diced; 2 cups leftover beef, chopped; 1 onion, diced; 1 1-2 cups water, seasonings.

Mix all ingredients together, seasoning to taste and allow to bake at 350 degree F. until vegetables are tender, or about an hour.

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks — and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait —get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

PRESBYTERIANS ASKED TO PRAY FEBRUARY 28

The Rev. B. K. Tenney, secretary of the stewardship committee of the Southern Presbyterian church, announced here yesterday members of the 3,541 churches in the denomination's general assembly would be asked to observe Sunday, February 28, as a day of prayer.

He said the prayer is for students in the church's 41 schools and colleges located in the 15 southern states within the denomination "that they might be directed aright in selection of their life's work." He said this is the 15th annual observance of this occasion.

Barbara Bell Patterns

1271-B

TWO BLOUSES FROM ONE SMART AND PRETTY PATTERN.

Blouses, like crocuses, always bloom very early in the spring, and here are two versions that can be made from the same pattern that will brighten your wintry wardrobe just like a pot of flowers brightens a room. You can make the dressier version, with charming machine-tucked ruffling, out of an airy organdie. And the sportier blouse with revers and two buttons and a plain-edged peplum, will do nicely in a silk crepe or crisp dimity or percale. There's bouffant charm in the dropped swing peplum and the big puffed sleeves.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1271-B is available for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. The dressy blouse, size 16 (34) requires 2 yards 35-inch fabric, plus 3 yards of machine pleating and the sporty one 2 3-8 yards.

Send for the Barbara Bell pattern book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. W. M. U. History To Be Presented At Convention Here Next Week

Mrs. George Westmoreland, Author of Atlanta B. W. M. U. History.

An event of interest in Baptist Woman's Missionary Union will be the presentation, at the annual convention to be held January 26-27, at Capitol View church, of a history of the Atlanta union written by Mrs. George Westmoreland and published by the Atlanta W. M. U.

This book will be called "Through the Years With W. M. U.," and will narrate the progress and the activities of the union since its organization. Originally the Baptist churches of Atlanta belonged to the Stone Mountain Association. By 1908, however, the churches of Atlanta had made such a decided increase in numbers and in strength that it was deemed advisable by denominational leaders that the Stone Mountain Association be divided and that the churches of Atlanta and vicinity organize into a separate association. This was done, and Mrs. L. M. Landrum, previously at the head of woman's work in the Stone Mountain Association, became superintendent of the newly formed Woman's Missionary Union Auxiliary to the Atlanta Association of Baptist Churches. Mrs. Landrum served in this capacity until 1911. Her successors have been Mesdames H. H. Hale, W. P. Anderson, T. L. Lewis, W. A. Hartman, Harry Etheridge, C. W. King, Wilbur Jones and L. O. Freeman.

From its organization in 1908, with 35 missionary and aid societies and gifts totaling $200, through the years this W. M. U. has grown to include 250 societies with contributions annually of more than $75,000. In its early history, no woman, in any capacity, appeared on the program at meetings of the general association, even the report on "woman's work" being given by some "brother" especially appointed by the association to be the official mouthpiece of the woman's organization. Now the executive board of the Atlanta association, by vote of the general association, includes nine women in its body of 30 members, and the report made by the W. M. U. superintendent has become a feature of the association's annual meeting.

The author of this history, formerly Miss Elvira Theresa Smith, was reared in Greenville, S. C., was educated in Greenville Woman's College, and was married to George Westmoreland, an outstanding young Greenville attorney. Mr. and Mrs. Westmoreland moved to Atlanta in 1901, and immediately identified themselves with church and civic work. Not only has Mrs. Westmoreland been associated actively and officially with the Atlanta union since its organization, but with the work of State W. M. U. as well, being now historian of the one and vice president emerita of the other. For many years, too, Mrs. Westmoreland was president of the board of trustees of the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home and also served on the home mission board of the Southern Baptist Convention. She is a member of Second-Ponce de Leon church, Atlanta.

"Through the Years With W. M. U." is being published by Atlanta W. M. U. under the direction of a history committee composed of Mrs. L. O. Freeman, Mrs. S. L. Astin, Mrs. J. W. Awtry and Mrs. W. Lee Cutts.

NANCY PAGE

Better Light, Better Sight.

Fy FLORENCE La GANKE

Peter seemed to be having difficulty with his light for studying. He shifted from one place to another. He shielded his eyes from the glare. Finally he made his discomfort so obvious that his father took a hand in seeing what the difficulty really was.

The next day he ordered a special lamb for his son. In ordering it he followed the advice of a light specialist.

The lamp should have a shade of a depth to hide the lamp bulbs sufficiently, the shade should be open at the top with a diameter at the top approximately 12 to 14 inches and a diameter at the lower edge of 18 to 20 inches. The shade is best made of parchment or of light silk so that rays of the light are not absorbed by the shade.

The lamp itself should be of a height that will throw the light onto the book or work but not by any chance into the eyes of the worker or reader.

In placing the lamp it is wise to put it at the side and close to, or near, the edge of the table or desk. Use a blotter or black cloth to cover the shiny reflecting table surface that gives a glare. In placing the bridge lamp the stand should be so placed that it is slightly in front of the user.

Peter seemed to have difficulty with his left eye. When the lamp was placed so the light came to him from his left that eye was uncomfortable. So the lamp specialist told him to place the lamp at the right.

"And no longer," said the specialist, "do we believe that the light must come over the left shoulder. Rather we place the lamp slightly in front of the person who is using it.

In placing lamps for reading in bed be sure that they are high enough to cast light adequately on the printed page. The deep-shaded, low-placed lamps are hard on the eyes. Never try to read in a room which is totally dark except for the spot of light falling on the book.

The adjustment that the eye has to make as it looks up from the book into the dark room is trying to any eyes that are sensitive. The room need not be brilliantly lighted but it should not be in absolute darkness."

STYLE WEEK SET FOR FEBRUARY 22

Tentative Date Is Advanced. Manufacturers' Exhibit Is Planned at Same Time.

Atlanta's style and market week has been advanced to February 22, it was announced yesterday. The arrangement, however, Milton S. Rice, chairman of the board of directors said, is tenative and subject to change if all members of the show are not able to prepare for the show by that date.

The Manufacturers' and Distributors' Association has also voted to hold their semi-annual exhibit at the same time during the week of February 22. C. E. Collingsworth is president of the association.

ON STRIKE FOR 2 YEARS.

There are 650 men in Manchester, England, who have been on strike for nearly two and a half years. On June 31, 1934, the men struck in protest against the introduction of a system of speeding up production at the works of a wire manufacturer, and are still on strike, with no hope of an early settlement.

Best Cough Remedy You Ever Used Is Home-made

Double-quick Relief.
Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

No matter what you might spend for medicine, you couldn't get quicker, better relief from coughs that start from colds than this simple home mixture gives. It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time and children love its taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, you'll say, it beats anything you ever tried. It has a remarkable three-fold action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Miss Inez Summerour Weds Dr. Carlos Shaw At Christian Church

The marriage of Miss Inez Summerour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Summerour, of Decatur, to Dr. Carlos A. Shaw, was solemnized at a quiet ceremony taking place at the Peachtree Christian church last evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The handsome marble altar held vases of calla lilies, and smilax was used in graceful arrangement. Candelabra held burning white tapers. The chimes announced the entrance of the bridal party.

Ushers included Conley Boothe and Shaylor Dewson.

The lovely young bride was given in marriage by her father, James W. Summerour, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Wesley Jacobs.

The bride's gown was fashioned of blue bonnet crepe. The new V neckline and short puffed sleeves trimmed with scallops were attractive features. A broad sash of the material tied in front, and the short swing skirt was scalloped around the bottom. A small felt hat in a matching shade was finished with a navy veil and the bride's accessories were of navy. She wore a cluster of talisman roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Summerour, mother of the bride, wore navy blue crepe with matching accessories and her shoulder spray was of yellow roses.

Dr. and Mrs. Shaw left for a wedding trip to Florida. Later they will visit Dr. Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Shaw, in Cuba, Ala., after which they will reside temporarily with the bride's parents on Winona drive in Decatur.

Mrs. Shaw graduated from the Girls' High school in Decatur and is popular with a host of friends. Dr. Shaw is a native of Alabama. He graduated from the University of Alabama and the Atlanta Dental College.

Motion Picture Group.

Motion picture committee of Atlanta Council P.-T. A. meets Friday at 10 o'clock at Rich's. The course of study as outlined by Dr. Edgar Dale, of the University of Ohio, will be presented by the chairman, Mrs. J. A. Beall, and state chairman, Mrs. A. E. Sanderson. Mrs. R. A. Long, director of the welfare department of council, will speak on local problems. A representative from each association is requested to attend.

Miss Katharine Cummings Makes Debut at Buffet Luncheon at Club

Mrs. John L. Cummings entertained at a buffet luncheon yesterday at Brookhaven Country Club in compliment to her attractive debutante daughter, Miss Catherine Cummings. The event marked Miss Cummings' formal presentation to society, and they received their guests standing before a graceful arrangement of palms augmented by the exquisite flowers sent to the debutante by her admiring friends.

Miss Cummings wore a gown of navy blue floral crepe. A sash of the same material extended criss-cross style from the neckline to the waist, and ended in streamers on one side. Her hat was a model of navy blue, Baku trimmed with royal blue flowers. She wore pink and lavender-tinted orchids on her shoulder.

Mrs. Cummings was gowned in a tailored street dress of navy blue crepe Romaine worn with a close-fitting spring hat of navy blue taffeta silk. Her flowers were a corsage of white sweet peas.

Luncheon was served from a table placed at one side of the ballroom. Gracing the center was a silver bowl filled with pink roses, blue delphinium, yellow calendulas and white chrysanthemums. Smaller silver bowls filled with similar flowers alternated with silver candlesticks holding pink tapers.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I have just landed a small job in a new shop and I want to make friends with everybody. I am timid and sensitive and bashful and dread what's coming. My husband is always complaining of me because I don't meet people half way and he says it is plain dumbness. I know I have plenty of sense. If I could just forget myself I would come through. Please answer with practical suggestions. ANN.

Answer: A New Year, a new job, a new ambition! You can't fail. Do your thinking about yourself and your personal problems after you turn out your light at night and when you wake up in the morning do your thinking about the job, the shop, the people you are thrown with. That's the beginning. Nobody can read your mind. Everybody judges you by what you say and how you say it, by our manners and gestures, by your attitude to others and by your reaction to what others do and say. Nobody gives you credit for the struggle that goes on within. Everybody marks you up or down by what you show to the world.

I know one woman who goes through life making the path smooth and pleasant for other people. Each new acquaintance is a new friend if she ever sees her again. Recently I have had occasion to observe her at close range and this is what I have noted. She never omits any little courtesy, however, infinitesimal it may seem at the moment and her courtesies are never obtrusive. Somehow she always goes out of the door last without apparent effort to let others pass first. In general conversation she waits until the others have had their say before she comes up with hers and when she does it is never a dogmatic statement beginning with I and ending with me but rather a modest suggestion that what she has to offer may be acceptable. When she is forced to express an opinion of a person that isn't complimentary it is done in such a way that if the person heard it, no offense could be taken. A French pig sniffing for truffles is no more expert than she is in discovering something commendable in the way her friends and associates have handled themselves in trying situations. She has mastered the art of dropping a word here and there that indicates her approval of something a friend or acquaintance has said or done. There's no hint of flattery in her comments but rather she leaves the impression that she is merely giving credit where credit is due. She has a lovely sense of humor with all the cruelty drained out of it. So she laughs at people without ridiculing them and laughs with them in good fellowship.

The secret of this woman's smooth and pleasant relationships with all sorts and conditions of people is that she thinks of others first and herself last. Consequently she does not tread on sore toes, doesn't ask embarrassing personal questions, doesn't take liberties with friends, doesn't throw out her opinions as a challenge to argument, doesn't make catty remarks nor interpret other people's catty remarks as directed at her. She doesn't get her feelings hurt because she assumes that the other fellow wants what she wants: To keep all relationships and all contacts pleasant and agreeable.

To make friends we have to forget ourselves. To save our lives, we have to lose them. First we must be convinced that this is true or we won't pay the price for friends or for full living.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Motors and steels, stimulated by a better brand of labor news, today led one of the fastest stock market upturns of the past several weeks.

With rubber, farm machinery, electrical equipment, merchandising, mining and a wide assortment of specialty issues participating, many new six-year highs were established with gains ranging from 1 to around 4 points.

The ticker tape frequently was pressed to keep pace with floor dealings and at one time was as much as 5 minutes late.

Trading came to a virtual standstill during delivery of the President's inaugural address, but made up for lost time later. The speech was along the lines Wall Street had expected and was thought to have had little market effect.

Transfers totaled 3,268,470 shares compared with 2,619,010 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks held a net advance of .7 of a point at 72.6.

The list developed strength following overnight news that the strike at the Detroit plant of the Briggs Manufacting Company, motor accessory manufacturer, had been settled. The speediest forward surge accompanied word of the adjustment of the 6-week-old workers' dispute at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, another automotive equipment maker.

American Telephone dipped a point at 183 after announcement of a wage boost by its chief subsidiary, New York Telephone Company. American Can also was a contrary performer, losing 2 1-8 at 112 7-8.

United States Steel, up 3 5-8 at 86 3-4, reflected not only lessening of automotive strike tension, but thoughts that arrears on the preferred may be cleared up soon, thus putting the common in line for dividends.

Conspicuous gainers included Bethlehem at 77 7-8, General Motors 68, Chrysler 123 1-2, Westinghouse 158 1-2, General Electric 61 1-8, Southern Pacific 49 3-4, United States Industrial Alcohol 40 3-8, Anaconda 54 1-2, Sears-Roebuck 86, Woolworth 65 1-4, Simmons Company 53, Deere 120 3-4, Loew's 75 1-4 and United States Rubber 54 1-8.

United States government securities were backward and corporation loans uneven. Commodities were hesitant. Wheat at Chicago was off 3-4 of a cent a bushel to up 1-2 and corn was down 1-8 to 1-2. Cotton was up 5 cents a bale to off 15 cents.

AUTO STRIKES HURTING STEEL, MAGAZINE SAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Automobile strikes constitute the only unfavorable factor in the steel situation, Iron Age said today in the weekly review of the industry.

New business continues to accumulate, adding to already heavy backlogs and bookings thus far in January by a few of the larger companies are in excess of shipments, the trade journal said.

"Steel ingot production, at 81 per cent," the review said, "has been pushed higher in most districts . . . while the only loss is in southern Ohio, where one open-hearth furnace was taken off, still leaving that area at 96 per cent. Detroit, the seat of the automobile strikes, maintains capacity output."

By STEPHEN DICKINSON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The bond market reversed itself late in the session today, relinquishing ground gained earlier and ending even to a little lower.

Before noontime the trend was higher, reflecting sentiment shown in the stock department following termination of several strikes and a more hopeful atmosphere in the General Motors situation.

At the finish, however, United States governments, industrials and foreigns were a bit lower on the day and rails, and low-yields stood about unaltered. A few convertible and stock purchase liens had a field day, moving up with the share market and closing with gains up to 10 points.

The federal list was off 1-32d to 1-4 of a point on a small turnover.

Low and medium priced corporates finishing unchanged to higher included Missouri Pacific 5s "F," up 3-4 at 47 1-2; Southern Railway 4s, up 1 1-4 at 81 3-4; Bush Terminal Buildings 5s, up 2 1-2 at 83, and International Telephone 5s, up 1 at 71 1-2.

In the convertible group loans of Studebaker, Symington-Gould, Central Foundry and American Type Founders sprang higher.

The Associated Press averages were little affected.

RAIL CREDITORS STUDY REORGANIZATION PLANS

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Principal creditors of the Seaboard Air Line Railway today studied four proposals for undertaking a reorganization to terminate what some termed the "most complicated of any receivership in the United States."

Federal District Judge Luther B. Way, who called and presided over an informal conference which discussed the problem yesterday, expressed "strong" sympathy for formulation of a plan by the receivers, assisted by a creditor committee.

"I am trying to utilize the experience and knowledge of the receivers and their legal counsel," he said, "in conjunction with a committee representing as many conflicting interests as possible."

INDUSTRIALS ADVANCE DURING CURB TRADING

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Scores Sharp Improvement With 3 3-4 Points Gained.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Influenced by a more tranquil note struck in several strike-bound areas, industrial stocks sprung higher in the curb market today.

Sharp improvement was made by shares of Pittsburgh Plate Glass which added 3 3-4 at 133 following announcement the concern had settled a three-month-old strike.

Other wide gainers included Midvale, up 3 3-4 to 85; National Oil Products, up 6 to 41; Driver Harris, up 2 3-4 to 40, and Continental Roll & Wheel, up 1 1-8 to 24 7-8.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were made by many low priced shares, among which were National Bellas Hess, Columbia Oil & Gas, Pantepec Oil, Pioneer Gold and Sunray Oil.

Metals.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Copper steady; electrolytic spot and future 13.00; export 12.50. Tin steadier, spot and near by 51.12½ @51.25; future 50.95@51.05. Lead steady, spot New York 6.00@6.05; East St. Louis 5.85. Zinc firm. East St. Louis spot and future 6.00. Iron, aluminum, antimony, quicksilver, platinum and wolframite unchanged.

OLD GRADUATES MEET.

Three of four graduates of San Diego High school in the class of 1889 met at a homecoming celebration at the school. They were Mrs. Kate Brown, El Paso, Texas; Miss Annie B. Keiller, San Diego, and Rufus Hampton, Long Beach, Cal.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Industrial stocks climbed to new highs since 1931 today and other groups followed in one of the most enthusiastic market demonstrations in months.

Deals in the fourth hour when the boom was at its height reached a rate of 3,650,000 shares for a full day. Tickers were five minutes late.

Impetus for the rise came from the following:

1. The President's second inaugural message which did not contain the dynamite Wall Street had expected.
2. Settlement of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company strike.
3. Anticipation of early settlement of the automobile labor troubles.
4. Favorable business news in the form of steel production at the highest since 1929; electricity output at the third largest on record; oil production at a record, and railroad earnings sharply higher.

Conservative market observers, however, remained cautious, and insisted the present was a splendid opportunity to take profits. They noted that of the leading industrial issues none except United States Steel and Westinghouse Electric made wide gains.

Today's rise weakened the technical position of the market by eliminating a large part of the short interest which was driven to cover by the good news. Without this potential buying power, the market was not expected to make any further sharp advance.

Best gains of the day were made by United States Steel which closed at 86 3-4, up 3 5-8 (it touched 87, a new six-year high); Westinghouse Electric 158 1-2, up 5 1-4; Bethlehem Steel 77 7-8, up 2 1-8; Chrysler 123 1-2, up 2 3-4; Indian Refining 21 7-8, up 3 7-8; Southern Pacific 49 3-4, up 1 7-8, and General Motors 68, up 2.

American Can weakened again and closed with a loss of 2 1-8 points at 112 7-8. A few other issues had small losses, including American Telephone, Union Pacific, Consolidated Edison and Texas Corporation.

Volume for the session approximated 3,270,000 shares, against 2,620,000 shares yesterday. A week ago yesterday, the total was 3,560,000 shares. Dealings in the last two hours totaled 1,460,000 shares.

Convertible bonds made wide gains with their stocks. Commodities, however, were mostly lower. Grains made an irregular decline. Cotton was steady. Rubber futures gained 40 to 47 points.

LINT ASSOCIATION RAPS CO-OP PROBE

Group Urges Investigation of Private Merchants, Cotton Exchanges, Also.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Heads of the 15 member associations that make up the American Cotton Co-operative Association today demanded that any further inquiry into cotton marketing include an investigation into the practices of private merchants and the cotton exchanges.

The association also went on record as being "highly appreciative of the intelligence and leadership" shown by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in solution of the economic problems confronting American agriculture.

After asserting that the recent investigation of cotton co-operatives by Senator McKellar cost the taxpayers $1,500 and the cotton farmer $20,000 the resolution adopted by the organization said:

"We are opposed to any further senatorial investigations of the cotton co-operatives unless such investigations include without limitations all agencies purchasing or handling the cotton of the American cotton farmer, including the cotton exchanges."

"This (the McKellar) investigation was signal for the old-line cotton trade to scour all sections of the south for evidence against the co-operatives," the report charged.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 12.78 cents a pound.

Average for the month to date, 12.74 cents a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Another dull session was checked off on the cotton market today. Neither the amount of business nor price swings exceeded small proportions.

At the close near months were unchanged to a point or so higher while later options were off a point. March closed at 12.38, May at 12.25, July at 12.15 and October at 11.78. Middling spot cotton at New Orleans also unchanged at 12.98 cents a pound.

Poor foreign markets brought easiness at the opening of domestic exchanges. Bombay selling at Liverpool which was considered hedges against the Indian crop furnished more cotton than the trade could absorb with the result that futures at Liverpool dipped a few penny points.

The domestic standpoint was relatively unchanged. Some selling at New Orleans for a large spot house and brokers who ordinarily act for the co-operatives found takers and prices did not engage in any important slump.

Cotton goods market continued to report a good volume of business with both print cloths and coarse yarn cloths finding favor with customers. The price structure was strong in the goods market.

More attention was being paid to the weather by the ring crowd and also to the stages along the Mississippi. The cotton exchange river table showed an almost perpendicular advance at Cairo and Memphis, but it was believed too early to attempt to forecast what this might mean to the cotton-growing regions along the river.

Rains were general in the eastern belt overnight and while the west was dry, temperatures were below normal.

A Washington report spiked reports that farmers were selling their loan certificates to private interests. Farm leaders in Washington said farmers were not allowed to sell these rights to repossess cotton and the growers would have to apply for the cotton from the loan holdings.

Port receipts, 13,138; week, 55,680; season, 5,430,919; last season, 5,874,426. Exports, 13,945; week, 62,738; season, 3,403,566; last season, 3,942,914. Port stocks, 2,617,977. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 136,101; last year, 87,076. Spot sales at southern markets were 5,691; last year, 8,417.

COTTON STAGES RALLY ON N. Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Cotton recovered from early losses today as other markets rallied. May advanced from 12.20 to 12.30 and ended at 12.27 with final prices 1 point net higher to 3 lower.

Declines of 1 to 8 points at the start reflected easiness at Liverpool, foreign selling and liquidation.

Western selling was absorbed by trade price-fixing and a little outside buying appeared on the afternoon recovery. Spot houses and co-operatives took near months at the close.

Exports today 13,348, making a total of 3,387,108 for the season thus far. Port receipts 12,027. United States port stocks 2,615,085.

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Rallying at the last, wheat scored fractional advances today for new crop deliveries after an abrupt tumble of 2 3-8 cents a bushel from earlier gains.

Predictions of severe cold weather caused late misgivings about safety of the domestic winter wheat crop, especially in areas where recently there has been much rain.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 3-4 off to 1-2 up compared with yesterday's finish, May 130-130 1-8, July 113 7-8-114, September 110-110 1-8, corn 1-8-1-2 down, May 110 1-8-110 1-4, July 105 1-2, September 101 1-4-101 3-8, oats showing 3-4-1 1-2 decline, May 51 1-2-51 5-8, and raye 1-8-7-8 setback, May 108 3-8.

Provisions results were unchanged to 12 cents lower.

Surprise action of the Liverpool wheat market today in jumping 1 1-2 cents, whereas a setback of 2 cents there had been looked for, did a good deal to lift Chicago prices at the outset.

Corn price declines were largely a result of sympathy with oats. Rye was adversely affected by downturns of the two chief feed grains, notwithstanding that weather conditions were about as bad as possible for corn movement.

THEY PAID THE PRICE

By ALICE CAMPBELL

INSTALLMENT IV.

She supposed she tought to offer him sympathy, or at least make some reference to Aunt Rose's death, but it was difficult, for the awkwardness she invariably felt in his presence had descended on her, and besides, though he still stood there holding on to her arm, he seemed oddly shy of conversation. For a second she fancied he was about to ask her some question. She glanced at him expectantly, saw he had apparently changed his mind, and got out her latch key. He released her with a final pat.

"That's right, best get inside out of his raw night," he mumbled hastily. "You'll lunch with me one day soon, eh? That's right,"—and with a wave of his gloved hand he got into the Sunbeam, which, as often happened, he was driving himself.

Diana gazed after him, thinking that a moment ago, before he had seen her, his battered old features had seemed less sorrowful than angry. Furious, she would have said, only the change had come so swiftly she could not be sure. Whatever his emotion, the bluff kindliness replacing it had been forced.

A brilliant radiance greeted Diana when she let herself into the small, tidy hall with its Bokhara rug and its prim row of old woodcuts. That meant Mummy's play was a hit—and another sign was the big bowl of orange marigolds on the dark oak chest, for Margaret Fairlamb, so canny in most respects, ran riot with lights and flowers the moment she was in funds. Home again, after seven weeks of fusty, provincial lodgings—and with news like hers to impart! Light headed-with joy, Diana tore off her hat, and gave an echoing shout.

Far down a passage a crimped gray head thrust itself turtlewise from a door whence were wafted warm cooking odors.

"You, Miss Di?" It was almost an accusal. "What's brought you back so unexpected? And what's that red in your cheeks? Fever?"

"Not rouge, anyhow, Mrs. Todd," the returned wanderer laughed. "Where's Mummy?"

"She's having a bit of a wash. Just got in, she has. There, give me that bag! In you go. She can do with a treat, hard worked as she's been, poor little lady!"

So saying, the factotum who for ten years had ordered the Lake household with Spartan rigor, gave Diana a push which sent her into a bedroom gay with starched chintz and glowing with a bright gas fire. It was an empty room at the moment, but it bore the usual comforting signs of its little owner's cozy, utilitarian personality.

Diana called: "Mums! Are you there?"

Water in the adjacent bath ceased to splash. The communicating doorway framed a diminutive, half-clad figure from whose dripping face an eye bright as a robin's cocked an inquiring glance. The next instant Margaret Fairlamb uttered a small shriek of delight, and with arms wide-spread rushed to enfold her tall daughter.

"Darling! What fun! How did it happen?"

Diana explained, they laughed in unison, and hugged again. What, so old Tom Chetwynd—Sir Thomas, indeed!—had come another cropper and thrown all those poor young things out of work? Just what one might expect if he would keep casting that great meal sack of a wife for Rosalind and Juliet. Diana need not mind, though. Things here were simply booming, and it would be lovely to have her at home.

"Then your show has clicked?"

"Too wonderfully! What more can one ask?"

"And Daddy?" Diana asked, deliberately postponing her great news.

"Daddy?" The small face puckered with regret. "Poor darling, I'm not at all happy about him. He closes this week, and really there does seem so little for him these days. I can't think why. There's not the slightest reason for his going on tour. Not now—but you do know how absurd he is, don't you?"

"Absurd? Not a bit! Do you honestly expect Daddy and me to toast our toes by your nice warm fire while you do the work?"

"Baby! Don't be a beast," Margaret looked hurt. "What possible difference can it make which of us happens to be earning? I'm sure there have been times . . ."

If so, Diana did not remember them: but the glance she directed at the silver-framed photograph of her father, prominent on the mantel, was full of affectionate sympathy. What she saw was a singularly handsome face, rather like her own, only more dreamy and wistful. It was a sad irony that a face like this, so admirably suited for Hamlet and Lear, should inevitably be cast for nondescript uncles and makeweight friends of the family in plays which expire after a fortnight. Mummy had plans. She always had, but they would come to nothing.

"I'm going around to Felix tomorrow," she was confiding. "He does owe me something, for, after all, didn't I go on half salary all during the last general election when things were so bad? He simply must find Herbert a part—but not a word, mind! We must never let Daddy think I'm pulling wires for him."

Marjorie emerged from the temporary eclipse of her blouse with a queer, excited gleam in her eye.

"And now," she whispered, "what do you suppose I've just heard from Nick about my poor, precious Rose? Quite staggering! She—"

"I know," Diana interrupted. "She left all her money to Adrian. But wait. That's nothing. Adrian and—well, we're getting married. We fixed it up an hour ago. There! Aren't you pleased?"

There was a flutter and a squeak—as though a robin had been trodden upon. Comb in hand, Margaret twisted around on the stool before the dressing table and stared at Diana in a strange, pained fashion.

"Baby! You're joking. Adrian and you—?"

"Well, why not? Is it so astonishing?"

Her mother was surveying her with hard, bright attentiveness. Diana felt slightly damped.

"O, darling, do be glad!" she begged. "Only think that but for this marvelous thing happening he'd never have dared to ask me. I'd have lost him. O, don't you see what that would have meant?"

Margaret melted utterly, kissed her.

"Sweet! Of course, I'm glad. You took my breath away, that's all. I've been an owl. You do love Adrian?"

"Terribly!"

"I see—and Rose's money will make everything so comfortable. What a blessing!"

"You like Adrian, don't you?" Diana demanded anxiously. "On his own account, not because I'm marrying him?"

"Like him? Why, didi, how can you ask? You know quite well that both your father and I are extremely fond of Adrian—and we have such a high opinion of his ability. It would not suprise me if he became a very famous brain surgeon. I expect Rose thought that, too, or else . . . but no, I mustn't be small-minded! You knew, of course, that they'd got quite intimate?"

"I'm certain they weren't at all intimate. Adrian was just as bowled over as we are; but what did Uncle Nick say on the subject?"

"Not a great deal." Margaret sounded oddly distrait. "I hadn't long with him, and there was so much to talk over. You see, I'd snatched my first free moment to run over for a word with old Petty, who I'd heard was still at the flat. I was chatting with her when Nick came in to give some instructions; I had only about 10 minutes' conversation with him and then he drove me home."

"I understand Uncle Nick drew up this will. Did he approve?"

"I—I think so." Margaret was fastening her collar with unwonted care and did not look around. "O, yes, to be sure, he must have approved! He brought them together, after Adrian had rather sounded him on the subject of Rose's attitude toward him. Adrian wanted to see her. One can only suppose her old fondness revived, for suddenly, in a rather shamefaced way, she consulted Nick about making a will in the boy's favor. Naturally Nick insisted on making certain inquiries, but he declares Rose was most determined—impatient, even—to have her way. Odd, wasn't it, after never seeming to bother about him?"

"Very odd!"

An awkward silence fell. Diana was thinking that this version differed a little from the one Adrian had given her, but that it was easy to see why Nicholas Blundell, a vain man, like altering facts to suit his own book. Knowing Adrian, she could not believe the initial move had come from him. He had cared nothing whatever for the woman who for six years of his early boyhood had been his stepmother. Even now, he was not pretending the least sorrow over her death.

"Mummy," Diana said abruptly, "how did we get the idea that Aunt Rose intended leaving her property to Uncle Nick?"

Margaret made embarrassed murmurs. Had they thought this? Well, perhaps they had.

"I—I must have got a wrong impression from some remark Rose made, O, quite a long time ago! She had certainly made no such will, any will at all, in fact. As so often happens, she'd put it off—and as for Nick's inheriting anything—well, didn't we always say how ridiculous that would have been? He doesn't want money, least of all hers. Coals to Newsastle it would have been."

"But has Uncle Nick always been so prosperous?"

"I see what you mean. No, certainly not, but for some years everything he's touched seems to have turned up trumps. Rose knew that. Indeed, she was always boasting to me about his wonderful business ability. Above all things, she admired success. And she was grateful to him for so cleverly handling her own investments."

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

"No thank you. My Husband doesn't want any sweets. He's dieting."

Although the reforming of husbands went out about the time that H. L. Mencken came in, something seems to have happened lately. Maybe it's the same thing that happened to Mencken. Anyhow, there's not a wife we've met within the last 12 months who hasn't had some little project she was working on in the way of husband reform.

Maybe we're of the old school. But it embarrasses us. We can't see why a married man can't be left to use his own head. If he hasn't got one, his wife should have figured that out before she married him.

It's all this business of wives telling their husbands how many sandwiches they can eat, and then they've told that story before, and how they shouldn't sit on the table that wears us down. If the man takes his wife seriously, he begins to turn into a milk and water product. And if he doesn't the whole thing gets out of control.

We don't know what we can do about it, to tell you the truth. We're baffled for once. We're tired of hearing etiquette lectures, anyhow. We can give them to you, but we'd never, never, never give them to a husband.

JEAN.

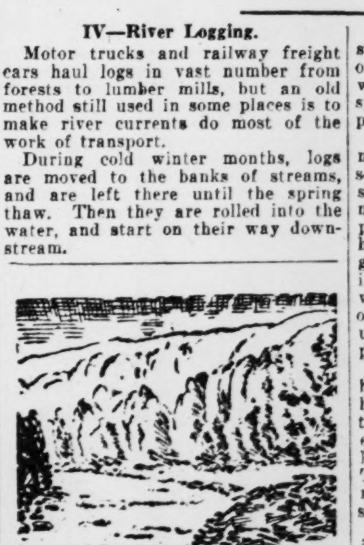
UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

IV—River Logging.

Motor trucks and railway freight cars haul logs in vast number from forests to lumber mills, but an old method still used in some places is to make river currents do most of the work of transport.

During cold winter months, logs are moved to the banks of streams, and are left there until the spring thaw. Then they are rolled into the water, and start on their way downstream.



Log jam in an Ontario river.

Lumberjacks in charge of the floating logs have the special name of "river drivers." Their work is to keep the logs moving, to halt any "jam" which may start to take place.

Each one holding a long pole, the river drivers leap from log to log. Their heavy boots have soles and heels studded with sharp nails, and this helps to keep them from slipping. It is dangerous work. A slip might mean drowning or being crushed between logs. The men are experts, however, and while they may slip once in a great while, they almost always finish the journey "alive and whole."

The long poles have hooks and spikes at the ends, for use in pushing or pulling the logs. There are times when the men must work at high speed, but much of the journey may pass quietly enough.

All the care of the river-drivers may fail to prevent a log jam, and sometimes a river is choked by thousands upon thousands of logs. A famous log jam took place in the Chippewa river of Wisconsin more than half a century ago. The jam was so great, with more and more logs coming down and stopping, that the river was filled with timber for a distance of 10 miles. This jam was not broken up until dynamite was used at the point where the trouble started.

Enough logs to supply a million board feet of lumber in a season may be taken as a fairly good average for the production of a lumber camp. The entire output of logs will keep a large lumber mill going only a few days. This means that many lumber camps must work to supply the needs of a single lumber mill.

An interesting fact about lumber is the great amount of moisture it contains. About half the weight is water. After being sawed into shape at the mill, the lumber is "green" and must be seasoned before it is fit for the market. Sometimes it is left to stand from four to 10 months, so moisture will evaporate. Some mills use "dry kilns" to speed the seasoning of the wood, so it can be sent to market much more quickly.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 28

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

© 1937, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc.—Tm. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

When Jane discovered no sign of the lion or any other danger, she ordered the descent of her companions while she remained below to receive and aid them. First, with the greatest care on Brown's part, the pert, pretty Annette was lowered by the long strap.

Then came the turn of the oversized Princess Sborov. "Oh, I can't, I just can't go down there," she screamed. "Oh, go on, Kitty," her husband urged impatiently; "you're delaying things." The hysterical princess turned on him with a shrill shriek.

"I believe you'd be glad if I were dead. And I know why—because of that will you got me to make. I was a big fool to do it, but just as soon as I find some writing materials, I'm going to change it—after the way you've treated me on this trip."

Her voice broke into frantic screeches as she concluded: "I'll cut you off without a cent, Alexis—without a cent! That's what I'll do!" Prince Zborov made no reply, but his brow contracted in a frown; his sinister eyes narrowed to two ugly slits.

Breathless Moments

By CHARLES W. DUKE.

"Halt! Who goes there?"

An American sentry posted in the Canadian woods steps out upon a cow path to bar the passage of a person approaching just around the bend. In the next moment he smiles and sets down his bayonetted rifle.

For down the country road trips a comely young French-Canadian woman blithely leading a cow. Pretty and innocent looking, she is singing gayly, her spirits matching the wild-flower fragrance and caroling birds of the early June morning.

Completely disarmed by the youth and beauty of the woman, the sentry permits her to pass. But once within the shadow of the deep woods her manner changes. Slipping the halter from the neck of the bovine friend that has served her purposes so well, she gathers her skirts about her and scampers into the forest like a scared doe.

Twenty miles ahead lies her journey—20 miles overland to a British post called Beaver Dams, where a British officer by the name of Fitzgibbon is holding a key position with a force of only 60 men, half of them Indians. She must tell them of their danger—the Americans are planning a secret attack.

She has been sent on her mission at the behest of her husband, who lies wounded in an American prison hospital. Maimed in the battle at Queenston Heights, where the beloved Canadian fighter, Major General Sir Isaac Brock, fell mortally wounded, the young husband overheard whispered conversations concerning the proposed attack on Beaver Dams.

His fellow Canadians must be warned. But how? And then the inspiration to send his wife on the perilous errand. Now she is bound for Beaver Dams, the released cow wandering at will in the woods. Several times she encounters Indians, but manages to escape. Finally a group of redskins take her—before Fitzgibbon!

Beaver Dams is saved by British reinforcements, and Laura Secord, dauntless young French-Canadian patriot-bride, emerges a heroine from the American war with Great Britain of 1812, ever to be classified among the bravest women in the early history of the dominion.

Permission to make legal contracts for the purchase of new fire equipment was granted the city of Atlanta yesterday in a ruling by Fulton Superior Judge Virlyn B. Moore dissolving a previous injunction.

The 1936 city council contracted for the purchase of $28,000 worth of fire equipment with the American La-France Fire Engine Company, but it was claimed in an injunction suit filed by Mrs. A. B. Still, as a taxpayer, the contract had not been made in the legally specified manner. In a previous hearing, Judge G. H. Howard had permitted the delivery of the fire engines but ruled no money could be paid at that time for them.

No money has been set aside in the newly adopted city finance sheet for the purchase of major fire equipment. Alderman Gilliam, chairman of the council finance committee, has said the city finance sheet would be amended later if possible, with revenues received from the state going to the purchase of necessary fire equipment, and for other imperative expenses.

Bond Almand, city attorney, told Judge Moore yesterday he understood parts of the fire equipment already had been delivered here for assembly, but he admitted the old agreement was illegal.

Under the court order, the city makes new contracts and can make them with a new company, if desired.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The market closed strong with bullish sentiment apparently undiminished.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—We still believe that on sharp bursts of strength the policy of taking some profits should be followed.

BEER & CO.—We are inclined to believe that the market in its action during the past two days has shown itself to be in a relatively good technical condition, consequently we look for some extension of the advance.

FENNER & BEANE—From a technical point of view the market is now again at its previous high levels and pentration of this area may not be achieved on the current move.

THOMSON & McKINNON—With the inaugural address out of the way and with glass industry strikes partly settled, the next move in the General Motors strike situation likely will prove a leading factor.

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—There is a period of stagnation ahead of us but we believe that the buying side offers better opportunities of profit than the selling side.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Active liquidation met trade buying at limits on decline and prices rallied on covering and trade support with little net change.

BEER & CO.—Continue of the opinion purchases made at current levels and on recessions will prove profitable for the long term.

FENNER & BEANE—We believe purchases at such times will prove profitable.

THOMSON & McKINNON—We look for cotton to break out of its present rule on the upside just as soon as some of these unsettling influences are removed and consider present prices sufficiently attractive to make purchases.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—Cotton moves within narrow limits in response to developments affecting other markets but until the loan cotton release situation is further clarified, we do not anticipate a broadening in price swings. March Liverpool due 6.89.

COURTS & CO.—We feel the market is in a much healthier position as a result of the liquidation and that May wheat is again approaching an attractive price level.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—We do not feel decline in wheat has been completed.

BEER & CO.—We anticipate irergularly lower levels in wheat.

FENNER & BEANE—We still feel that general conditions both here and abroad warrant a strong market.

THOMSON & McKINNON—Breaking of the recent resistance levels has increased bearish sentiment but the market seems fairly well liquidated and best trading possibilities still seem to lie in purchases for trading turns.

DOBBS & CO.—We feel that our market will meet good support on any further decline.

COTTONSEED OIL.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—Europe has been a good seller of March and May Wednesday in the cottonseed oil futures market in New York, this selling being in liquidation. The refiners have been good buyers of March, May and July. They also have bought March and sold July at 13 points. This market has been well liquidated in the past few days and while the market may be somewhat unsettled for the next few days, trade observers believe the liquidation about over. Crude oil was 10½ bid southeast. Sales Wednesday totaled 228 contracts.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Raw sugar was unchanged today, but it developed that earlier in the week there were sales of 25,000 bags of Cubas and 27,000 bags of Philippines for February and March shipment at 3.75, or 5 points below previous sales.

While the No. 4 contract held steady in futures, the No. 3 contract, after declining 2 points on the more active positions, rallied on trade buying.

No. 3 opened and closed 1 point lower to 1 higher, with sales of 12,050 tons. There were 30 duty free notices issued, but they were promptly stopped and had no effect.

The No. 4 contracts opened ½ to 2 higher and closed 2 to 4½ higher on sales of 18,900 tons, with May advancing from 1.10½ to 1.13 and July from 1.12½ to 1.15.

The No. 3 range follows:

	High	Low	Last
January	2.91	2.91	2.91n
March	2.86	2.86	2.86b
May	2.84	2.83	2.83b
July	2.83	2.80	2.82b
September	2.82	2.80	2.82b
November			2.80b

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Coffee showed further losses during early trading today on renewed liquidation and European selling, but rallied later on increased covering and trade buying.

Santos contracts opened 2 lower to 1 higher and closed 2 to 5 points higher; sales 28,750 bags. New No. 7 opened 6 to 12 points lower and closed 1 to 3 lower; sales 16,750. Closing quotations: Santos, March 10.47, May 10.54, July 10.55, September 10.53, December 10.55; new No. 7, March 7.33, May 7.39, July 7.47, September 7.52, December 7.57.

Spot coffee quiet, Santos 4s 11½; Rio 7s 9½. Cost and freight offers included Santos Bourbon 3s and 5s at 10.95 to 11.15.
